BISHOP CHASE.

The Rev. Dr. Chalmers, a Scotch Presbyterian, much celebrated for his eloquence and pious zeal, has been called from his charge in Glasgow to take the place of Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University of Aberdeen. On the 11th November the citizens of Glasgow gave him a splendid Dinner, previous to his leaving the place. Bishop Chase of Ohio, was present. We believe Mr. Chase went to Europe sometime since to solicit aid for a Seminary in Ohio. The Lord Provost of the city, who presided at the table, gave the following toast:—"Health to Professor Chase, and prosperity to the rising Literature of America."

To this toast Bishop C. made an eloquent reply, a part of which follows:—

"Who that contemplates the history of the United States, does not perceive that my country is greatly indebted to Scotland for the habits, and opinions, and character of her citizens and for the genius of her institutions? Many of her early inhabitants, indeed, were Scotsmen. But what is more, many of these eminent for their piety and their learning, taught in our Seminaries, and impressed their own character on their pupils. To mention but a single instance, the memory of Witherspoon is embalmed in every American heart. The traveller pauses amidst the shades of Princeton College. He retires into the church-yard. He stands at the foot of the grave where Witherspoon sleeps by the side of Finlay and Davies, and other men of kindred spirit, who, in their day, presided and taught in that College; and while he thinks of his distinguished zeal and services, he blesses the land that gave him birth, and the University that trained him for so much usefulness.

"Though much in the economy of most of the American Universities has been derived from the English, yet the greater part of the text books in modern literature and science, are the productions of Scottish genius and Scottish erudition. Could I throw open to you this evening the chambers of our students, you would see them studying your philologists, your mathematicians, your historians, your rhetoricians, your philosophers in the various departments of matter and of mind and of morals, your economists, your physicians, and your divines. I need not say that your poets have familiarized to them, the romantic scenery of this land of chivalrous deeds; and altogether with other causes, have increased the thirst for drinking deep at the fountain of ancient song.

"But it is not to the venerable walls of your antique edifices, nor to the castles that look from your cliffs, nor to the streams that roll through your valleys of deathless renown, nor to your mountain torrents, nor to your charming lakes with all their poetic associations, to all the elevating and picturesque scenery of your Highlands, that we look with the liveliest emotions. There is a loftier and more charming range of objects. It is to intellectual and moral qualities and cultivation, that we look with a profounder respect and a livelier interest. I utter the sentiments of the great body of zealous and efficient friends of literature and science, from the Mississippi to the Kenuebeck, and from the Atlantic to Niagara. If I might be permitted to speak in their name, I would say, we hesitate not to aver (in delightful accordance with what I have had the happiness on this occasion, to hear so eloquently expressed) that the interests of science are the interests of religion; the walks of the one should ever be gladdened with the fragrance of the other; and that the highest scientific elevation which an immortal can stand is that which enables him to survey the sacredness of his obligations and the grandeur of his destiny. Surely Christianity, in all its simplicity and loveliness, shrieks not from investigation; and nothing can be more manifest, than that truth has nothing to fear, but much to hope for, from a mind that has long been disciplined in the school of Bacon's philosophy, and purified and enlightened by the spirit of Him whose word is truth."

FROM THE PHILADELPHIA AURORA.

FAUX'S TRAVELS.

As we expected, the liberal minded editor of the London Courier, has seized with avidity, upon the book of this unprincipled libeller, and has transplanted the grossest passages into the columns of his paper, being admirably adapted to the spirit of such a journal. Which choice passages he prefaces as follows:

"A Mr. Wm. Faux, who has lately published an account of his travels in the U. States, presents his readers with the following descriptive sketches of the Courts of Justice and Judges to be met with in that enlightened and elegant Republic, the United States."

We have not space to day for the whole of the selections; however, the following will be sufficient to show the truth and spirit of the whole, and at the same time the despicable character of the London editor; in resorting to such a shallow and barefaced libel to give vent to his narrow minded prejudice.

"I had a long and interesting conversation with a young lawyer the supremus judex H—, living in this town, but proscribed and suspended, for sending a challenge to three agents of his estates in Kentucky, who after injuring him, caricatured him, and then refused to fight.

"The Supreme Judge H—, is a gay young man of 25, full of wit and humorous eloquence, mixing with all companies at the tavern; where he seems neither above nor below any, dressed in an old white beaver hat, coarse thread-bare coat, and trowsers of the same cloth, (domestic) and yellow striped waistcoat, with his coat out at the elbows; yet very cleanly in his person and refined in his language.—What can be the inducement for a young man like him, equal to all things, to live thus and here?

"Judge W. who was a notorious hog-stealer, was recently accused, while sitting on the bench, by Maj. H. the hunter, gouger, whipper, and nose-biter, of stealing many hogs, and being, altho' a Judge, the greatest rogue in the U. States. This was the Major's answer to the question of Guilty or Not Guilty, on an indictment presented against him. The Court laughed, and the Judge raved, and bade H. go out and he would fight him. The Major agreed, but said, 'Judge, you shall go 6 miles into the woods, and the longest liver shall come back to tell his tale.' The Judge would not go. The Major was now, in his turn, much enraged by the Judge ordering him into Court to pay a fine of $10 for some former offense, the present indictment being suffered to drop.

"Judge W. recently shook hands at a whiskey shop with a man coming before him that day to be tried for murder. He drank his health, and wished him well through it.

Classical School.

THE subscriber having removed to the City of Raleigh, would take under his charge from eight to ten young gentlemen, for instruction in the Latin and Greek Languages, and in the Elementary Branches of the Mathematics. His wish is, to receive that number into his family as boarders, that their moral and religious deportment and improvement, may be as carefully attended to, as their literary acquirements.

The accommodation provided for them will be liberal and genteel, and the regulations of the school such, as to meet the important purposes of advancement in science.

For the accommodation of the inhabitants of the City, from six to eight day scholars will be taken, but the whole number taken under charge, will be limited to eighteen.

The course of study will be directed on a principle different from the modern mode of tuition, and calculated to make the students sound and thoroughly grounded classical scholars. The school will commence on the first Monday in January next; and there will be two vacations in the year, corresponding in time and duration with those at the University of the State.

The price of board and tuition will be $100 per session paid in advance, which will include every expense but that of books and paper.—The price of tuition alone, will be $30 per session, likewise paid in advance.

The subscriber is happy to have it in his power to say, that his plan has the sanction of the Rt. Rev. the Bishop of the Diocese, and the promise of his co-operation, in whatever may render his services really profitable to those entrusted to his care.

GEO. W. FREEMAN.

Raleigh, Dec. 20, 1823. 11—

In giving the sanction of my approval to Mr. Freeman personally, and to the plan of tuition proposed to be pursued by him, I am happy to present to the Episcopal families in this Diocese, the opportunity of putting a portion of their youth, under the immediate care of a gentleman fully competent to what he undertakes; who in a few months will be in Holy Orders—and engaged both by duty and interest, to the most earnest endeavors to instill into the minds of those under his care, not only the principles of sound science, but those sound and long-tried principles which are the safeguard, of pure and undefiled religion.—In this pursuit, it will be my pleasure to render him every assistance compatible with my other duties.
