"PEOPLES' MARKET."-The aforementioned place has become one of the institutions of this city. The Peoples' Market has had a great deal to contend with, but those immediately interested and connected therewith have persevered and by their perseverance and energy have at last succeeded in establishing a first-class market. We desire to call the attention of our people to the fact, that almost every article, from a barrel of pork or flour to a quart of scuppernong grapes can be purchased at the Peoples' Market. Now when you enter the market house at the upper end, if you will direct your optics to Nos. 8 and 10, you will be almost sure to see just what you desire, but in the event you should not, by inquiring of either of the gentlemanly proprietors of said "Stalls," Messrs. Hanson & Edwards, they will soon produce the desired article.

The Local of the TIMES desires to acknowledge his obligation to the above-named gentlemen for a favor in the shape of all kinds of market "truck," ranging from honey-comb to reastingears. Such favors are always appreciated.

THE WORLD MOVES .- We walked round to the custom house yesterday and were pleased to find two steam engines under headway at the foot of Pollok. We like the music of steam power, it sounds so much like business.

DESERVE LIBERAL PATRONAGE.-WOOLLOOTT & Tinkes deserve the sympathy and support of the community. It is only a few months since they were burnt out at the foot of Pollok, losing nearly every thing they had But Phenix like, they have risen from the ashes, purely through dint of energy and perseverance until they now have a full supply of provisions and groceries, and are doing a good business. This is right, and such men deserve the support of any community that may be favored with their presence.

LETTER OF GEN. HEWARD TO HIS AS-SISTANTS.

WAR DEPARTMENT. BUREAU REFUGEES, FR'DM'N & ABAND. LANDS, WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 3, 1866. [CONCLUDED.]

The apprentice and vegrant laws of the States are used in many localities for the oppression of the blacks, and anything less than the power with which an officer is now invested, would fail to secure the freedmen from the evil effects of these laws, executed by men who fail to understand the rights of the freedmen. To understand what all this labor of Bureau officers in the courts is worth to the freedmen, you must remember the total impossibility in many localities of obtaining attorneys for freedmen at any cost, as it is considered a disgrace to defend negents of this Bureau are the great support of the minds of the freedmen is constantly wearing away among all classes, yet the records of my office prove to my mind conclusively, that the agents of this Bureau are the great support of the matter be refer to a special committee. The The record of what all these officers are doing in the many cities of the South, comes to me in various shapes; yet it is difficult to say more than that they are there, demanding for the negro that protection for his life and property which the Government intends he shall have, and that from many localities where they have been removed, for any reason, complaints innumerable come to my ears of outrages and oppression. It is a well established fact, that the presence of an officer exercises a wholesome effect n restraining the bad passions of the evil-minded, and the extravagances of the old prejudices against the freedmen, who are exercising priviges to which they are now entitled. The civil rights bill, passed by Congress, intended to protect the Union men of the South and freedmen, would at present fail in its objects, without Bureau officers to aid in extendng its provisions to all parts of the States. The bill extending to the freedmen of the South the benefits of the Homestead Law, is materially aided in its execution by Bureau officers who gather information of the lands and explain to he freedmen the advantages to be secured under

Every agent of the Bureau is required to receive the claims of every white or colored soldier who presents himself, make out all necessary papers, prepare the claims for collection, and papers, prepare the claims for collection, and forward it to the proper officer here who attends to the collection and payment to the soldier without one cent of charge. Thousands of claims are coming up in this way, and I flatter myself that the many soldiers scattered through-out the South will find this a reliable agency by which they can collect their claims without loss or charge of any kind.

The matter of finding employment for freedmen, not plantation laborers, has been carried on extensively by all the Assistant Commissioners, and is an important part of their duties so long as freedmen remain ignorant, and are liable to persecution from any class of citizens. The following figures for the District of Columbia will couvey an idea of this work. In all the large cities of the South, such agencies are kept up for securing homes and employment for poor whites and blacks.

RATIONS.

The following are the statistics with reference to the number of rations issued to whites and blacks for one year. From June 1st 1865 to June 1st 1866, —2,901,767 rations were issued to whites, 7,141,012 issued to freedmen.

Another fact worthy of notice is the grade freedmen, while there was a constant increase of dependent whites. 200,000 more rations were issued to whites in May 1866, the last month in the table, than in any other month; also that throughout the South the issue of rations to whites and blacks is now about equal. The avarage number of people aided daily by this issue is about 45,000. A great deal has been done in the way of clothing the extremely desti-tute by a distribution of old army clothing and goods captured from the enemy.

I believe the foregoing statements answer your questions substantially. By these statements, you will see that the eleemosynary features form but an item of the work committed to my hands. Very Respectfully

Your ob't servant, O. O. Howard, Major Gen'l Commissione

We observe that the Southern papers, which mve suddenly begun to consider the policy of adopting the proposition made by Congress, call attention to the absence of any pledge on the part of Congress that the ten States shall be admitted upon ratifying the amendment. They do not go quite so far, although they discuss the subject in nearly the same spirit, as a correspondent of our own, who writes that there is very little objection to the amendment itself, provided it appears that its ratification will secure the end of admission into Congress. There can be no question that the amendment was proposed with the distinct intention of subg it as the final condition of restoration. Its legislative history shows that the failure to present this in express terms was occasioned by a difference of opinion on the question whether the States ratifying should thereupon be admitted singly, or should wait until the amendment had become a part of the Constitution,the majority being willing to assent to the sufficiency of the conditions under the circumstances. And the action in the case of Tennessee showed conclusively the disposition of Congress to act upon the basis which it had laid down. But nevertheless, as we have said, Congress did fail change in diet, nonconvenience, and no expofor the reason stated to make any express declaration that the acceptance of this proposition in its action, and he from all injurious proper should be enough. And it is a remarkable fea-ture of the blind folly which has characterized the Southern politicians in this as in previous crises, that they seem not to have considered the position in which this left affires, in case the bitterness of renewed agitation should incline the Northern people to more stringent demand. They appear to have relied implicitly on the ability of the President to force the immediate admission of the Southern delegations into Congress, and elated by their supposed triumph in making him a tool for their own purposes, to have forgotten altogether that in case the people proved too strong for the one-man power, as is apt to be the case now-a-days, they were not quite sure of being able to return to the proposition which they had once rejected with

The result is that to day no man or organ opinion can say anything more of Congress is finally accepted. Many can and do say that they are willing that such a course should be pursued. The National Union Committee virtually declare that they regard the proposition as a condition, compliance with which is to entitle the States to restoration. The Union Convention of New York declare the same thing in still stronge terms. And a journal so Radical as the New York Tribune says that it "looks to see the amendment ratified and most, if not all, the Southern States restored to representation" in the Fortieth Congress But, unfortunately perhaps no authoritative pledge stands upon the record to bind the people or Congress to persist in hold-ing before the South an offer the liberality of which is so ill appreciated. We had the fortune the other day to be as cused by a leading Southern journal of "cold ruffianism," for warning Southern men that continued agitation and strife might subject them to harder conditions than the present. At the risk of being accused of something even worse than "cold ruffianism," and if possible more foreign to our usual consciousness, we must declare that whether the proposition made by Congress continues to be recognized as sufficient by the majority, depends upon the Southern people themselves more than upon anybody else. They mistake greatly, and cruelly wrong themselves by the mistake, if they suppose that the people of the North have any desire for vindictive measures, and especially for that confis-cation and spoliation of which Southern politicians now sometimes chatter. But they may rest assured that the Northern people have enough of human nature not to be unaffected by the temper in which a proposition of this sort is taken up, after being bitterly fought. When our people are compelled to face even the chance of a new attempt at revolution in our government, undertaken with the aid of the South and on its behalf, they may be expected to inquire closely into the probable intentions with which their proposition is accepted. It is not too late for the Southern people to accept it in good faith and to show that they do so. They can even now retrace the path in which they have been walking for the whole summer. But we must renew our warning, that without a better comprehension of the situation than has yet been shown on their part, and a material change in their avowed sentiments towards the Union, and without an awakened sense of their duty towards their country and even to themselves, they will find the Northern people apt to believe that the sudden submission to terms after a decisive defeat at the polls is stimulated by some purpose of obtaining new leverage against the Constitution, protection from which is not to be left to chance alone.-Boston Daily Advertiser.

Death of Three Females by Starvation. A letter from Montgomery, Alabama, dated Sept. 16, says:

About two or three weeks ago, in a house near the Fair Grounds, a woman was found dead on the floor. She had fallen from the bed and must this was not all; these little girls lying around her were dying for the want of bread and atten-tion. In this fix they were found and brought by some one, in a little cart, to Bishop Cobb's Home for Orphan's. They were brought there on Friday. When these little girls came to the Home they were the picture of misery and want, and had scarcely a rag on to hide their naked and had scarcely a rag on to hide their naked like ness; emaciated and sallow, they looked like living skeletons, and they were crying for bread. baby, about three years of age, died on Saturday.

The poor little thing was too near gone for any human aid to do her any good. She begged for bread until she died. Another one, named Lizzie, about seven or eight years of age, died on Wednesday. She was a pretty little girl, but reduced to a mere skeleton. She begged those around her to give her some meat and bread to the last. The other two are still at the house. It was thought at first that they would die, too, It was thought at first that they would die, too, but the oldest one, a bright, aweat little girl, is improving. Her account of the suffering they underwent is enough to melt the hardest heart to tears—how they cried for bread and could not get it—that they had been drawing rations, but when they all got sick, they sent their taket by a negro woman, but that the ticket was torm up, and the answer was, "no more rations,"—and the answer was, "no more rations,"—and there their peopresses mother the evening before how their poor sick mother, the evening before
