FROM THE CONNECTICUT MIRROR.

Sir—I have seen in the newspapers some liberal encouragement offered by way of premium, for the best story, the best poetry, the best essay, &c. I am in want of money, but I have mislaid the papers, and though I am confident of success, I know not who to call upon for the pay. As you probably exchange with those gentlemen, I hereby empower you to publish the following and receive the money. Please put it in the Savings Bank till the next return of the mail to the Wind Gap, near Cat-tail Brook.

SCRIBO.

Doctor Faustus, or whoever else it was that first set up a printing office, discovered a consciousness of the black art, or what Sir Walter Scott calls grammar of his trade, by adopting the nomenclature of Ptolemy for the instruments, the depositories, the functionaries, and the familiars of his inky occupation. But there was another strange genius, more ancient still, whose name has got mislaid among the rubbish of chronology—videlicet, that mischievous imp, who first looked, with eyes of speculation, upon a goose-quill, and wondered if it could not be made into a Pen.

I forgive him, in part, on the score of his thoughtfulness; for if he could have foreseen, when he was scraping off the furze with the back of his penknife, what sort of tool it would prove, he would have thrown away the barrel, and kept the top to feather his arrow with, as the most harmless weapon of the two. As it was, he split the quill, drew it to a point, nibb'd it, and gave it to the world to help or harm it, like most other things, according to the use they might put it to.

The inventor of this strange engine had hitherto employed himself in piping on straws, and whistling on reeds; but the music was fleeting. It languished upon the air, and expired upon the echoes, and there was no means, after the pipe had stopped, to arrest and embody the sound. While the mischief-loving elf was intent on his contrivance, the Sylphs and the Dryads, the Graces and the Muses, the Fates and the Furies, were looking anxiously on. The Pen was made, thrown down in triumph, and taken up and examined by this mixture of anxious spectators. The Graces thought it was a pity to spoil a feather to make a pen; the Muses after some doubtful consultation, made their marks to a certificate in favour of it; the Furies laughed out right like maniacs; and the Fates bought a quarter of a hundred a piece to begin with.—The genius who invented it pocketed his money, and went off to collect his sheep, as careless of the consequence, as that inconsiderate wretch who contrived gun-powder. There was, in those days, no Patent office, and no District Clerk; and this invention, unlike modern ones, was a great while before it took.

Though the world was already full of Ink, green, yellow, red and black, (for Walkden has no more claim than Day & Martin, for ink powder,) yet the great men were too active or restless in body, and too thick-fingered, to set themselves down, and learn to handle so diminutive a weapon as a goose quill. Accordingly, all the kings, heroes, bards, statesmen, warriors, poets, knights and minstrels, either did not write at all, or reverently made the mark of the cross, and left some clerk to fill up the names, like the treaty-making Indians of this Christian land—Achilles, and Ajax, and Hector—the heroes of the crusades—Alaric the Goth and all the other Goths, were as irritable as any other mortals; but when indignation came near bursting them, they kept in their gull, and if it would work over, the redundant surplus was committed to the ear of some Vidus Achates, or they would breathe among the reeds that malignancy of temper, that would have blasted acres of but-rushes.

But another age has more than realized the most sanguine expectations of the first maker of the pen. We live, say all the orators—we live, say all the addresses—we live, say all the discourses to all the societies—in the most interesting, the most improved, the most enlightened age; Vivimus! To live now, is living indeed: To live now a year, (no allowance for any by-spot, where a poor dog might as well have lived and rotted a thousand years ago,) is as good as to have lived a century, in the most high and palmy state of Rome. Now, the Heroes, by land and sea the fortunate and unfortunate, the received and the rejected, the appointed, the disappointed, the contented, the discontented, and the malcontented, run to the Inkstand. All of them, as their several occasions require, resort to pen, ink and paper; and the pen is dipped in blood, gall or controversy, as occasion requires.

Writers and talkers of all sorts agree in abusing Lawyers; yet as soon as they are in any trouble, fighters, politicians and all, they resort forthwith to the most obnoxious part of lawyer's trade, and enter into special pleadings at once. Formerly, the commander of a fleet, after a successful battle, wrote a short note to the Department under which he acted, and referred to the capture of ships as per margin. Now—is the warrior angry? he sheathes his sword, and mends his pen. The man who suggests a contingent duel, alarms the horizon by writing letters to his friends. The disappointed candidate writes; the deprived culprit of a court martial writes; one would suspend public opinion; one would alter it after it is made up; one pleads in abatement; another moves an arrest of judgment. Some refer to documents fifty years old; others deny facts of recent date. Thus are we visited and favored with sheet after sheet, paper after paper, and document after document—letters, statements, & preliminaries—correspondences, arguing of points, vindications, defences, and final acquiescences, from Generals, Governors, Captains, Secretaries, &c. &c. The ultimate appeal is to the grand tribunal of public opinion. That tribunal is tired out. In Jack Cade's time a man was hanged with an ink-horn about his neck, because he could write. What awful havoc would such misguided men have made with the writing materials of the present time; when there are forty letters for one quarrel, ten Courts Martial to every expedition—and documents, defences, and expenses without end, in a time of profound peace, when there is not even a chance for a battle. The lazy world have turned Lawyers and scholars, and the trade of both has been long since over-stocked. Docti indoctique scribimus omnes.

From the Baltimore Morning Chronicle.

Industry—Its Dignity and Usefulness.

There is no condition in life better calculated than that of a laborious mechanic. For a man to feel and realize a proper sense of his own dignity and independence. He retires to his meals from the fatigues of the day, with a full conviction that his sturdy hands have earned the refreshment of his table.—He feels that his wealthy neighbor cannot enjoy even his opulence without his assistance. His time never hangs heavy upon his hands, and his robust frame and his hardy sinews attest how essential this exercise is to the health of his body. He progresses onward, as it were by inches, to competence, and he learns the practical lessons of economy & frugality, in his family expenditures. Removed from the vices and gorgeous temptations of fashionable life, he knows how to bridle his ambition; he feels the blessing of his family hearth, and can look without a sigh on the gaudy pageantry of the day. This is true moral independence—this curb on our unruly desires, this temperance in the exercise of all our wishes, are the very materials that constitute valuable citizens.—It should be the pride, as undoubtedly it is the right of a laboring man, to indulge in such ideas. Boys that are put out as apprentices to a mechanical profession, are taken many times from a state of poverty and ignorance, & prepared for fulfilling afterwards stations thus honorable. Would they but properly comprehend the full extent of such benefits, they would see nothing but their future honor, dignity and independence, in their own indentures.—They are learning, not as they are too prone to believe, the alphabet of servitude and degradation, but the rudiments of faith, industry, punctuality, economy, and all those virtues that decorate and adorn the family hearth. They are now giving pledges to their masters of what their future characters will be, when they, in their turn, will be called upon to perform their part on the grand theatre of human life.

Desirable Family Residence, for sale.

THE melancholy event which has occurred in my family, induces me to offer for sale my beautiful and elegant Villa, formerly W. R. Johnson's, within ten minutes walk of the centre of Warrenton.

The tract of land contains sixty-two acres of which forty are in woods and heavily timbered with oak and hickory, sufficient to furnish fire wood for a large family forever with care and management. The soil is free, fertile and productive—the water excellent and abundant—the situation high, airy, pleasant and healthy. The improvements are an admirably built and finished, and most commodious Dwelling House, containing 3 rooms below & 2 above stairs, a dry and comfortable Cellar and several convenient closets; a new framed Quarter 36 feet by 18 with four large rooms and a chimney in the centre; a Kitchen, a Carriage House and Stables, an Ice House, a Well of excellent water at the door, a handsome Yard and Garden well paled in, together with convenient lots under good fences. And besides other Fruit Trees, 450 Peach and 200 healthy Apple Trees, of the most delicious sort; in short, every thing that can be desired by a family.

Nothing but the severe bereavement with which I have been visited, could have tempted me to part with this desirable and valuable property.

I am anxious to sell, and will grant a liberal credit for the whole or any part of the purchase money. Possession can be had at any time. Application can be made to Gen. Robert R. Johnson, who is fully authorized to sell; or to Lands for Sale.

I offer for sale, and the purchaser may expect a bargain, the following tracts of Land, viz. One tract, containing 250 acres, on Beaver creek, 17 miles west of Raleigh, adapted to the culture of Corn and Cotton. One other tract of 150 acres, in Chatham county, 21 miles west of Raleigh, well improved. There are on this tract, a good Dwelling House with convenient Outhouses, a good Store House, a large Distillery, two excellent Cotton Gins in a framed house, and a fine thriving Orchard. I have also several other pieces of Land lying on White Oak and Beaver Creeks, which I will sell to suit purchasers in parcels from 15 acres to 300. Application to be made to me living near Prince's Bridge, in Chatham county. ALESEY GOODWIN. Sept. 28. 95 3t

30 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, three NEGRO Men, viz. Frederick, Tom and Pompey.

FREDERICK, of black complexion, about 18 or 20 years of age, 5 feet 5 or 6 inches high—of thin visage, speaks slow when spoken to, no visible mark as I recollect of except I think that bright fire, finger is stiff—he absented himself on the 20th of March last—Frederick is from Virginia.

TOM is of a tawny complexion, 30 or 35 years of age, 5 feet 10 or 11 inches high, black eyed, and as well as I recollect is lame in his left leg, occasionally small by the white swelling, and a scar on one of his wrists, occasioned by a cut of a knife. Tom is from North-Carolina.

POMPEY, is very black, and some of his front teeth out; about 5 feet 5 or 6 inches high, has a scar over one of his eyes, or on his forehead, and speaks very quick when spoken to. Pompey is from Charleston, and formerly belonged to John Billings of that place. I think it very probable that they have free passes given to them, as it has been practised in this vicinity.

The above reward will be paid to any person who will deliver the said Negroes to me living in Fairhill district, S. C. or lodge them in any jail so that I get them.

JOHN HARRISON. August 5. 81ozm

Valuable Property FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishing to remove to the Western Country, offers for sale his large two-story Dwelling House and Lot on the corner of Fayetteville & Cabarrus streets. The house contains six rooms, a porch and piazza. The lot has on it a Well of delightful water, a large Garden, Stable, Granary, and every necessary Out-house.

Also two Store Houses and Lots on Fayetteville Street, a few doors below the Northern Bank, considered as good stands for business as any in the city.

Also two vacant Lots, Nos. 5 and 52, both very handsomely situated, and each of them convenient to a good Spring. Lot No. 5 fronts the Governor's house and has on it a large and handsome grove of Oaks.

He would also sell his Plantation 9 miles N. W. of Raleigh, on the Hillsborough road, containing 855 acres. He would divide the tract to accommodate purchasers. The soil is fertile and productive, and as well watered as any land in the county. There are about 75 acres in cultivation, & some fine meadow land. There is on the land an excellent Mill Seat well situated for custom.

Also a tract of Land lying a few miles S. W. of Haywood, in Chatham county, containing 500 acres.

He would also sell his Pew in the Presbyterian Church in this city.

He deems further particulars unnecessary, as it is presumed no person would purchase without first viewing the premises.

All or any part of the above property he would dispose of on very liberal terms, for cash, or young Negroes would be received in part payment.
