THE PIANO.

As the last thrilling notes of "Home, sweet Home," floated round the dear circle, in which were concentrated a little world, or a little knot of beings who were all the world to each other, an audible sob broke the enchantment which this touching little song, accompanied by the sweet voice of my young friend, had cast around me. It burst from the bosom of one who had been severely disciplined in the school of adversity—one who had beheld the wreck of all her youthful hopes, without one murmuring word against the God who guides the storm—but now the sudden reflection that she heard, for the last time, the soft melody of her beloved daughter's voice, accompanying the melting tones of her piano—saw, for the last time, her fingers sweep the speaking keys—beheld her youthful happiness, unconscious of the blow that awaited her, a sigh involuntarily escaped her, and the startling tear told of sudden anguish. She turned to me, and said, in a low voice, "I wish I could have saved Amelia's piano—it will break her heart to part with it.
Poor thing, she little thinks that she will no more sing and play to charm away my melancholy."

The unconscious girl closed the instrument, and remarked, "did you observe, dear mamma, that my piano wants tuning? and you will allow Mr.
N. to come and tune it to-morrow?" A fear stole down the cheeks of my respected friend.

"Are you ill, my dear mother?" inquired Amelia, "or has any thing occurred to distress you? If so, do not hide it from me; for rest assured, no deprivation, no exertion, no suffering can afflict me like seeing you unhappy.
I have just been thinking as soon as my piano is tuned, I will beg Mrs.
N. to let me undertake to instruct her two little girls in the rudiments of music; and who knows, dear mother, but in time, it will be in my power to support you, with the assistance of my valued instrument?"

I gazed for a moment with feelings of surprise and admiration, on the glowing, animated face of this lovely, ingenuous girl, and never felt my own want of fortune so keenly as at that moment.
A silent ejaculation involuntarily rose to heaven, that the Almighty would open some way to save poor Amelia's piano from the fangs of a rapacious landlord. The hour for separation had already arrived; and, after imprint-ing a warm kiss on Amelia's cheek, and whispering in the ear of my afflicted friend "Still trust in the Lord our God," I left the house with feelings I cannot describe.

With the dawn I repaired to the auction rooms in — Street, and waited, agonizing for the sales. The crowd was large, as several valuable articles of furniture and some elegant paintings were noticed in the handbills. I cast a glance over the rooms, and in one corner stood a female of exquisite form —her face was hid from public view by a large calash—her head was averted, and rested against the window, out of which she appeared to be gazing at the busy crowd below. Near her stood a piano. One glance was sufficient. I hastened to the spot, and, in a low voice, articulated, "Amelia!—d, is this you?"

The distressed girl clasped my arm, and burst into tears.
"Yes, my good sir, I little thought, when you left us last evening, that our cruel landlord would this morning seize my piano, and bring it to be exposed for sale. O, my dear sir, cannot you devise some means to save it for me?"

At this moment the auctioneer called for the instrument, and it was removed into the centre of the room for examination. Several gentlemen remarked that it was a sweet-toned instrument but out of tune. The poor girl hung on my arm in silent grief. The bidding commenced. Foremost in the crowd stood the son of Mrs. H—d's detested landlord. He bid, after some debate twenty-five dollars, and there was a pause. Near Amelia stood an interesting youth, evidently unconcerned in the event of the sale of the piano, examining some fine paintings that were soon to be exposed. The idea that this cold, unfeeling being was going to purchase, undisputed, this favourite, almost idolized article, for the trifling sum of twenty-five dollars, made her for a moment forget where she was, and she exclaimed—

"Must the only thing I value be sacrificed for this pitiful sum, without effecting one object?"

The youth started, gazed on the beautiful girl one instant, and bid one hundred dollars! and the piano was immediately struck off to Mr. Seymour.

The moment the name of Seymour was called, my heart felt the sound, and I recalled the features of my old friend and companion in arms, Maj.
Horatio Seymour. I saw this young man was his own son, ever ready to answer to the calls of humanity.

The piano was ordered back to the humble dwelling of Mrs. H—d.
"Heaven will reward you, Sir!" was all the lovely girl could articulate when she heard this order.

"One tune from its fair owner, is all the reward I ask," replied the young enthusiast.

He accompanied me to my grateful friend's habitation, where the sweet voice and artless manners of Amelia completed the impression her beauty had made upon his heart. A few short months saw her and her excellent parent restored to that rank they were made to adorn.

I often, in my daily rambles, call and take a look at the happy circle assembled round Seymour's fire side.
Amelia still plays "Home, sweet Home," while her affectionate husband frequently remarks—"To the piano I am indebted for all my happiness."

Classical School in Hillsborough, N. C.

THE REV. WILLIAM HOOPER, respectfully informs the public, that he has associated himself with Mr. JOHN ROGERS, who has been for several years Principal of the Hillsboro Academy, in the future conduct of this Institution.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Trustees to the joint care of the Hillsborough Academy, announce to Parents and Guardians, that they will exert themselves to make thorough Scholars of those who may be committed to their care. The School will be conducted on the plan of the most approved Classical Schools in our country, of which the subscribers have taken pains to obtain particular information. Youth will be prepared for the Sophomore Class in the University. The School will be divided into four or five Classes, and none will be admitted but those who become members of one of the regular classes; this school being intended for those whose object is to obtain a complete and liberal education.

Tuition, Thirty Dollars per annum, or Fifteen per session, to be paid always in advance. Board may be had at Ten Dollars per month. The exercises of the ensuing session will commence on the first Monday in July.
