MELANCHOLY.

By R. S. Coffin.

She dwells by a stream, where the cypress and willow,
Are gem'd with the tears that fall from her eye;
The earth is her bed and the flint stone her pillow,
Midnight her mantle, her curtain the sky.
Her cell is a cave, where the bright beam of morning
Ne'er pierc'd the chill gloom of its wildering maze,
Where the sunshine of joy youth's visage adorning,
Ne'er warm'd with its fire, or cheer'd with its rays.
The moon is her lamp, when the mist-mandled mountain,
She clambers at midnight, and walks o'er its steep,
Or leans on the rock of a crystalline fountain,
And sighs to the tempest that howls o'er the deep.
Her tresses are dark as the wing of the raven,
Her robes are all wet, and her bosom is bare;
Like a barque on the waves, 'mid the whirlwinds of Heaven,
She wanders distracted, or sinks in despair.

PRESIDENTIAL.

For the Raleigh Register.

GENTLEMEN,—A former citizen of North-Carolina, who now resides in the western wilderness, perceives through the medium of the public papers, that the approaching Presidential election, has already produced considerable excitement in your State. Presuming that it may be acceptable to your readers, among whom are many of the friends and acquaintances of my early youth, to know the public mind here upon that important subject—without entering into any discussion of the merits of the respective candidates, I beg leave through your paper, to submit what I conceive to be the state of public opinion in the twenty-second Star of the great confederacy. Perhaps, in no part of the United States, is there a greater diversity of opinion existing, than there is at present in Alabama. This State has been settled in a very short time, by emigrants from every State of the Union, and perhaps from every Kingdom in Europe: each bringing with them their partiality for their native place, and their attachment to the popular candidate, in the section of the Union from whence they came. Hence arises that diversity of opinion, each candidate having his particular friends in this State. One candidate is popular in one part of the State, and another in other parts. And as no certain data has yet been furnished, by which the united voices of the State can be ascertained, the vote of this State must yet remain in some measure conjectural. And as the Legislature have not yet pointed out the mode by which the electors are to be chosen, it seems a little uncertain whether the votes of this State, will be uniform or divided. If they are chosen by district election, the votes may be divided; in any other event, they will be united.
The persons at present held up to public view as candidates, for that high and important office, are, Wm. H. Crawford, Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, John Q. Adams, and John C. Calhoun, each of whom have their particular friends here, and each have their distinct party, except Mr. Calhoun, whose friends have not assumed a distinct party, but appear to walk by the side of Mr. Adams. Admitting the uncertainty that still exists, the most authentic source of information, which has yet presented itself to public view, ranks the standing of the respective candidates in this State, in the order in which they are named above. In the election of Senators to Congress, by our last Legislature, and all other questions which brought this subject into view, this opinion was fully confirmed. In the subsequent election for Representatives to Congress, and Representatives to the State Legislature, as far as any opinion upon the subject has been expressed, the same sentiments prevail. But the Senatorial branch of our State Legislature, forms the best criterion of public sentiments upon this subject, that has yet transpired; they are chosen for a term which will not expire until the Presidential election will be over; they are one branch of the Legislature, which will either choose the electors, or direct the mode by which they shall be chosen. This was well known previous to the election of Senators, and was made a point upon which many of their elections turned. Their opinion upon this subject was fully expressed, in the election of Senators to Congress, during their last session. In this body therefore, consisting of nineteen members, nine were in favor of Mr. Crawford, six of Mr. Clay, two of Mr. Adams, and one for Gen. Jackson.

This appears to be the relative standing of the respective candidates in this State. But it is not believed here, more than two, or at most three of those, will be actually held up in the election: that is Mr. Adams and Mr. Crawford, and perhaps Mr. Clay. And the contest is believed, to rest between Mr. Adams and Mr. Crawford. Mr. Calhoun and Gen. Jackson, after making a division in favour of Mr. Adams, it is believed will be withdrawn, and their weight thrown into the northern scale. Very great exertions are making here in favour of Mr. Adams; and the utmost cordiality appears to exist between the partisans of Mr. Adams, and the friends of Mr. Calhoun—each admitting the other to be their choice. Some exertions are also making in favour of Gen. Jackson, by his particular friends; but the friends of Mr. Crawford and Mr. Clay, are using no endeavors to influence the public mind. They appear willing to rest the success of their candidates, upon their established character and standing. Although considerable animosity exists among the particular friends of the respective candidates, they all unite in sentiments of hostility to Mr. Crawford. From this, it appears evident that he is the person, whose standing in the nation they all dread.

The emigrants from the northern States, are generally in favor of Mr. Adams; and they are principally composed of two classes—Printers and Merchants. Most of the Editors of our public papers, are emigrants from the northern States. Hence arises the zeal with which they advocate the pretensions of Mr. Adams. And many of our merchants are from the northern States; and are very warm advocates of Mr. Adams. The emigrants from Virginia & Kentucky, are principally in favor of Mr. Clay. Although some of the Virginians are in favor of Mr. Crawford. Among the emigrants from those States, are many of our professional characters, lawyers and physicians—and there are more members of our State Legislature, natives of Virginia, than of any other State in the Union. The emigrants from Tennessee are pretty unanimous in favor of Gen. Jackson. The emigrants from North-Carolina and Georgia, are generally in favor of Mr. Crawford. And they, with the emigrants from Tennessee, are principally men whose interest is in the soil—who form the pillars and support of the government. The friends of Mr. Adams have endeavored to resuscitate the old Georgia quarrel, between the Crawford and Clark parties here, but it appears to have had a second death. The emigrants from South-Carolina are divided. Some are in favor of Mr. Crawford, and some are friendly to the interests of Mr. Calhoun, if they could see prospects before him. But they are frank to admit, that his election at present is out of the question. And they candidly confess, (if his name is not withdrawn) that he is, like Dr. W. Clinton, about to destroy his standing, by a premature grasp at power. The larger portion of the citizens of this State, are natives of North-Carolina, many of whom moved to Georgia in early life, and from there, here; and there are many native Georgians, which united, certainly form the strongest party in this State; and they appear disposed, to support Mr. Crawford. Gen. Jackson's friends though pretty numerous, are not influential in the Legislature. Hence arises the probability, that Clay will be most likely to compete with Mr. Crawford. But every view of the subject, which has yet presented itself, from the most authentic sources of information appears to confirm the opinion, that Mr. Crawford will receive the votes of Alabama.

Classical School.

THE subscriber having removed to the City of Raleigh, would take under his charge from eight to ten young gentlemen, for instruction in the Latin and Greek Languages, and in the Elementary Branches of the Mathematics. His wish is, to receive that number into his family as boarders, that their moral and religious deportment and improvement, may be as carefully attended to, as their literary acquirements.

The accommodation provided for them will be liberal and genteel, and the regulations of the school such, as to meet the important purposes of advancement in science.

For the accommodation of the inhabitants of the City, from six to eight day scholars will be taken, but the whole number taken under charge, will be limited to eighteen.

The course of study will be directed on a principle different from the modern mode of tuition, and calculated to make the students sound and thoroughly grounded classical scholars. The school will commence on the first Monday in January next; and there will be two vacations in the year, corresponding in time and duration with those at the University of the State.

The price of board and tuition will be $100 per session paid in advance, which will include every expense but that of books and paper.—The price of tuition alone, will be $30 per session, likewise paid in advance.

The subscriber is happy to have it in his power to say, that his plan has the sanction of the Rt. Rev. the Bishop of the Diocese, and the promise of his co-operation, in whatever may render his services really profitable to those entrusted to his care.

GEO. W. FREEMAN.
Raleigh, Dec. 20, 1823. 11—

In giving the sanction of my approval to Mr. Freeman personally, and to the plan of tuition proposed to be pursued by him, I am happy to present to the Episcopal families in this Diocese, the opportunity of putting a portion of their youth, under the immediate care of a gentleman fully competent to what he undertakes; who in a few months will be in Holy Orders—and engaged both by duty and interest, to the most earnest endeavors to instill into the minds of those under his care, not only the principles of sound science, but those sound and long-tried principles which are the safeguard, of pure and undefiled religion.—In this pursuit, it will be my pleasure to render him every assistance compatible with my other duties.
