THE EDUCATION OF MANNERS.

The great deficiency of these times, is the want of good breeding among all classes of our people. We see it in the intercourse of our legislators, in the contests of political aspirants, in the sharp practice of professional leaders, in trade, in social relationships, and even in religious association.

This state of things has doubtless been brought about, in a great measure, by the demoralization consequent upon every civil war. The heedless history of the English nobility and masses, under the reign of Charles the Second, was the inevitable product of the struggle between the cavaliers and roundheads, which brought Charles the First to the block.

Money is a very desirable thing to have; but it costs too much, when a man has to make a hog of himself to win it. Professional reputation and influence are very tempting baits to the intelligent and toiling student. But if a candidate for such honors has to repeat the history of Aaron Burr, giving himself to conspiracy and intrigue, such a career hardly pays for the midnight oil which it burns.

bursts of animal excitement. While a church composed of gentlemen, is prepared to consider the noblest claims of human fellowship, and thus to look upward to the greatest Author of liberty and kindness. A child should be taught to drink in the spirit of courtesy with his mother's milk. And then, when he grows larger, let him study its vital principles side by side with his grammar, his latin and his algebra.

We may depend upon it something must be done in this direction, or we may wake up some morning, and find ourselves not only a nation of merchants but a nation of thieves and cut-throats. We are growing rapidly worse every day. Unless a gentleman carries a pistol in his hand, he stands not a ghost of a chance in an argument on any question whatever. Let us go back to the first principles. Let us study the spirit of the old Continental times, or cross over the water, and learn from the British aristocracy the elements and the blessings of gentility.

ON GOING SURETY.

Ought a man ever to go surety for another? Why not? It is a most friendly act. If prudently done, it may be of the most eminent benefit to a neighbor. It gives him the benefit of your good reputation when he is not known. It lends him your credit where his own is not sufficient. It puts him in funds which otherwise he could not command.

But, there are certain moral and prudential considerations which should always be borne in mind in going surety for a friend. You should make up your mind how much property you have, and how much you are willing to give away, absolutely, for that friend whom you endorse. For no blunder can be worse than to indorse on the supposition that you will not have to pay. Never indorse without saying to yourself, "This may come round upon me. I may have to pay it; and, if it comes to that, I am able and willing."

Or, just as everything was at the point of success, your friend sickened and could not look after his affairs, some critical matter was neglected, or some dishonest person stepped in, and crooked matters: your friend died, the estate went into executor's hands for settlement, was badly managed, warped, and crooked, and finally turned out insolvent.

you were ruined. But, if she will not, (and human nature is made up of shaly stuff,) and her children go to school, while yours stay at home; and if they live in a comfortable house, pleasantly furnished, while you are hiring a few rooms in the cheapest quarter of the town, then I suspect that you will chew the end of a great many bitter reflections.

When it is too late, you will be very wise. You will say to yourself, it may be, "A man is a fool who signs for any larger sum than he can covently pay." Amen, say it!

"Bo ore a man puts his name down on another man's paper, he should ask himself, Am I willing to give this person as much money as I sign for?" Amen say it!

"To sign a bond on the supposition that it is a mere form, and that you will have nothing to pay, is to put one's head into a fool's nose." Amen, again, say it!

There is no harm in going for a neighbor if you have got the property; if you are able to pay the amount without harming your own household; and if you love the man for whom you sign, enough to be willing to give him outright the sum covered by your indorsement. Otherwise, to go surety for a neighbor is a folly, and sin and a sham.

Law Governing Presidential Elections--Read and Circulate.

The election for President and Vice President, which occurs on Tuesday, the Fifth of November next, is to be held as near as may be in conformity with the election law of 1872, that is to say--

Books of Registration must be immediately re-opened by the Registrar, and persons qualified allowed to register, until the day of election--excluding that day.

Persons must vote in the Township where they reside. Tickets must be printed on white paper and without device. No certificates of registration must be given.

Registration not allowed on the day of election, except where a person has arrived at the age of twenty-one, or for other good cause.

We understand that Messrs Barringer, Muson and Phillips, as Chairman of the Executive Committees of the various parties, in accordance also with the views of Attorney-General Shipp, have agreed that the above constitute the proper rules for governing the approaching Presidential election.

RURAL BEAUTIES AND CITY BELLES--Country girls are not a whit behind their metropolitan sisters in the natural elements of loveliness, but it must be conceded that the city belles best understand the art of preserving and heightening their personal beauty.

The most perfect features lose half their attraction unless the complexion is properly cared for, and if the pretty girls of the rural districts wish to compete with the "Fairstars" of the fashionable world in refined attractions, they must pay due attention to this important point. They ought to know, for the fact is notorious, that Fleas' Moxia Balsam imparts to the skin a delicate preparation under the sun. No mat or how the cuticle may have been roughened by exposure or discolored by the sun, the Balsam will render it soft and pliable, and remove every blemish.

Pimples and crown spots on the face, Eruptions, Itches, Scurfous Diseases, and all sores arising from impure blood, are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
