THE LATIN RACES. An impetuous, fiery nature is valuable, on occasions, to both nations and individuals. The poetic element is inherent in it, and we naturally look to its manifestations for the grandest and most enduring creations of the fine arts. But it is a misfortune to those nationalities, that are possessed of this tropical energy and heat, that they are The great intellects, which usually rise to the surface in the exigences of the Northern nations, and exercise a controlling influence, riding the storm, and directing the vehemence of the tempest, are generally swept away by assassination or the most murderous persecution. The lust of power, spoliation or revenge monopolizes the talents of the people and the resources of the State. And every citizen seems to be furnished with a fire rand, to consume and destroy whatever is noblest and best in the inheritance and treasury of the past.

Take Spain and Italy as illustrations. ing a pusoner for an hour or two, told In the first they have a King, who personally seems to be everything that could be desired. He is derived from a family, which s'ands as high for character and principle as any in Europe. He has exhibited, from the first, an enlightened and liberal policy infinitely gling. The officials were satisfied with superior to that of any other Spanish dynasty. He has faithfully tried to recommend himself to his subjects, by his profound sympathy with their interests, and his earnest participation in every effort to elevate and improve their social and political condition. And yet, there are a thousand daggers in Spain to-day, ready to drink his blood, if the opportunity should offer. In Italy, now that the temporal power of the Pope has mighty God for the many privileges and vanished, there seems to be a lull on blessings vouchsafed unto them through the public mind. But we have no con- His infinite mercy and goodness, and by fidence in its genuineness or durability. It is something new for Italians to rule Italy. The degradation of the Papacy is a novelty to the Roman mind. To stand on the Pincian Hill, and to know that the great Empress City has passed out of the hands of cardinals and bishops, and is the free home and property of her own children, is a refreshing and invigorating thought. But wait until this novelty wears off, and this knowledge becomes tame, and the historic waters of the Tiber will witness another struggle. The fact is, neither I'aly nor Spain can keep quiet long. They are filled with a nervous, excitable population. And like their own fiery mountains they must cast out burning lava.

We candidly believe, that none of the La'in races are fit for self-government. The very corner-stone of the politics of a free people is, that all power is lodged in the hands of the governed. If their public servan's are not faithful to the trust imposed in them, the ballot is the sword by which they are cut down. But it takes a large measure of intelligence, an enlightened conscience, and an independent character and education, to exercise this power wi h wisdom and discretion. The Anglo-Saxon race 3-t.

These goods may be tea, coffee, socks, thread, ribbons, or intent to smuggle is there, and the success in bringing over a small lot is nearly always an inducement for the smuggler to try the game on a large scale. Men may and do smuggle clothes now and then, but it is the female sex which carries the burden of guilt. The custom-house officials at the ferry dock in this city are as vigilant as officers can be, but what chances have they against monstrous hoopskirts and gigantic bustles? They cannot stop to peep under shawls, examine pockets, look into baby carts and hold a crowd on the boat, and so they must continue their work with the kno wledge that goods are being smuggled, and that only one grand and sud-

Sensouable Suggestions. The heavy mists and cold night dews which characterize the present season are very trying to delicate organizations, and in low-lying and osition to say, that the population of swampy localities they produce an enormous our own country is largely composed of crop of intermittent fevers of various types and degrees of intensity. At this very time there are probably half a million of people in the United States suffering from periodical fevers by miasmatic fogs and exhalations. TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured them-selves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either be liness, study society or marriage, These are some or the sad and melancholy effects produced by the early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the back and limbs, pains in the head, dimness of sight loss of mascular power, palpitation of the heart, dyspepsia, nervous irritability, derangement of the digestive functions, general debility, symptoms of onsumption &c.
MENTALLY-The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded. Loss of Memory. Confusion of Ideas, Depression or Spirits. Evil Forebodings. Aversion to Society Self Distrust. Love of Solitude. Timidity &c. are some of the evils produced. Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health. lesing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emacasted, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of Cousumption.

YOUNG MEN Who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone, a habit frequently learned from evil companions or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured rendors marriage impossible, and destroys both mind an body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that young man, the hope of his country the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyment or life by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons mast, before conpertain secret habit. Such persons must, before contemplating.

MARRIAGE. Reflect that a sound mind and body are the most neces sarv requisites to promote connubial happiness. THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, his none of the temporary or time y interest coaracteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, lig t, and graceful literature; and a col ction of pictures, the rar at specimens of artistic shill, in block at d white. Althoug each suce eding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the ALDINE will be mo-t approclated after it has been bound up of the c'ose of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a sum far class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception- alone and use pproached-also utely without competition in rice or character. The possessor of a com-plete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other ship or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then there are Chromos, besides!
