The Opposition party of Mecklenburg county will hold a meeting in Charlotte on Toe-day of the ensuing January Court, for the purpose of app inting delegates to the Opposition State Convention to be held in this city on the 22nd February pext. It is time that all the counties in the State were. moving in this matter. The time for bolding the State Convent on is now but little more than three months off, and it is highly important that the party should held meetings and appoint delegates at any Court or other publie gathering that may take place in their respective counties, between now and the day appointed. Let large and intelligent delegal tions be appointed, and let all come who can possible do so. It is important to our success in the elections next year that our State Convention should be largely attended by the bes' and most intelligent men of the party, and that we should confer together for the good of our country, our State and our party. Let wise counsels prevail, let us infuse into our discussions the spirit of harmony, let our actions be prompted by a desire to promote the welfare of our entire State, and success will inevitably crown our efforts, and our State will be rescued from the blighting influences of Democratic misrule.

The Greenbrier (Va.) Independent makes telling point against Locofocoism on a subject that hould never have become a party is ue. We all know, it says, how scrupulous our Democratic friends are in guarding the Constitution from infraction, when Internal Improvements are spoken of Our soil upon which we tread every day, can receive no attention lest the Constitution be violated .-Our great navigable streams can scarcely be touched by the fostering hand of Government, but Democratic theory starts from its place OPPOSITION MEETING IN MECKLEN- in amazement and holds up its hands in boly horror. Roads that would be a national blessing must not be aided by Governmental funds, because there is no clear and explicit authority for so doing. All that pectains to the improvement, advancement, and developent of our internal domain, the soil that is really ours, the resources and facilities, which reason and nature invite us to open and expand, must be neglected, ignored, set aside, and abandoned, to keep the Democratic concience quiet, and allow Democratic theory full exercise.

But how appears the Democratic conscience and the Democratic theory, when they "quit their own to stand on foreign ground ?"-Their conscience, then, is more pliable than india rubber, and their theory is latitudinous beyond all precedent. How is it the Demoratic Constitution allows a President to send a company, at great expense, to fish in, and bathe in, and sound the Dead Sea, when it won't let Congress vote money to clear snags and sand-bars out of our own rivers, to save the lives and property of our own citizens ! This is one of the most entertaining books that we have read for a long time. It is a book peculiarly adapted to the Christian reader, and yet it possesses all the fascinating interest of the most charming novel. No one can read it without sympathizing with the principal character, Mary Evans, in her trials and sufferings, nor without loving her truthful, dutiful, and exceedingly beautiful character; and when the reader comes to the close of the volume, and finds how amply her devotion to DUTY is rewarded, he cannot but feel a sympathetic participation in her unalloyed happiness, and a consciousness that a a blissful reward, even in this life, awaits those whose unalterable devotion to DUTY causes them to sacrifice all selfish and uncharitable feelings. The book has a tendency to elevate the feelings, to inspire a proper reverence for the Chorch and a childlike confidence in the teachings and advice of the pastor, and points to the Holy Bible and its Clement C. After reading the dispatch Mr. Hunter informed the court that he had in his possession a large number of important letters and documents implicating in the tressonable designs of the prisoners a large number of prominent citizens of the North-ern and Western States, which would be made public in the trial of Stevens before the United States Court. The prisoner gladly accepted the proposition to be handed over to the United States authorities, and he was remanded to prison and the jury discharged.

She owes her life, and is ever prompt to acknowledge the chligation, to the most distinguished physician of the age, Dr. Thomas Holloway. That extraordinary man happened to arrive in the "Sevenhilled City" just at the crisis of her disorder, and was immediately summoned to her palace. He found the Princess in a sad condition. During an evening drive through the Campagna she had been smitten, by the fearful malaria which sometimes arises in poisonous clouds from the adjacent marshes. The consequence was a violent bilious attack, terminating in jaundice. The lovely face which had dazzled all eyes, and eclipsed all rivalry at ball and banquet, was yellow as saffren, and the eyes which had kindled love and admiration in a thousand hearts were duller than lead. In a feeble voice she inquired of the doctor what could be done for her, at the same time protesting that if the hue that now tinged her skin were to remain after her recovery she would rather die than live. Smiling at the pardonable vanity of one whose queenly beauty was the theme of every traveler who visited Rome, he told her cheerfully that her life and her loveliness were both safe. His pre-diction proved true.
