MR. BROUGHAM'S ADDRESS.

We have already announced that H. Brougham, Esq. the great Parliamentary Orator, has been appointed Lord Rector of the University of Glasgow, in the place of Sir James McIntosh. The following conclusion of his address on his Installation, breathes so much excellence and liberality that we cannot withhold it from our readers.

To communicate useful information—to further intellectual refinement—to hasten the coming of that bright day, when the dawn of general knowledge shall chase away the lazy mists, even from the base of the great social pyramid—this is a high station to which man can be raised, and in which the most splendid talents may well press onward to bear a part. I know that I speak in a place consecrated by the piety of wisdom of ancient times to the instruction of youth; yet from this classic ground have gone forth those, who by their genius, not by their ancestry, have been ennobled; and whose illustrious example has made the humblest emulous to climb the arduous steeps, and enter these gates that are burning with the sun. Where BLACK taught, and WATT learned the principles of science, the grand experiment was made to administer to the highest intellectual cultivation that is compatible with the daily toils of man, and to promote a keen relish for the most sublime truths that belong equally to all classes of the human race. To the cultivation of the most important sciences, men of talents are pressing forward from every part of the empire. But I wish the same course to be pursued by men of higher station and weight, and by men of highest rank. Our object should be to extend the bounds of science, by the discovery of new truths, or by new modes of application. Thus the number of scientific men will be increased, and more WATTS and FRANKLINS will arise, and, appearing among these working classes to which WATT and Franklin once belonged, have their thoughts turned to Philosophy. The inventors of new arts will be seen more numerous, and the material difference will be, that the mass of the ignorant multitude being diminished, the body of the former will be increased. It surely can never be supposed, that persons eminent for science and knowledge could be jealous of its general effusion; for the extension of knowledge to the mass of the people could only augment the number of their admirers. To those who feel alarm, as statesmen and friends of social order, I would address a few words. The cultivation of science has never really promoted turbulence or unbelief; but its progress is the forerunner of liberality and enlightened toleration. He who dreads the light of truth cannot resist its power. For he may be well assured that the day is at length come, which must put to flight the evil spirits of tyranny and persecution. As men will no longer suffer themselves to be led into darkness, so will they no more yield to the evil principle of judging their fellow men, not according to the merits of their actions, but the articles of their creed. The great truth has gone forth into all the bounds of the earth, that man shall no more render account to man for his belief, over which he has himself no control. Henceforward nothing shall prevail on us to praise or to blame a man for that which he can no more change than he can the hue of his skin, or the height of his stature. Treating with respect those who differ from us, the only practical effect of the difference will be, to cause us to enlighten the ignorance from which it springs, by teaching them if they are wrong, by improving ourselves if we are right, that the only kind of contest may be to produce the agreement proceeding from full conviction after the fairest discussion. Then every fear for the universal spread of knowledge will be removed, and truth and virtue will watch over the peace of the country; the sure effect will be the removal of the only danger that threatens public tranquillity and the confirmation of the liberties of our native land.

For those tyrants who have shed the blood of mankind to extend their empire, and who instinctively hate the light, let them tremble. Let me then indulge in the hope that, among the illustrious youth who adorn this ancient College, famed for its useful learning, there may be found some one—I ask no more—willing to give a bright example to his nation, by taking the lead of his fellows—not in frivolous amusement, not in trifling studies—but in the truly noble task of enlightening the great mass of his countrymen; and of having his own name encircled with honours most worthy of our rational nature, and pronounced with rapture by millions whom his beneficence has raised from ignorance and vice. This is the true mark of all who prize the enjoyment of lasting happiness, or set a value on a high and unsullied renown. And if the benefactors of mankind, when they rest from their pious labours, shall be permitted hereafter to enjoy as a reward, the privilege of looking down on the blessings with which their toils and sufferings have clothed the scenes of their former existence, do not vainly imagine that in a state of purity and wisdom it will be the founders of mighty dynasties, or the mean followers of tyrants, who have sacrificed to their own aggrandisement, the good of countless multitudes, that will be thus gratified. Theirs will be the praise and the triumph, who can trace the effects of their beneficence in the improved condition of their species, and exult in the reflection, that by their deeds joy beamed from the eyes of the sorrowful. The lovers of truth and virtue, trampling under foot tyranny, and driving ignorance from the world, shall reap the precious though costly fruit of their labours, a recompense far long enduring all the hardships and hazards they encountered here below [great cheering.]

Dying Establishment.

JOSEPH WOODWORTH, respectfully informs the citizens of Raleigh, and its vicinity, that he has rented a house of Capt. Theo. Hunter, nearly opposite the Court House, where he proposes carrying on the Dying Business in all its branches.

The Proprietor has been acknowledged by Merchants and others in New-York, Philadelphia and Washington City, where he carried on the above business 17 years, to be equal to any Dyer in the Union.

Cloths are dyed any color, and finished as imported. Silks, Satins and Crapes are dyed by pattern or otherwise. He dyes Ladies' Dresses, and Gentlemen's Apparel. He scours Coats, & Pantalons, & finishes them in the neatest manner. He takes Camel Hair Shawls, which he cleans, and restores to their primitive color. Leghorn and Straw Hats are dyed and finished in the neatest manner. He also dyes Ladies' Shoes, any color to please. He dyes Ladies' Feathers, any color, and finishes them. And his utmost desire will be to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their commands.

TAKEN UP.

AND committed to the Jail of this county, on the 21st inst. a Negro Fellow, supposed to be a runaway slave, who says his name is Cornelius Jones, and that he has lived in New-York four or five years last past, but cannot, or will not name the state, county or town in which he was raised. He is about five feet seven inches high, black complexion, with a small scar over his right eye, and one near the corner of the same. His dress is a drab pea-jacket, blue round ditto and duck trousers. He was brought to this place in the schooner Hetty, Wright, last from Charleston.—The owner is requested to come forward, prove property, pay charges and take him away, or he will be dealt with as the law directs.
JOS. GARRETT, Shff.
Washington county, Nov. 23, 1824. 19-6m

Dissolution.

THE concern of Hinton & Brame, of this place, is dissolved by limitation and consent. All persons indebted to the same in the State of North-Carolina, are requested to settle with Mr. Edward Watkins, or his agent, and those indebted in this State to pay to John Hinton, who is authorized to grant discharges.
