Does he love me well-does he love me well ? No doubt in her heart the maiden knew, But in whispers soft she said again, Thistle-down, thistle-down, tell me true

For every maid in the wide world knows That sweet, pure prophecy. Dolly drew Her little mouth into rosebud shape, Saving. Oh, thistle-down, tell me true Yes, he loves you well. Oh, he loves you well !

This is the answer the thistle-down Gives to her heart, as it flies away. And Dolly that night, at the garden-gate,

When will he come? He will come to-day!

And Harry, the farmer, brave and brown, Look into each other's eyes and sav. "A prophet true is the thistle-down."

THE CONSPIRACY.

Warren's Diary of a Detective 1 The repudiated or unacknowledged claims upon the British Government, some of them for fabulous sums, amount to a espectable national debt, and scores of adjuduals fall into poverty and untimely Alexander Tyrrell's imaginary murderous graves, in vain pursuit of a glittering bubble, ever dancing before their eyes, and ever just—only just—beyond their reach. The advent of a new First Lord of the Treasury is the signal of a general revival from uneasy slumber of demands, which, shamefully ignored or neglected by his predecessor in office will, write the inteachable solicitors, "be sure to meet with due appreciation from the distinguished statesman, to whom the favor of a gracious sovereign and the suffrages of an enlightened people have intrusted the nonor and interests of the great British nation-which honor and interests can Street platform, would, taking the most never be more effectually promoted than by doing justice to the meanest alike with the mightiest of that sovereign's subjects."
It is surprising, too, or at least it would be surprising to those who do not from experience know how slight a thread of colored cobweb will retain persons other- ly a descending scale that his present wise sane in the consuming idleness, gradually changing to equally idle des- mill Street, which moreover his landlady air, of the fool's paradise of visionary had given him peremptory notice to quit, hope, -to observe upon how slight and lest peradventure her sheets and blankets erect their air-drawn castles. I once knew a mathematician, of all men in the world, uplifted to the seventh heaven from the sinking, with some hope on his friends' part that he would at last touch the bottom, and rebound therefrom by his own for his age, and standing nearly six feet in latent energy into the clear and healthful atmosphere of genuine working-day life: "I am directed by Lord Melbourne to acknowledge the receipt of your memorial and accompanying vouchers, and to state that the matter shall receive his earliest attention " In less than six months afterwards the mathematician was a confirmed lunatic! Since I left the police force, I have been more familiar with these hallucinations, and it happened that once whilst therein. I was brought, in the exercise of my vocation, in contact with one of the most importunate, inexorcisable of the "ghosts" by which the halls and passages of the Freasury and other public offices are conwill be seen, led to curious revelations and stantly haunted; an intimacy which, it by a fatal pledge, to marry her directly he ited, two or three years before I made oficial acquaintance with him, about eight the bundle of documents exteriorly known, at the Treasury, and by them facetiously or command of Sir John Moore, during the alarm previous to Trafalgar of French invasion, gave up his premises, buildings, troops assembled there; incurring thereby the destruction of an immense quantity of partially prepared kelp, and the ruin of his business. Tyrrell's father died in 1830, just as he was more sanguine of success han he had at any time been during the previous five and-twenty years, in consequence of Earl Grey's succession to office, a distant relative, enabling him to press the siege at the Treasury with greater vigor than ever. Death, albeit, always unwelcome, and never more so than when the hand grasps, or its owner fancies it is about to grasp, the prize of all life's exer tion, suddenly interposed at the critical moment, his coming having probably been hastened by the agitation into which the change of ministry and the unanticipated legacy threw the old man's care-cankered mind and body; and his only son, Alexander, found himself, after his father's debts and funeral charges had been paid, in possession of eight hundred pounds in money, and a bill for eight thousand, drawn upon but not accepted by the British government. Now Alexander Tyrrell was a young man of compressed two years, he found, upon a rough calcuation, hurriedly gone into, after awakenng one morning in the custody of a sheriff sofficer, that he was worth about twenty ounds in cash, after relieving himself of he said officer, wherewith to face about two thousand pounds of debt! Thus of his important ciaim upon the national exchequer; and the treasury clerks, who taches, an air of occult menace, darkly interpreted by warning hints at the risks incurred by official personages who sys-tematically perverted or dammed up the rapidity, "but I need not waste sentiment upon Mr. Waters. Well, all this was a tissue-warp and woof-of unmitigated lies. William Rowcliffe was entitled to no money; but a girl was, one Clara Bennett, who it was known, loved Rowcliffe.

Baleigh

Register.

-puppy and simpleton that he is-but that is nothing new; and the plan of the confederates was-more correctly Closs's plan, for he alone had the brains to conceive it-was this: Tyrrell was to see the

which was already so well known to them that Closs knew both him and his mother personally; he had been, I think, engaged in defending the elder Rowcliffe, who was convicted of some crime. Well, great man, sudden but involuntary admi-

to an ulterior well-meditated purpose.

Everything fell out as desired and anticipated. Rowcliffe's empty head was turned with his imaginary high fortune; Clara

Bennett was no longer good enough for him, and the insolent booby told her so to her face, as he himself boasted to me last Thursday afternoon, a few hours after her arrival, I am sure at Tyrrell's suggestion, in London, accompanied by her father. A fainted, and, upon recovering, found that,

VOL. II. no paper sent after expiration of time paid for.

not the faintest sign.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 1885.

wherein braggart was written plainly enough, but of courage, moral or physical, feather-headed fool did not know me per-Whether, however, from fear or fussiness, one of the officials, choosing to treat the affair seriously, had Alexander Tyrrell taken before a Magistrate, by whom he was bound over to keep the peace towards all the king's lieges, and notably the British government and its employes, an undertaking which the terrified young man gave with a firm resolution, I am quite sure, not to break it. He was not, however, forbidden to strut solemnly past the office doors, as the clerks were arriving or leaving, and glare at them with all the Byronic-satanism he could force into his weak light-hazel eyes-a pastime which, in conjunction with a continuous succession of anonymous letters, written in a woman's hand, but it was not doubted dictated by him, and addressed to the lords and secretary of the treasury, caused an intimation to be given to the authorities of Scotland Yard, that it would be well to keep a sharp eye upon Alexander Tyrrell's movements, and the more heedfully, that it was reported he had con-nected himself with the Chartist politicians who were agitating the country. I was selected for this service, and of course entered upon it at once, though with no great alacrity, till my zeal was quickened by a glimpse of circumstances, pointing more serious issues than swaggering or treasonable designs. True, he occa-sionally attended the meetings in John Street, but more from complaisance towards his sworn friend David Closs, managing clerk ic a city attorney's office, and enthusiastic champion of the five points, than from any pleasure or interest he himself took in Chartist oratory, wildly as he cheered every denunciation of government villainy and oppression. The sad truth was, that the deposition of the ministry and transference of the treasury to the friendly gentlemen that dispensed their liberal eloquence from the John sanguine calculation, be brought about too late for him; for so pressing were his needs, that delay was destruction—ruin! His experience in furnished lodgings had been, I found, during the last twelve months, large and various, and in so swiftdomicile was a back attic in Great Windher lodger's last shirt. Thus desperately circumstanced, Alexander Tyrrell may be forgiven, sworn though he had eternal his stockings, he was provisionally accepted, received earnest of the king's bounty, and my surveillance of the gentleman's movements, was, I imagined, at an end. I was mistaken: it was about to seriously begin. A still young, and no question very handsome woman, before her fresh, country complexion-she was from Christchurch, Hampshire-and bright, girlish eyes had been grimed, quenched by constant daily and nightly toil in a wholesale millinery manufactory, and other beautymarring agencies, presented herself at the barracks in a state of semi distraction and informed the commanding officer that Tyrrell was in his thirty second year, and bound by a solemn engagement, sealed received the first instalment of the money due to him from the government. She gave the name of Lydia Lockwood; and it being known that I took especial interest in the new recruit, I was commissioned to ascertain the truth or falsehood of her hundred pounds in cash, and a claim upon the English Treasury for the same num. She loved the fellow with the devoted apber of thousands, from his father, which prehensiveness with which a solitary woclaim, as far as I could or cared to under-stand the bill of particulars—set forth in London labor life attaches herself to a tained that John Bennett was a farmer and of James's or Bulwer's last novel; the whole or Bennett. It almost seemed that we were man who from motives of real or simulatat all events, to every clerk and messenger | ed affection promises to lift her up from those gloomy depths to the peace and sun-shine of a cheerful home. Her faith, too, said would shortly become the wife of she did her best to look, that the young the commissioner, begging him to appoint denominated "The Kelp Papers,"—was for losses sustained by Tyrrell, senior, a manufacturer of kelp from sea-weed, on the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of Kent, who, at the suggestion states of the coast of the c her scanty furniture to a broker in order tol. It was on my tongue to ask if there come into possession of a large fortune. to raise the smart-money required, she was was any talk of a fortune having been left. Not unamusing all that, and might be insuppose to her's also-he declined receiv- venting some excuse for calling personally ing it, the commanding officer having, he upon John Bennett before following Tyrrell | the coach passing over a track of greeninformed her, determined, in consequence of her representations, to cancel his provisional engagement without charge. bard-grained, wiry fellow, and about as Banner, and the Field!" apropos of what Money, however, it was soon apparent he great a niggard of his words as he was by I do not remember; but if not quite living; that Tyrrell himself dressed again as in his buckish days, and presented Lydia Lockwood with the means of making quite a fashionable appearance! A something else to do than stand gossiping indebted to his employer when discharged —had been therefore discharged, and only hand whilst we were speaking—in my saved from appearing at a police office by face. compassion for his wife and family. The attorney, Mr. B-, apprized of the dashing style of life assumed by his late clerk, bethought him that he might not have discovered the whole extent of that pervestigation was gone into, without, how-ever, producing any enlightening result, suddenly liberated from parental control and the much sterner gripe of poverty, brilliancy; and carried on the war with such spirit, that at the end of less than two years, he found when a rough sile.

associates, when going home, which ended | varying complexion of the young woman | passenger, or permitting others to do so, in a fight, and a night's lodging at a police as she gazed at me with intense suspicious caused his leaders to suddenly prance and station. There, as the custom is, they scrutiny—now bright and glowing, now curvet after a fashion that instantly checked were searched, and a note was found in shadowy and pale as stone, but for the the general mirth; and when the alarum Tyrrell's pocket, a copy of which I was in | hectic spots that lent a fire they needed | had subsided, it was time for me and Fenpossession of early the next morning. It | not to her piercing black eyes, plainly tes- | tum, in accordance with our understandeset Alexander Tyrrell bethought himself | early the previous day. I transcribe it verbatim:-"Dear Tyl :- If there is much more of

had congratulated themselves upon the death of "Old Kelp," were surprised and both of us have a capital chance of finding could I doubt that Tyrrell suspected or ted a combative persistence in his pur- for me when I got home last night, and an | might have occurred to him that David for me when I got home last night, and an posse, which the rudest rebuff, the most supercilious insolence, utterly failed to repress or mitigate. More than that, the position, "began at last to assume, concurrency with necessity of his cruel and unexampled position," began at last to assume, concurrency with the cultivation of his moustaches, an air of occult menace, darkly interest and abuse, my head so aches process of the supercilious insolence, utterly failed to result of the swears infernal jobation he gave me. He swears infernal jobation he gave me. He swears confidential note had passed under the supercilious insolence, utterly failed to result of the swears infernal jobation he gave me. He swears in the plain going to doing so, it was a share in the plus in fornal formation in fernal jobation he gave me. He swears in the point closers and that if the bill is not the and throbs that I can scarcely lift it from the pillow to scribble this note. I shall, in respect of the Bennetts towards enlight-

per mail, to Bristol. Yours faithfully, D. C." suspect that the strictly " private and conperhaps Tyrrell had not told his crafty friend that he had it about him. However that might have been, I was instructed to accompany Tyrrell to Bristol, and session to their own. The "vulture Levy's" case and grievance were easily fathmanaging clerk, had introduced Tyrrell to the usurer as a person who was entitled to, and would shortly receive, a large amount of money from the treasury, but who, meantime, was in pressing want of three hundred pounds, which representation had induced Levy to advance the required sum simper—as in condescendent reply to my upon Tyrrell's note for fourhundred pounds. With, however, that rogue-rob-rogue affair, I had not to concern myself; neither, to confess the truth, did I set about that which was confided to me in very dexterous fashion. Tyrrell, whose handsome, well-stocked portmanteau bore a plate upon which was engraved "Alexander his strutting gait and pretentious manner, Champneys, Tyrrell, Esq., Hill Street. Berkeley Square," secured an inside place | fine, ready-made clothes. They were on to Bristol by the night coach instead of their way to the coach office, which they the mail, and I, finding that the said pas- reached just in time to secure two outside senger-coach was then full inside and out, and that the faster mail would reach Brisdon. Those were the only vacant seats: and that the faster mail would reach Bristol full an hour before the coach, deter- but determined not again to lose sight of mined, after first seeing Tyrrell off, to my slippery customer, I managed to make travel by mail. I did so, and was in a private arrangement with the coachman, my chagrin and dismay, without Alexan- run the chance of an information against der Champneys Tyrrell, Esquire, who, for the proprietors of the "Eclipse" for carrysome reason, unguessed of by me, had ling more than the stipulated ten outsiders, alighted at Swindon, where, one of the maining some time. Tyrrell, intending to go no further than Swindon, should pay his fare, as he had enmity to the vile British government, for done, to Bristol; and was his halting there slough of despond into which he was fast | presenting himself at the Albany Barracks, | a trick or an after-thought? Did he, perdouble, as it were, to throw me off the and its driver at length yielding to our scent? I could hardly believe that could importunity, agreed to give us a lift as far be the case, so careful had I been to keep as Bath. Room was made for me in front, well in shadow during the whole time that I had been upon his track; but whether so the side of Tyrrell and his youthful friend again striking the trail; and by eleven should say, at all times, but more abuno'clock in the forenoon of the same day, I dantly so than usual it appeared on that post-chaise, which had taken him about ural eloquence being stimulated by an unthe Black Horse, a road-side public house, ness of the day, and the flattering smiles and rapidly too. where he had alighted and discharged the of a pretty and prodigiously genteel young chaise. In something less than three hours | woman on the box-seat I reached the Black Horse, on foot, not to attract notice or inquiry, and found myself again too late and completely at fault .. A gentleman from London had been there, hired a lad to show him where the Ben-netts lived, been absent something over man's military moustache; to me, but two hours, and, soon after returning to loftily, with patronizing condescendence, the Black Horse, had hailed a return Bath of the new reformed House of Commons, post-chaise that happened to pass, and set which he pronounced to be a despicable widower in middling circumstances, who profusely interspersed with hints, quite had two grown-up daughters living with as interesting to me as they could be to chasing shadows, not tangible realities;

> my daughter. As to handsome, why, small of the elocutionist's back with the handsome is as handsome does; and as that seems all you have to say, I have A practised reader of the meanings of tion; and the brief perusal I had obtained required no further proof than Alexander | the roof of the "Eclipse," and not attempt Champneys Tyrrell's fashionable card, held to resume our places till at about the same chaff, mind you, about the stale buns."

"I suppose so. By the way, is that swell in moustaches the friend you speak of?"

tongue stands between a sensible man and gentleman could be obtained, and I went twenty thousand pounds! If that young on to Bristol, where, for a time, the same of ill-fortune attended me. Tyrrell could sonally, I myself would run the risk of neither be seen nor heard of; no one that transportation to clutch such a prize, I questioned knew either a Mrs. Rowcliffe whilst you, lucky dog that you are in not or her son, and I was mentally debating being tied up—not at least by a legal hal-ter—run no risk whatever. There must, ment in the local papers to the effect that mind you, be no more shilly-shallying: a person of that name, formerly resident Newgate or twenty thousand pounds is in the neighborhood of Swindon, Wiltabout the size of it, and a fellow must have a queer sort of nut on his shoulders that in such a case hesitates for choice. We'll hear of something to her advantage. This, have a roaring jollification to-night, and to-morrow or next day you must be off, ruse that, supposing the Rowcliffes to be connected with the enterprise in which Tyrrell was engaged-which, after all, was Closs and Tyrrell were discharged upon a wild surmise of mine, for which I could payment of a fine; and neither appeared to have given no intelligible reason-could hardly fail of being seen through and defidential" note had been looked into; or feated by a man whom the consciousness of a guilty purpose would render especially keen-sighted in the detection of such very common man-traps; and I was still undecided, when fortune or accident remtake a hand at the game by which the con- edied the mischance, that had so long, federates proposed to transfer twenty thousand pounds from some other person's poshim one afternoon about three o'clock in Redcliffe Street, and so sudden and unexomed. Closs, whom Levy knew as B--'s pected was the rencontre that I could not help starting and changing color as my eyes met his-a want of presence of mind which, however, convinced me of what I simper—as in condescendent reply to my respectful question he assured me I was mistaken in supposing him to be Captain Augustus Fancourt, of the - regiment, then quartered in Bristol-were delightfully pleasant and refreshing. He was accompanied by a young, vulgar coxcomb, very sprucely attired, and displaying in a consequence as new and ill-fitting as his Those were the only vacant seats; punctual though covert attendance when who, for a consideration, agreed to take the night-coach reached that city; but, to me up at some distance on the road, and on that particular day Very strange that | what to excess. At the place where I was di-

ing the favorable opportunity afforded by point of John Fentum's umbrella; which person, stretching himself over the roof of very disgusting fasshion, with the suddenly extinguished orator, whose face, flam-

passengers, from some remarks and inqui- tive mission in which I was engaged, he, however, a very imperfect one, being rected to await the coach I found a youngish, decently dressed workingman, John Fentum by name, bound for London by the same conveyance; and, under favor of or not, it was essential to lose no time in | -a remarkably wordy young blade, I | hastening off, was overtaken in due time was in Swindon, then a quiet country village, where I learned from the landlord of the Swan Inn, that a gentleman answering to the description I gave had breakfasted the description I gave had breakfasted the quickly climbed up to the dickey: his natdashingly dressed, and, it seemed, in gleeful eight miles on the Warminster Road, to usual flow of spirits, the exhibarating fine- good humor. The plot was thickening,

> True, but what was the plot; what catastrophe did it foreshadow, and which were the villains, which the victims of the After the fashion of a malapert youth, he was equally conversant with all topics; play? Puzzling queries these, and not even talked of the Carlist War of Succession. partially answered by the occurrences of then raging in the Peninsula, with Tyrrell the next fortnight: continuous parties of pleasure; visits to the theatres, at which William Rowcliffe was always Lydia Lockwood's beau; and researches on our part at Doctors' Commons, from which it resulted that no legacy, large or small, had laboring under some inexplicable delusion, some other officer to pursue the wearying, bootless investigation, when a lady, de sirous of speaking with me, was an

"No lady, Mr. Waters," exclaimed the told, to insure Tyrrell's discharge. This she offered him; but, much to my surprise, when a few days afterwards I chanced to hear of the circumstance—and I should further that day, I determined upon in- success, and the inflated young man, solve the total that, and hight be into the true, and high to the true, and high true, and h sionately aside, and tearing by her violence the costly veil which covered her face. "I know you very well."

"Lydia Lockwood!" "Yes, Lydia Lockwood, one of the con spirators whom you, stanch blood-hound must have somewhere obtained, and to a large amount, inasmuch, that he and his now inseparable crony David Closs, who had moreover suddenly lost his situation, forthwith entered upon a course of riotous for the law, have been and the substance of the law, have been admiring silence which followed its delivery remained unbroken, till a voice from the dicky called out "Billy, I say, Billy!" there are two conspiracies affoat, in one of which I am a cheater—in the other the cheated."" chested !" "If this, Miss Lockwood, be a confession, let me warn you that all you say may the coach, claimed acquaintance, in that | be-"

the infuriate woman, whose eyes glared ing with shame and rage, was, however, kept determinedly in the direction of sanity over her white, haggard countethe spires of Bath, spite of his remorseless | nance, though her speech was constrainmen does not, fortunately, depend alto-gether upon speech for their interpreta presently amplified into "I say, Billy, your "Be it so; there is no terror for such a mother served me a pretty trick this morn- wretch as I in any 'hereafter' over which of the faces of Mr. Bennett and Clara Ben- ing: fobbed me off with two stale buns at | magistrates have power. Yet will I not son's defalcations, and a more rigorous in- nett was not without its value. Both the price of new ones: a shameful imposi be tamely, unresistingly sacrificed: other father and daughter-I saw only the elder tion, I call it!" uttered in so ludicrous a and guiltier lips than mine shall taste the your practiced cunning."

"Nothing of very great importance."
"Nothing of the slightest importance; nor without me could you do so till it were too late to profit by that knowledge. The avenging lightning will be hurled by my hand—my hand alone! Now hearken, sir, and heedfully. Tyrrell imparted to me was from Closs, and had been received tified; whilst that the previous day's visiting with the coachman—Bath being less that it had come to his friend Closs's carpenter's saw. Next day another sailor tor was in some way connected therewith than half a mile distant—to descend from knowledge, in the course of business, that knowledge, in the course of business, that discovered near the same place a man's The Code in reference to the hunting and one Rowcliffe was entitled to a large sum head. Ten days after, a pair of thighs, killing of deer in the counties of Tyrrell. of money that had lain unclaimed for a then a pair of feet and a pair of arms were long time in the Funds or Consols, and found floating in the Seine, all these sechad congratulated themselves upon the death of "Old Kelp," were surprised and disgusted by the apparition of Kelp the That vulture Levy was waiting to the possibility which to the possibility whic Who is he? Why, William Rowcliffe, a share in the prize, and, that they might twenty sections and packed them into a

Seine on April 29. Mielle was discovered by gendarmes at Barsur-Aube. He plunged into the river Barsur-Aube. He plunged into the river and swam across to the other bank. The church, Harnett county, reduced from decent, good sort of woman: and it's all promise myself in marriage to the susceptible inexperienced simpleton-and, gendarmes did the same, but Mielle was a tematically perverted or dammed up the fountain of justice. Matter for merriment this to any one moderately skilled in physiognomy that had once seen his good looking, good humored, knavish face, it is to show the state of the weeking to scribble this note. I shall, the prohibit fast driving or fountain of justice. Matter for merriment this to any one moderately skilled in physiognomy that had once seen his good looking, good humored, knavish face, it is prohibit fast driving or in moustaches the friend some that being the being the state of the beinetts towards enight out of the beinetts towards enight however, be at the Wrekin to-night, when in the prohibit fast driving or in moustaches the friend some than distanced his pursuers. It however, be at the Wrekin to-night, when in the state of the beinetts towards enight out of the state of the beinetts towards enight out of the state of the beinetts towards enight out of the state of the beinetts towards enight out of the state of the beinetts towards enight of the prohibit fast driving or rich in moustaches the friend some as to Tyrrell's object in turning out of his way, as it seemed he had done, to have some half hour's conference with them, I hired a given the state of the beinetts towards enight out of the state of the beinetts towards enight out of the state of the prohibit fast driving or rich fast driving or rich fast driving or rich fast driving or state of the beinetts towards enight out of the state of the penietts towards enight out of the state of the penietts towards enight out of the state of the penietts towards enight out of the state of the penietts towards enight out of the state of the penietts towards enight out of the state of the penietts towards enight out of the state of the penietts towards enight out of the state of the penietts towards enight out of the penietts with them, work upon him till he con-sented to share the riches that had, as it good swimmer and distanced his pursuers.

"A government man, is he? What kind to be immediately fulfilled, and-but" suddenly broke off the unhappy young a government man?" woman, and, speaking with accelerated

"Ah, there you nonplush me. I only know that Mrs. Rowcliffe told me herself that she had seen letters with 'On His Majesty's Service,' printed on the outside, directed to him, and signed by prime ministers. He's a first-rate nob, depend upon it, and I wish now that I had not carry-combed young Rowcliffe's tender hide quite so roughly."

"It might have been as well, perhaps, not to have done so. Are you sure of work when you reach London?" "Very far from sure, worse luck."

'Where shall you hang out till you do? Perhaps I could recommend you to cheaper

"It ain't likely, mister, that you could, seeing that I shall take up with my married sister, at No. 9 Rupert Street, Haymarket. That is the West End, is it not?" "Well, perhaps so, considering it is neither the east, south, or north end. Is Mrs. Rowcliffe, the widow, a marrying woman, think you?"

"A marrying woman! Oh, I say, mister, you are a squinting round that corner, are you? But it's no go, my friend; Mrs. Rewcliffe's a widow bewitched, though she don't advertise herself in that capacity, and folk generally don't care to talk about A widow bewitched!" Yes; meaning thereby that her husband is gone abroad upon government account, for having once upon a time forgot to sign his right name. But so much talk, do you know, Mister Londoner, makes my throat feel uncommon dry." "No doubt it must do so; and here, though the recreant swain was gone, Alexluckily, is the 'Ring of Bells,' where we ander Champneys Tyrrell remained, who had no longer any hesitation in declaring I left Fentum in the enjoyment of that his devotion for her; and the upshot was. that the scorned and slighted girl, urged agreeable pastime, and walked quickly to the inn, where the "Eclipse" changed by her father, dreading to encounter the sneers that would await her should she rehorses, and the passengers were permitted turn home unmarried, fell into the trap to snatch a hasty breakfast, which, on that morning, was partaken of by John Bennett and his daughter Clara, both in set for her; and on the day after to-morrow Clara Bennett will be Mrs. Tyrrell! Only gala dress, and the young woman-girl, think, will have the honor of being Alexrather-who seemed to be in fragile health, ander Champneys Tyrrell's lady-wife! ho, all smiles and blushes. They were of ho! Well, one can but laugh to think how course there by appointment, and I noticed strange a world this is we live in, and what that Alexander Champneys Tyrrell was fearful slips sometimes occur 'twixt cups and lips. 'Pon my word that is rhyme, if superabundantly gracious towards both father and daughter; whilst the ostensible you take it in time-is it not, clever Mr. lover, Rowcliffe, looked glum and uneasy, Waters ?" The longer I listened to Lydie Lockwood as wishing to be gone rather than prolong or dally with the flying moments.

The criterion by which I judged was, was positively insane; or that-but no.

that was not the excitement of drink; "Your disclosures, Miss Lockwood." gestures in the large chimney-glass of the breakfast-room, obliquely visible from the slightly opened folding-door through hesitatingly began, "would-" "To the devil with your Miss Lockwood !" she fiercely interrupted. "To which, being, of course, anxious that the devil, did I say? ah! true words are neither Bennett nor his daughter should often spoken in jest; false ones by solemn glimpse their late visitor, I furtively peeped at the party whose conversation, amidst oaths! You were going to say, no doubt," she added, with renewed vivacity, "that the clatter of knives and forks, was unintelligible, though not so entirely so but I could foil those wretches without your help. True; but it glances across me that not relieved. that I gladly comprehended Bennett and his daughter had no intention of accom-panying their friends to town. I remained but a few minutes in observation; and, my purpose might not hold, and that it were well to place the matter beyond my own power. I shall not tell you, either, how I discovered all this. Enough that I have discovered it, and by-. Well, goodby the coach, and at about seven o'clock the same evening I saw Alexander Champ-bye; at ten in the morning after to-mor row, remember, if I should forget itwhich, however, is not very likely-that the parson will ask if there is any just cause or impediment why Alexander Tyrrell and Clara Bennett should not be joined in holy wedlock. Just cause! thou all-seeing Christ! She was gone. A few sentences will finish this narrative.

Clara Bennett and her father, apprised by cess made returnable accordingly. me of the true state of affairs, left London for Swindon the next evening; and in the peared this paragraph: "DETERMINED funded. SUICIDE.—Early this morning a young woman was seen to throw herself off Westdrowned. Her name is Lydia Lockwood!"

A FRENCH SENSATION. Ingenuity of Gallic Criminals.

A sensational trial, bristling with truly Borgian enormities, began last week in the Assize Court of the Seine. An exotic individual named Mielle, alias L'Homme chant named Lebon. The evidence shows that Mielle and Le- streams in Forsyth county. oon entered the former's apartments at No. "Help, help!" "A Passassin!" "Au se- lations concerning cours!" A body was heard falling with a &c., for drainages. heavy thud; then came a sort of death rat-

The concierge, terrified, exclaimed, nothing." The concicrge said, "If it is tax. nothing, then open the door." This Mielle Re refused to do. The concierge ran out and got a policeman. Mielle then opened the door of his apartment, and with a pleasant smile, said :- "My dear friend, I have just had a little family quarrel. We are all liable to such quarrels, and mine is now of County Commissioners from day to day happily ended.

The policeman was satisfied and retired. Soon afterward Mme. Mielle entered the The Code. room and seeing her husband covered with blood and his shirt torn to shreds, asked. 'You devil, what have you been doing now?" Mielle said, "A friend of mine | Code of North Carolina. came to see me and got drunk and tried to catastrophe I had to fight him. Hence disappeared. A long black trunk was also statue of Henri Quatre, the upper part of a man's body, the vertebral column bear- town of Louisburg. ing marks of having been severed by a remains of Lebon, the poultry merchant. It now appears that Mielle, while his sawn the body of his victim into about county.

long black trunk, which he threw into the

Raleigh Register.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements will be inserted for One Dollas per square (one inch) for the first and Fifty Cents for each subsequent publication. Contracts for advertising for any space or time may be made at the office of the

RALEIGH REGISTER

NO. 55 second Floor of Fisher Building, Fayetteville Street, next to Market House.

25. An act to amend chapter 140, Laws f 1883, relative to the killing of wolves in certain counties. Reward for killing wolves in Madison Public Acts. Haywood, Transylvania, Swain and Jack CHAPTER 1. An act for the relief of the sureties of William R. Young, late sheriff of Buncombe county. J. R. Jones, surety, authorized to collect in behalf of the sureties on Young's bond, arrears of taxes for 1881, '82 and '83. Usual provisions in case of affidavit of payment. If Jones dies or becomes incapable, sureties may select another.

Bennetts at Swindon—ah! you know all about that, I dare say—under pretence of school district number eleven in Cabarrus procuring William Rowcliffe's address, county. As the citizens of the district desire an act to establish a graded school, an election for special tax to supplement schoolfund, ordered to be stopped 3. An act to repeal section 3424 of The Code, relative to fishing in the waters of White Oak and New rivers.

Tyrrell, having obtained the address, and accidentally mentioned Rowcliffe's pretended accession of wealth, was to af-Section making it unlawful to use in ect, whilst passing himself off as a very White Oak and New rivers nets with meshes less than one and a half inches, reration of the girl; with a view, of course, pealed

4. Act for the relief of W. J. Maddrey. late tax-collector of Northampton county. Authorized to collect arrears of taxes for 1879 and 1880. Usual restrictions. Authority to cease December 31, 1885. 5. An act to give the county of Madison an additional week of court.

Court to begin first Monday of March and August and to continue three weeks. Provision for jurors and witnesses to apterrible scene ensued; the young woman pear and an additional jury for third

In special elections for Congress, returns to be canvassed as soon as Secretary of State notifies members of the Board of State Canvassers that all are received; not later than ten days. 7. An act to establish the Edenton Graded School.

Incorporation of schools-for whites Organization and details. Apportionment of school money. School to be kept forty ho! Well, one can but laugh to think how weeks, if possible. Patrons to elect trustees to succeed those named in the act. 8. An act authorizing the recording of certain wills in the county of Haywood. Certain wills on file in Haywood Superior Court Clerk's office, but record lost. Clerk required to record such wills, with the stronger grew my conviction that she evidence of former probate, and wills deemed duly probated. 9. An act to allow James R. Blacknall, arrears of taxes. Authorized to collect arrears for 1881, '82 and '83. Usual restrictions as to persons making affidavit of payment. Bond not relieved 10. An act for the relief of A. J. Price, sheriff of Union county. Authorized to collect arrears for 1881. '82 and '83. Usual restrictions. Bond

11. An act to amend section 1262 of The Code of North Carolina. Registration of conveyances made valid when probate made before any clerk of a court of record of another State. 12. An act to change the time of holding the Superior Court of Davie county. and providing one additional week for each term thereof.

Davie Superior Court (spring term) to begin last Monday in February and continue two weeks; fall term, last Monday in August, one week; Yadkin, second Monday in March, one week, and first Monday in September, two weeks. Pro

13. An act to authorize the commission ers of Halifax county to fund and pay the following day's evening papers there ap- debt of said county which has not been

Six thousand dollars of bonds authorized: provisions for special tax for interest minster Bridge into the river: she was and sinking fund; $1,500 may be sold to pay small claims. Provision for payment of bonds 14. An act to amend an act entitled "an act to authorize the commissioners of Halifax county to fund and pay the debt of said county," ratified 'twelfth day of March, 1883. Tax to be levied in June instead of August. Action of commissioners in June. 1883. validated. Excess of tax applied to outstanding bonds. 15. An act to amend chapter two hunfemme, alias La Grosse Nana, was tried for | dred and sixty-three of the Laws of one the murder of a well-to-do poultry mer- thousand eight hundred and eighty-two [three], in relation to the drainage of County Commissioners to appoint five 23 Rue de Lyon. Shortly afterward the commissioners, upon petition of one-fifth of concierge heard the voice of a man crying, land-owners on any stream. Usual regulations concerning hands to be furnished,

16. An act to repeal chapter three hundred and thirty-seven, Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, re-"Mielle is murdering somebody!" and ran bealing the act allowing the commission-to Mielle's rooms. Mielle replied, "It is ers of Rockingham county to levy a special

> Repeal of act authorizing Rockingham county to levy special tax. 17. An act to provide jurors for the Superior Court of New Hanover county. Special venire of a number to be designated by Judge to be drawn by member and summoned by Sheriff.

18. An act to amend section 3408 of Gill nets permitted in Scuppernong river, Tyrrell county.

19. An act to amend section 677 of The Corporations (except railroad, banking jump out of the window. To prevent a and insurance) to be formed by setting forth name, business proposed, place, length of time, subscribers' names, capital Mielle then locked his wife in her bed- stock and shares. No tax on benevolent, room and was heard working with carpenter's tools for several hours. Mielle then Clerk may amend articles.

20. An act to allow the Louisburg Rail removed from his rooms at the same time. road Company to settle with the board of This happened last April. On May 9 a directors of the penitentiary for work done sailor fished out of the Seine, near the for said company by convicts, with coupon bonds of Louisburg township or of the Explains itself. 21. An act to repeal section 2832 of

22. An act to prohibit the sale of spiritous liquors within two miles of Lebanon wife was locked up in her bedroom, had church in Franklin township, Sampson

> 23. An act to amend chapter one hundred and thirty-seven, section one, of the acts of 1873 and 1874.

four miles to one mile.

24. An act to prohibit fast driving or riding over iron bridge in Lenoir county.

Misdemeanor to ride or drive over the model of the county though not through malice to the owner,

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY WHAT IT DID IN SIXTY DAYS.

> son, raised to $10. 26. An act to amend section 3850 of The Code. Weights and measures amendments rough rice, 44 pounds; Indian corn, 56 pounds; corn meal, 48 pounds; bolted corn meal, 46 pounds; oats, 32 pounds; peas, 60 pounds; clover seed, 60 pounds; peanuts, 22 pounds. 27. An act to establish the township of North Catawba in Caldwell county. 28. An act to repeal all laws prohibiting the taking of fish from the Catawba river. All laws prohibiting taking of fish from Catawba river repealed, except that use of dynamite, Code §3405, is not repealed. 29. An act to authorize the commis sioners of Swain county to pay certain school claims.

To pay L. M. Medlin $14.45. 30. An act to amend chapter 21, section 3837, volume 2 of The Code. Crows and hawks may be hunted any night except Sunday night.

31. An act to increase the revenue of the State and of counties. Property bid off for United States at internal revenue sales only exempt from taxation when actually used for public

32. An act to amend section 2327 of The Code, so as to include Northampton and McDowell counties within the provisions of said section to obtain redress for stock killed or injured by railroads.

Northampton, McDowell, Wayne, Dup-lin, Caldwell, Rockingham, Alamance, Chatham, Johnston, Craven and Edgecombe added to law making killing of live stock by railroads in certain counties an indictable act on part of president of company, engineer, &c.

33. An act to amend section 2004, chapter 49 of The Code. Tax for charter or amendment of char ter of railroad reduced to $25.

34. An act to prevent stock from running at large and to repeal all laws requiring fences within a part of Alamance Stock or no-fence law for Alamance ounty; usual provisions about impounding stock, tax for fences, etc. To apply Boon Station, Morton's, Faucett's Pleasant Grove, Melville, Thompson's and Graham townships. 35. An act concerning public schools of Surplus school fund, after ten months school, may be transferred from District

No. 1, colored, to White Graded School. Favetteville. 36. An act to amend section 696 of The Code of North Carolina. When an act amending charter of a corporation does not change the business, no tax for such amendment. 37. An act to change the time of holding the Superior Courts in the counties of Carteret and Pender. Carteret, 15th Monday after 1st Monday, March and September. Pender, 8th Monday after 1st Monday, March and September.

Usual provisions about process, recog nizances, etc. 38. An act to amend section 456 of The Code, concerning sales of real property under execution.

No real property to be sold unless notice posted, and four weeks advertisement in newspaper, if one be published in county. Cost not to exceed $3. 39. An act to prevent the riding or driving over the grading of the Taylorsville extension of the Atlantic, Tennessee & Ohio Railroad. Made a misdemeanor to ride or drive over newly graded railroad from Statesville to Taylorsville. Notices of the act to be posted along line. 40. An act to authorize the Board of County Commissioners of Swain county to pay certain school teachers the amounts due them.

County Commissioners to pay teachers for services in 1883, 1884 and 1885. 41. An act to amend chapter 25, Laws of

New Commissioners to drain Second Broad river, Rutherford county. 42. An act to amend subdivision five of ection 985 of The Code. Burning grass or sedge standing on land, indictable. 48. An act to prevent fast riding across bridges in Chatham county. Fast riding across bridges over Haw. Deep, Rocky br New Hope rivers indict-

Fine $5. 44. An act to authorize the Board of Commissioners of Wake county to continue to levy a special tax. Special tax for 1885-'86, extension and part of 1883, applied to debt for iail. 45. An act to amend section two thousand and fifty eight of The Code.

erected across highway subjects to penalty of ten dollars, if maliciously done, indict-46. An act to prohibit fast riding or driving on Charleston bridge across Tuckasegee river in Swain county. Fast riding, &c., indictable; magis-

Injuring, leaving open, &c., gate lawfully trate's jurisdiction. 47. An act to extend the provisions of section one thousand nine hundred and eighty of The Code, relative to the time when railroad corporations shall begin construction of their roads. Limit of time in charters of Carolina and Chesapeake, Rutherfordton, Marion and Tennessee, and Cumberland and Catawba Railroad Companies, within which construction of railroad must be begun, extended two years in each case. 48. An act to amend section 2832 of The

Johnston county excepted from the operation of the law against killing deer in certain months

49. An act to authorize the Commission ers of Davie county to pay certain schoo To pay certain teachers named, for services in 1882 and 1883. 50. An act to amend sections 324 and 326 of The Code. Form of undertakings in claim and delivery, for plaintiff and defendant, al-tered; "damages for deterioration and detention if return can be had," &c., "value at the time of wrongful taking, 51. An act to provide for separate schools for Croatan Indians in Robeson county. Separate schools, Indians to select teach ers. Apportionment of fund, &c.

52. An act to repeal chapter 126

Laws of 1879. Amendments to road law in Alleghany, Ashe, Watauga and Rutherford repeale 53. An act to amend section one thousand and eighty-two of The Code, respecting malicious injury to personal property.

a misdemeanor (Continued on 2d page.)