BALIEIGH BRGISYPB.

NORTHRCAROLINA STATE GAZETTE.

Vol. 11.
Ours are the plant of rair, Unwatp'd by party rage to live like prothers.
Tueday, June 14, 1825.

THE REGISTER

 s publisheu every Tussidx and FaJosEPH GALES & SON, At Five Dollard per annum -half in

From the London New Monthly Magzzine. ILLUSTRIOUS EXAMPLE OF GRATTTUDE.
Ay oung man was passing with his re-(iment though Lyons in 17. he fell sick, and was obliged to remain he fell sirk, and was obliged to remane at an hotel. He was very in sapplied at an hotel. He was very in sapplied with moneys, and his purse was speediwith moneg, and his purse was speedily extausted by the expense his malady occasioned him : his hostess, unly exhausted by the expense his malady occasioned him . his hostess, untouched by his destitute situation, had hoched carred into a granary, where a! hine furriture she allowed him was the furniture she ellowed hine was a palliasse and a chair lond ait the sus. tenance, a little barley-water: refusenance, al ittle barleg-water; refusng to call in the aill of a physician, to avoid the responsibility in whyicich, she apprehended succh an . id ditional charge might invedre her.
the happened that occupied by two Genevese ladies, Madame and Mademoiselle Agiee, who ed in years, Mademoiselle Agiee being ed on years, Mademoiselle Agiee being near fifty. These two Jadies were near fitty. Phese two adies were clerer and well informed, but, ac. cording to the Genevese habit, they cording to the Genevese habit, they did injustice to their real merit by a pretension to soth pretension to something beyond it, and a pedantry completely national. The ond fate of the yeung soldier interested ail the domestics of the hotel, and the particulars of his friendless condition reached the ear of Mademioselle Aniee through her maid, whio acquainted her at the same time with the cruetty of the landiady, who threatened to sond send him to the thospital. The maid succeeded in a wakening the sympathy of her mistress, who immediately sent her mistress, who immediately sent for a physician, informing the hostess ond that she would answer all expenses, and that it was her, pleasure the sick to a confortable chamber. The human Abigai, meanwhile, never quitted the chamber of the invalid whon she the chakmer of the taken so happily under her pro-hat tection.
been aggravated by neglect, the young soldier rium when the physician visisted din, and durint the proceses of changing himis, his apartment, so that, when he recovered apartment, so that, when he recovered his senses, he was greatly astonished his senses, he was greatly astonished to find himself in in well surnished na. Near his bed was a faithful nurse, ing. Nearhis bed was a a aithruinurse, whom he bega to question, but who contented herself with replying that a contented herseif with replying that a friend who tok an interst in him had given orders that he should be properly given oreders that he should be properly attended. Days, and even weeks escaped thus, till at length the young soldier, recovering his strength, insisted on being informed to whom he was indebted for so many benefits. There was in the expression of his countenance nance something that commanded res. pect, which, perhaps even excited fear; the good woman named ber pect, wind, woman named her nuistress, the good and, with all possible delicacy, related and, with al possible delicacy, related which she had found him. He entreated to see Mad. Agiee, that he nuight lighten his heart of some of it gratitude; he was not yet able to rise, nor was he permitted tor read, tout he was nevertheless, sufficiently reinsta was nevertheress, suficiently reinstatod, to feel the welght and weariness of an idle life: Mademoiselle Agiee consented to the demandoe the Aoung soldier, and paid him her first visit; she remained with him only a few moments. .ut promised to return and mo mring him boes till he should be no longer forbidden to occupy himself. He accepted her proposal with hoy, and selected the "Life of Turene, Every day Madenviselle Agiee pass. ed some hours with the convalescent soldier, wholistene eagerly as she read, read, often interrupting her to make boservations which were haw ways just, and some times very strikio. He did atilitary ardor beyond lif led on bow ber jestran, to Madegegan to speak ot his proo ed as eltele said she, "I beliteve we shatt one these diays see you a Colonet." " Ionel !"" replie the he in a tone of "indiglation, "I shall be Ge nation, "I shall be a General - and perhaps perhaps self, as if alarmed at on what he was seir, as in alarmed at whet he was a about to say, and perthaps even internally rebuked himseeff for what he had sind "until now," said Mademoiselle Agiiee.

"I have never asked you a single question, either with regard to you country or family. By your accent, conceive you to be a foreigner, althoug eon." The young man was Bonaparte Mademoiselle Agiee every day be came more and more came more and more interes ed in Na poied, shand when he was quite recoo ered, she equipped him and supplied him with the money necessary to able him to rejoin his reciment. taking leave of his benefactress, roung man was much affected youg man was much affected. lieve me," said he, "I shall never f let what ou have get what you have done for me! You will hear of me." He denarted, and Mademoiselle Agiee and her mother aame of Napoleon became celebrated and Mad. Agiee, in reading the gazettes exulted in the successes exulted in the successes of her protege, who meanwhile, seemed to have en tirely forgotten her. Years passed thas away. when some time be battle of M-rengo, Bonaparte passed through Nyon, a, little town of ofsed the Canton de Vaud, twelye leagues from Geneva, on his way into Italy-he could only stay a few hour could only stay a few hours -he sent an aid de-camp to Geneva, with orders to endire to enquire for a a ady named Agie,very ugly and oll, and to bing her to him, such were his directions. In Geneva, as in other smail towns. every body is known ; and the aid-de-cemp ed in finding Madte. Agiee, sthe was become nearly blind, and very seldorn become nearly bind, and very seldeon gitted her own house. but the name of her her oreosmed to inspire her with new, and she $\begin{aligned} & \text { new strength, and she hesitated not to } \\ & \text { follow his messenger. } \\ & \text { Bonaparte was }\end{aligned}$ impatient, mand impatient, and came to meet his friend on horseback, attended by his staff, as far as Versois; as soon as he perceivei her cartiane, , es purred on to receive her, and the ferig Agee on this rencontre. may better be be imagined tha expresse. "G Gentle. men," said Bonaparte, turning towards his suite, "you see my benefactress, she to whon I am indebted for life ; 1 was deatitite of every thing when she suecoured me. I am happy, and proud to be obliged to her, and I shall never forget it ed two hours at Nyon with Bonaparte, at the Hotel of the Crois at the Hotel of the Croix Blanche, where he detailed to her all his plans, where he detailed to her all his plans, and on taking leave of her repeated the same words he had outered at L Lyons. "You will hear of me." coron of she received from him n token of his existence: but fifteen days before the coronation, General Hullin was announced to Mademoiselle Agiee. He desired her to prepare to accompany him, as Bonaparte was resolved that him, as Bonaparte was resolved that she should winess his glory ; he was most minute orders. Mademoiselle Agiee was permiitted to carry nothing with her beyond what was merely indispensable during the journey, and in spite of her age and infirmities, the day after the Gerenerals arrival she set out.
On arrive ata house in the Place du Carousel, opposite the palace of the Tuileries; there site the palace of the Tuileries; there she found domestics in the livery of she found domestics in the livery or Bornaparte, \& in short, a completely furnished mansion a well tocked ward robe had been prepared for her, Bona parte had recollected even her favorite colors, and omitted nothing he imained wortd give her pleasure; she had a ent long andience of Nappoloon, ;he assigned her, , tesides a house, carriage anḍ domestics, maintained at his expense, an annual incomeof six thousand francs. He continued to preserve towards Ma demoiselle tention, often consulting her even on the most important affairs. On the fail the most important affairs. On the fall of Bonaparte, Mademoiselle Agiee lost the house and advantanases he had conferred upon her, but have reason to believe that her pension was always regulariy paid by the anents of Naporeon till her death, which happened Ibelieve in 1822 . It is from herself that I received the details I have given: it se descanted upon her hero; eren withoutc partaking her enthusiasme, it was impossible not to listen to her inter sposibie not to to listen to her with sentiments belon to and generous sentiments belong to our intilliectual existence, no matee what country we belong to, or what are our oplaions, $\qquad$
Oxford Male Academy. $T$ HE Examination this cay chosel. An rat

The Sub

 inches high, with both of her hind feet white abore the fetolo, nad some white in her forehead ; supposed to be six or seven years

 Notice.

$\mathbf{W}_{\text {ford }}^{\text {IL, be sold at the Courthouse in Rock }}$

aosts sce thereon for the year 182, with cot aces given in by Berjamin Mitchell, adjoining Arthur Larter, on Ararat

Nathan ourner unknown, cadjoining

Milton Masonic Lottery Authorised by Special Act of A ssembly, for the benefit of GOLDEN FLEEEEE LODGE, SCHEME.

