State News.

The Wilmington Herald, of Saturday, says:

THE ACCIDENT AT THE SOUND.—Some light mention was made in this column yesterday, of an accident which happened at the sound on Saturday last. Our information at the time was of a very limited nature, and we could not give such particulars as we wished to do.

We regret much to be compelled to state here that the entire party were drowned, but such is the sad fact. We stated yesterday that one man, whose name we ascertained to be GUNSEL, was drowned. Since then we have learned that all five of them lost their lives by the accident, which was witnessed by other parties, who were, however, at too great a distance to lend them any assistance.

From the same paper, we learn that the colored people of Wilmington, were to celebrate the anniversary of the emancipation proclamation on Tuesday. Also, that a committee of gentlemen have gone to Washington city, for the last two weeks, to intercede with the President for the pardon of Hon. Geo. Davis, of Wilmington, but with, what success has not yet transpired.

From the same paper, we extract the following:

St. JOHN'S ANNIVERSARY.—Last Wednesday, the 27th inst., was celebrated by the numerous lodges in this vicinity, with the ceremonies appropriate to the occasion. It was the anniversary of St. John's day in the Masonic calendar.

A procession was formed about 10 o'clock, in front of the Masonic Hall, and proceeded by a full band of music, the members of the lodge and choir, formed in order, and marched to the City Hall, where the officers of the lodge for the ensuing year were inaugurated. Masonic songs and odes were sung, and an address was delivered by K. W. YORK, Esq., of Chapel Hill, who had been chosen orator of the day.

ATTEMPT AT BURGLARY.—Four white men, who refused to give their names, were arrested yesterday on Dry Pond, for an attempt, on the previous night, to enter forcibly the grocery store of Mr. Hancock. The attempt to gain an entrance was frustrated, and yesterday the police made a descent upon the gang and succeeded in arresting four of them.

The Raleigh Standard, in its Thursday's issue, closes a long article on the change of Governors as follows:

The difference between the powers of Governor Worth and Governor Holden we understand to be as follows: Governor Holden was a Governor provided by the President, under the Constitution, for the people of the State, to conduct the civil administration thereof in accordance with the will of the President. Governor Holden was not bound by either the Constitution or the laws of the State, for no oath of any sort was required of him. In many respects his power was absolute, and there could be no appeal from his action except to the President himself.

We shall make no no factious opposition to the administration of Gov. Worth. Though we object most decidedly to the "fortuitous concurrence of atoms" (to use the felicitous expression of Lord Palmerston on an important occasion), by which he was elected; yet if he should prefer true Union men in his appointments to office, and give a cordial and unwavering support to the administration of Andrew Johnson, he will find no enemy in this journal.

Quiet generally pervaded the city since the commencement of the holidays up to night before last, when his satanic majesty commenced his operations, in a small way, employing as his agents some of the vagrant gentlemen of color about the streets, as exemplified in the police court proceedings, before his Honor, Mayor Harrison, yesterday.

The first case was that of Andrew Cupper, (g. o.) for behaving Esther Vine, (l. c.) most barbarously with a cudgel. It appears in evidence that the said Andrew Cupper and Esther Vine labored under a matrimonial engagement, and a dispute arose between them as to where the ceremony of melting them together should take place, he insisting on her accompanying him to Richmond County and unite her destinies with his there, and she as earnestly insisting on lighting the hyemal torch before starting. Ungentle arguments succeeded soft persuasion, and the dispute culminated in his giving her the aforesaid husbandly cudgelling.

Aaron, without a surname, was up for stealing seven bales of cotton yarn from R. S. Tucker, Esq. The evidence against him was so clear and pointed that Aaron made a frank confession of the robbery, and was judged, in default of bail, to answer.

Edward, also without a surname, formerly the property of R. S. Tucker, Esq., was up for some petty stealing, but was informally let off for the present on the intercession of his former master, and a promise to repent and reform.

Washington Craven and Tobey Nelson (g. c.) were called to answer a charge of an affray. Tobey and Wash., in company with another (g. c.) had retired for a quiet game of "fold alog," Wash. rest all his money, amounting to the sum of fifty cents, greenbacks, and asked Tobey to lend him a stake. Tobey refused, although he owed Wash. fifty cents upon a former transaction.

Extraordinary Case of Self-Destruction. There are men who can perpetrate a great offense, simply that they may achieve notoriety by the act, and such a man seems to have been the wretched John Illinois, who on Saturday hurried himself out of existence by swallowing a dose of laudanum, at Chicago, Ill. The circumstances are detailed by the Times as follows:

"The man Illinois had been employed as a clerk in the office of Mr. Charles R. Vandercook, lime manufacturer and dealer in cement, No. 94 Monroe street. He was a native of Rome, N. Y., where his family at present reside. He evinced during the trial, and also subsequently the keenest interest in the fate of the two men who were executed on Friday, and seemed to feel something of disappointment when he saw that their names had become so notorious.

For a number of years Illinois had boarded in company with a man named Samuel Barnes. To him he said that he had been an unfortunate in business. He had made some money at one time, but had again lost it. He had gone to California, and been unsuccessful there. He had begun to come to the conclusion that his life was a mistake, when the excitement, created by the execution of Corbet and Fleming, commenced.

Soon after the fatal draught, Barnes and Mr. Briggs, the proprietor of the place, brought three doctors to see him. He acknowledged to them all that he had taken the poison, but would not look at any medicines they could offer in the shape of antidotes. He wished to die, he said, and he was determined that he would not live. He had taken the poison with perfect deliberation. He had a rope fastened up in his office which he had intended should be the means through which he should escape the torments of this world.

The deceased was 57 years of age, his family are all wealthy, and there can be assigned no cause for the suicide, but the gloomy and morbid thoughts which had arisen during his misfortunes, acting upon a natural weak temperament, instigated him to the commission of this crime, for which he alone has had to pay the penalty.
