Any power wished for may be obtained by an increase in the size of the lever used as magnates. Mr. Paine has now in course of construction an engine of forty horse power, which, wh n completed, and propelled by electricity, will be the greatest wonder of the age.

THE GRAPHIC. That excellent paper, the New York Graphic, has added to its other great achievements, the establishment of a weekly, and people living at a distance from New York City, can be supplied with it at $2.50 per year. Without exception, it is the best paper published; con'ains an epitome of the news of the week; its columns sparkle with wit, and the events of the day are illustrated. It is perfectly independent in politics, and assails all evil doers, irrespective of their party affiliations.

The City and State of New York, owe the Graphic a debt of gratitude for the exposition of the great "Industrial Exhibition" fraud that will take a long time to pay. A paper with such a powerful influence has "no pent up Utica" to contract it, but is every day enlarging its borders.

> (Evansville, (Ind.) Journal. A GOOD DREAMER.

The Advantage of a Wife who has Nightmare. Readers of the Journal will remember the case of the recovery of a watch and the arrest of the thief, who stole it from a Union township farmer some months ago, through a dream of the farmer's wife. Strauge as the case appears, a lady who lives in Warrick counnear the Spencer county line, on the Evansville and Rockport stage road, has more than matched it by a dream through which she defeated a thief in an attempt to rob her house. Several weeks ago the lady, who has numerous relatives in this city and in Rockport, dreamed that a man came to the house and sought lodging; that he was taken in put up stairs to sleep, but before he went up s'ripped off his shoes and put them outside the door. During the night he came down stairs, robbed the house of all its valuables, and left. The incidents of the dream were so vivid that the lady was awakened, awoke her husband, told him the dream, but he only laughed and returned to sleep. This singular dream was repeated twice during the same night, and each time she awoke her husband and was laughad at. After several days the lady thought she deserved to be laughed at, and in a couple of weeks forgot all about her dream. One evening, after the husband had been to town and received a considerable sum of money, a man came to the house, applying for lodging, was received, and, after a good supper, was shown a room, without a thought of the dream recurring to the lady until she was startled by discovering the shoes of the stranger in exactly in the same position she had seen the shoes in her dream, and then she remembered that he was in almost every particular the man of the dream. Again she sought her husband, and rekless of his derisive laughter, told him her fears. This time she was not laughed at. The husband mounted guard, and at a late hour the strange man came creeping down stairs, fulfilling the dream in his manner, and with dark lantern in bis hand, was making an examination of the lower rooms. One of the first things be saw was the husband with a gun in his hand, and the first thing he heard was a demand to "git." His prompt obedience spoiled the perfect fulfilment of the dream, but it elevated the wife to a place in her husband's estimation, even higher than that she had previously occupied, and it is pretty cetain that she will never be laughed at for another dream.
