WINTER CHICKENS.

Profitable, but You Must Take Good Care of Them.

One should never attempt to raise early chickens for the market unless all of the necessary space and accommodations are at hand. I have found it a risky business, for a small wood yard, which is common just at the critical period in the lives of the young chicks, and unless I was thoroughly prepared for it a greater part of my labor was lost. To raise early chicks successfully one must have a favorable location, the work, in addition to an intelligent knowledge of the difficulties attending the work.

Hatching the eggs in midwinter is only a small part of the business, and requires little sufficient encouragement to this initial step. The early chicks should be brought out in February, and to have them strong and healthy it is necessary to have good eggs, good mothers and good care. They should not be allowed to get chilled, and to avoid this the nests should be in buildings where the temperature can be kept even. Separate each nest so that two hens will not fight over the same nest, each imagining it belongs to her. Have them soft, warm and well situated, so that the old hen will have a pleasant place to spend her long, weary hours. Make her as comfortable as possible and she will not be so irritated and harsh to her young chicks as she would be if she were cramped and ill-situated. If the hens are well arranged and kept comfortably warm and well ventilated there is no reason why the eggs should not hatch as well as in spring or summer. When the chicks see the light of day for the first time they must be watched very carefully. The cold weather will chill them. The temperature of the building should be attended to patiently and allowances made for every sudden change in the weather. Ventilation is just as essential as warmth, and the young chicks will soon succumb quickly to confined, heated air.

In a week's time the young chicks can endure the cold better, and then they must have fresh air every day. The house should be so arranged that they can get plenty of sunshine every pleasant day, for this is as essential to their growth as to their health. Have a well protected yard, so that they can be given a good airing every fair day in the open sunshine. If protected from the cold winds and snow this will do them great good after they have attained a fair size. The matter of feeding them should also be attended to carefully. The food should always be given to them warm, and if any is left it should be removed. As the young chicks will soon get fat, it is essential that they should eat it later, when it is cold, and thus injure their digestive organs. The kind of food to leave for them is cracked corn or millet seed. Wheat, barley, corn and oats may be given to them after they are several weeks old, but not before.—Annie C. Webster in American Cultivator.

TRAINING A COLLIE.

An Old Trainer Gives Directions for Dog Education.

An old trainer of wide experience gives us these rules for educating the collie so that he may become a useful citizen; we know from experience that an uneducated collie may easily become a perfect scamp:

It is almost useless to commence training the pup until it is 6 months old, except to teach it obedience, and this you can do at 4 months. It should be practiced at a certain hour every morning, before eating its meal, that it may understand it is a task to be done. Feed immediately after that it may soon learn to look upon it as a reward for doing that task. Never allow the dog to see you training him; always keep strictly to business at that time. Never allow any one to be with you in the house that may concentrate his dog's intellect upon the work in hand.

He positively must never be struck a cruel blow with a whip or stick, or harshly rebuked. He should be treated with kindness and drawn to the whip instead of the lesson. Use the whip to motion with. Remember if you strike a dog with a whip he will be disobedient. It will be useless. The first few lessons may be blank failures; the puppy may be disobedient and refuse to come to the whistle. To strike your puppy at such a time would take months to overcome, and would be downright cruelty. Only only continue to persevere in the lesson to play. In one or two mornings his fears are dispelled and he is ready to be handled.

One master and only one must pup have all the other members of the family should be strictly forbidden to give him orders or criticisms. He must be taught obedience, and to obey your commands implicitly, before attempting to work him on stock. He can do this by using some word of command when feeding, and you alone doing this. Your dog will obey you at all times, in a way that is easy to him, never allowing himself to become angry. The very best trained dog needs retraining at times, but he must be made to come up a hundred times to be petted and rewarded, when he comes up to be punished.

Never allow him to be with the stock unless you are with him, as he may contract bad habits, hard to break into of. When first for a few times taking him with the stock, do not allow him to bark or bark at the stock, but keep him close to you, so that you can control him, and keep him close to you, so that you can control him, and keep him close to you, so that you can control him.

THE CLOSE RELATIONSHIP OF HUMOR AND PATRIOTISM.

Bill Nye, in his speech at the Asheville banquet given in his honor spoke, as reported by the Citizen, of the close relationship of American humor and patriotism. "There is only the finest kind of a line separating them," said he, and to illustrate this fact he related this story:

He had a friend—a preacher—who, unlike many of his class, did not always dress himself in a garb that marked his calling, and thereby kept him from seeing human nature as it is, but it was his custom to mingle with the crowd and see humanity in its simplest, everyday life, feelings and ways.

It was Decoration Day, and one of those large crowds that always assemble on these occasions was present. His preacher-friend was there, mingling in the throng, seeing what was to be seen and hearing what was to be heard. In his rounds he met with an old countryman who looked lonesome and seemed as if he were anxious to talk with some one. As it frequently does on great occasions, it threatened rain. The old man caught a friendly look in the eye of the preacher, and feeling encouraged, suggested: "It rains like it mout raine, but I never lose anything like the weather to keep me from coming to decoration. I have been on hand at every one since the war closed, and I am going to be on hand at every one's long as I live."

"I have you buried here," he continued, full of the subject that filled his heart, "and his grave shall never be neglected so long as my life lasts. When the war broke out our boy went down in the army. He was young and full of life and vigor. He hadn't been gone long before the news came to me and his mother that he was wounded. I started for the field at once, and I found him badly shot, in fact he hadn't lived long after I got to him, but before he died I promised him that I would see that his grave was kept green. And so I carried him home to his mother, and I told her of the promise I had made and I have kept it faithfully ever since. Now, there is some people who will not be on hand Decoration Day unless the weather is all right, but I tell you, stranger, it has no effect on me. I promised our boy that his grave should be kept green, and I'm damned if I don't intend to do it if I have to paint it."

NEW YEAR'S WISHES.

Talmage in Ladies' Home Journal.

Make it the best year of all life—the brightest, the happiest and the freshest of the morning, your soul with the sparkle of the dawn. Resolve by good deeds and thoughts to make this the most triumphant year of your life. As a series of short anxieties to carry with you through this year, let me give you these:

Make every day begin and end with God.

Be content with what you have.

Have a hearty joyful family altar in your domestic circle.

Fill your home with as much good reading and bright music as your means will allow.

Think ill of none, but well of all.

If fortune favors you think of others.

Don't sham; be real.

Keep busy and you will keep healthy.

Love God.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she became a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The Surest Remedy

For indigestion, costiveness, and sick-headache is Ayer's Pills. The harsh, drastic purgatives, once deemed indispensable to a "thorough cleaning out" of the system, have given place to milder and more safely-prepared laxatives. Formosa among these are Ayer's Pills. Being composed of the essential principles of the most effective cathartics, without calomel or any other injurious drug, they relieve ever follow their use. For this reason, these Pills are everywhere recommended as the best family medicine. Their sugar-coating makes them easy to take, and preserves their medicinal strength in any climate at 1 for an indefinite length of time.

"I was a sufferer, for years, from chronic dyspepsia and liver troubles, and found relief only in the use of Ayer's Pills. They have effected a complete cure."—G. W. Moore, Walla Walla, W. T.

"I was master of a sailing vessel for a number of years and never failed to provide a supply of Ayer's Pills for the use of all on board. They are a safe and reliable cathartic and give satisfaction."—H. Robinson, J. T. Peet st., Fair Haven, Conn.

"In 1858, by the advice of a friend, I began the use of Ayer's Pills as a remedy for biliousness, constipation, high fevers, and colic. They served me better than anything I had previously tried, and I have used them in various cases since."—H. S. Sledge, Perth, Jamaica, Ark.

"For years I have been subject to constipation and nervous headache, caused by derangement of the liver. After trying various remedies, I have become convinced that Ayer's Pills are the best. They have never failed to relieve me."

Big and Little Horses.

A Scotchman has said that if one were to take the colossal Clydesdale horse to Shetland, turn him out to rough it in the cold and rain and let him pick his way among the hillsides and valleys, in the course of time the broad would become as small and tough as the little "Sheltie."

We give illustrations here of two extremes of horse families. The large

THE BIGGEST SHIP GONE.

The Great Eastern was the biggest ship ever built, and perhaps the most profitable and unfortunate. She has now been broken up and sold for old iron, and her hull has been left to rot. Even after she had been washed and the works of destruction had begun, the ill-fated craft broke away and floated down the Mersey one dark night, threatening destruction to the whipping in the river. The amount of metal in the hull and machinery was something astonishing in these days of high ship building. The hull was built of best Bessemer iron plate, three-quarters of an inch thick, about 7,300 tons of iron being thus used. The engines and other fittings of the ship brought the total weight up to 15,375 tons. In breaking up the Great Eastern all the ironwork was carefully removed, with as little injury as possible and sold to iron merchants, who have distributed the material in various parts of the world. A large part of the plates went to Canada, and the beams and angles were sold to Italian iron manufacturers. The entire proceeds of the sale of old material amounted to about $280,000. The original cost of the ship was about $3,750,000.

Bilious Attacks

During several months past I have been subject to attacks of biliousness, without being able to remove the trouble by medical treatment. In looking through Ayer's Almanac I read the statements of persons cured of similar attacks by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills, and was induced to give them a trial. They have benefited me so much that I consider it my duty to mention my case to you for the benefit of others.

Mrs. Mary Gwynn, Flint Village, Fall River, Mass.

"I have now used Ayer's Pills in my family for seven or eight years. Whenever I have an attack of biliousness, to which I am very subject, I take a dose of Ayer's Pills and am almost promptly relieved. I find them equally beneficial in colds and, in my family, they are used for bilious complaints and other disturbances with good effect that we rarely, if ever, fail to call in a physician."—H. Voullens, Hotel Voullens, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Ayer's Pills, the greatest blood purifier of the age, the best of humors remedies, cure every disease and humor of the skin, scap and blood, whether itching, burning, scap pimples, scurf, or hereditary, when all other remedies fail.
