THE CONVENTION .-- QUR NOMINEES.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 19, 1860.

The gentleman who so kindly and ably edited the Register during our recent absence from our post, was good enough to say on turning it over to us, that we "would be able to depict with our graphic pen the harmonious action and general history of this glorious two days meeting." Our friend has promised for us what we shall not be able to perform. Denying the soft impeachment that ours is a "graphic pen," we defy the most "graphic pen" ever weilded, to do full justice to the barmonious and patriotic conduct of that truly great Convention, from the moment it was called to order, until its able and accomplished President declared it to be adjourned sine die. Not one hersh, unkind, or discourteous word was spoken, not one breach of the strict rules of order was persevered in for a second after the President called to order, and but for the loud and hearty cheering which often attended the proceedings, the Convention would have reminded one of a grave Senate, rather than a popular assembly-(what a contract to the discordant, disorganized and badly behaved Charleston Convention !!) And then the material of the Convention! We have seen many assemblies of men, but save the Senate of the United States, in its palmy days-in the days of Clay, Calhoun, Webster. Benton, and others we might nameand the Virginia Convention of 1830, we have never seen any body of men possessing more talent than that which met at Baltimore on the 9th inst. That the patriotism of this body was in just proportion to its talents, is abundantly proved by its whole course and final action. Rarely, if ever, have we heard such speeches. Not one speaker failed, while many made speeches of surpassing eloquence. Henry, made a speech worthy of his immortal

"His thunder shook the Phillip of the seas," and a speech which would permit no eye in the house to remain dry. Hillard, of Massachusetts, proved himself to be at once the gifted orator and accomplished scholar. Such chasteness of diction, and affluence of imagery, are rarely found in the possession of any man. Well worthy is be of the land of Webster, Everett, Choate and Winthrop. We might go on and mention other speakers of great ability, but neither time nor space wi'l permit, and we must pass on to the Platform adopted by the Convention. Here it is "THE CONSTITUTION OF THE COUNTRY, namesake and relative, in the days when

THE UNION OF THE STATES, AND THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAWS."

Can a platform more worthy than the above of the heart-and-soul support of every good citizes of this country be conceived of? When fools, or knaves sneeringly enquire, is this all your platform ? We reply that he who objects to it either sets himself above the Constitution and laws of his country, and therefore is a traitor; or below them, and therefore is unworthy of their regard and beneath their notice. How Mr. Bell is the very beau ideal of the whole Whig enviably does this Platform contrast with the cheating, juggling, disgusting rigmarole of things, which the Democracy call Platfernis, things that have as many interpretations as one of the steadiest enemies General Jackson ever there are Sta'es in the Union !! Should our | had, he will get the votes of all those who cling Democratic friends take exception to our the settled issues of other days. There is no kind-Platform; we defy them to show wherein it is defective-we defy them to take the ground | know him, and never refuses to do a kindness to that they can add to, or take from "the Con- a political opponent. RATIFICATION MEETING AT BALTI-MORE, ON THURSDAY NIGHT, THE 10TH INSTANT, IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE ADJOURNMENT OF THE CON-

A grand stand, one hundred feet long, with towers thirty-six feet high, was erected for the occasion, and spanned by an arch thirty-six feet high. Around the circle of the arch, on muslin, was painted the motto, "The Union, the Constitution, and the Enforcement of the Laws." On the south side, in the centre of the tower, was the full lifesize portrait of George Washington, and on the north side the portrait of Henry Clay, of the same size and character. Around the face of the arch was the coat-of-arms of all the States. Flags floated from the two towers, and the whole stand was beautifully draped and festooned, and lighted by a number of gas jets.

Shertly before 8 o'clock the Independent Blues' Band, Capt. Holland, occupied a position in the north tower, and played a number of patriotic airs. Rockets were sent aloft from the court house yard. By this time between 8,000 and 10,000 persons were collected in the square. At 84 o'clock, Hon. Anthony Kennedy advanced beneath the arch, and after a few remarks, introduced to the mass Hon. Henry Fuller, of Pennsylvania, who made a short speech in support of the nominees, Hop. John Bell, of Tennessee, and Hon. Edward Everett, of Massachusetts. He was followed by Hon, Rich'd W. Thompson, of Indiana, who was introduced by Hon. J. Morrison Harris, and made a brief and pointed speech. Bo h gentlemen were loudly applauded throughout their remarks. Addresses were also made by Hon. J. Scott Harrison, of Ohio, Hon. Bailie Peyton, of Tennessee, Hon. Z. B. Vance, of North Carolina, and several others.

"Mr. Bell is a native of Tennessee, and in his 64th year. He was formerly a Democrat but deserted Gen. Jackson in 1833, and was a White man in 1835."-Raleigh Standard.

Citizen Holden was a hard eider, coon skin, log esbin Whig in 1840, the devoted friend and enlogist of Henry Clay, but deserted him and the Whigs in 1843, and has been a Democrat ever since, and will now, if he is nominated, support Stephen A. Douglas, whom in 1858, he threatened "to humble to the dust."- Raleigh Register.

How like you our historical reminescences Citizen ! Rather on the "tit for tat" principle, are they not ?

But let us call your attention to the following from Forney's Press.

E. K. LOSIER,

Ralimore, Md. DROSPECTUS OF THE WEEKLY

SPECTATOR.—The undersigned propose to pub-lish a paper bearing the above title, at Brinkleyville, N. C., beginning about the first of July next. The size of the contemplated paper will vary but little from that of the leading Journals of the State, and will be issued at $2 per annum, in advance.

It is designed that the Spectator shall be chiefly a Literary paper; noutral in Politics and Religion; containing abstracts of all interesting and important news, in the religious, educational, commercial and political world; original essays on Study and mental training; a children's column, an agricultural column, and a space for various pleasantries both in prose and poetry. And in order that this design may be the more fully carried out, the space allotted to advertisements will be less than what is usual. While we are determined that our paper shall occupy neutral ground in all those political and religious matters in regard to which the people are divided into parties and sects, yet we intend to make it a firm and decided advocate of those principles and measures, which, in our estimation, wild promote the best interests of the country, and the dissemination of religious truth and evangelical piety among our fellow men.

We carnestly solicit subscriptions, to be forwarded as soon as practicable, directed to "The Weekly Spectator," (for the present and until otherwise indicated,) J. L. MICHAUX, Editors.
