One of the days we remember with pleasure, as well as with profit to our health, is the one on which we became acquainted with Dr. King's New Life Pills, the painless purifiers that cure headache and biliousness, and keep the bowels right. 25c. at T. R. Abernethy's Drug Store. Extinction of a Family. Charlotte Chronicle. Seargent S. Drentiss, the well known orator and advocate, died in New Orleans a few days ago, and in his death comes the end of an illustrated name. In a brief sketch of the Drentiss family, The New Orleans Picayune says that Seargent Smith Drentiss, first of the name, was a native of the State of Maine. After his graduation from Bowdoin College he went to Mississippi, settling at Natchez where he taught school while studying law. On his admission to the bar his success as a lawyer began. He was soon elected to the State Legislature and to the national Congress. He became famous as a public speaker, and his oratory probably stood before that of any other man in the Union. He was a great favorite in New Orleans, where much of his time was spent. He was born in 1808, and died at his residence, near Natchez, in 1859. His son of the same name passed away in New Orleans, Monday. He was a lawyer, a brilliant speaker and had been a gallant Confederate soldier, but for some years past his health had been feeble from a disorder which carried him off. Several years ago his young son of the same name, a brilliant and handsome young fellow, who had just graduated from Tulane University and started with great promise in the profession of the law, was carried to a premature grave. Thus it witnessed the extinction of a family that has taken a prominent part in the history of the Southern States.

Massing of American Fleet. Tokio, July 11.—The massing of the American fleet in the Pacific about which the American papers have applied to Marquis Ito for an opinion, is semi-officially discussed by Ito's administrative organ to-day. The paper says: "We cannot help feeling some misgiving with regard to the significance of the intended massing of American battleships in the Pacific, especially in view of the grandiose announcement attributed to President Roosevelt to the effect that the navy would furnish the world with a startling demonstration of America's defensive capacity. It is difficult for us to accept the assurance that the coming manoeuvres do not possess any connection whatever with the Japanese-American situation. We regret that Washington thinks it necessary to take what resembles a precautionary measure. However, we are not disposed to attach serious importance to this matter and have no inclination to doubt the President's sincerity in assuring us of the peaceful nature of the proposed naval manoeuvres. Neither have we the slightest doubt of the Pacific and friendly sentiments of the American government. The people toward whom Japan's blame is probably due are the irresponsible sections of both nations." To deduce insinuation regarding the sensational agitation of the press. His sole comment on the probability of war is: "There is no feeling in my heart for this."

Our Prize Gunners. The result of the recent target practice shows a notable increase in the general efficiency of American naval gunners. The scores which have just been announced indicate that this year there are ten star ships whose final merit is at least 85 per cent, of that of the trophy winner of their class, whereas last year there were only three. Last year the average final merit of the ships was 64 per cent of the highest final merit, while this year it is 71 per cent. Another remarkable fact in connection with the result is that the efficiency of the result is that the efficiency of the Pacific squadron, which was the smallest in final merit last year is this year the highest of all the squadrons. The ships which compose the second squadron of the Pacific fleet, and were last year the Pacific squadron, under command of Rear Admiral Swinburne, won all that they could win—that is, the cruiser gunboat and torpedo boat trophies. The battleship trophy, of course, went to the Atlantic fleet as there is no battleship in the second squadron of the Pacific fleet. The final merit of Admiral Swinburne's squadron is 20 per cent higher than that of the past highest squadron. A Wonderful Happening. Port Byron, N. Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded. A Mrs. King, of that place says: "Brother's Arnicin Salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 80 years. I am now eighty five." Guarantee to cure all sores, by C. R. Abernethy, Druggist 27c.

To the creditors of the above, of Newton in the county of Catawba, and district aforesaid, a bankrupt. Notice is hereby given that on the 15th day of July A. D. 1907, the said R. P. Dakin was duly adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at the office of Witherspoon & Witherspoon, in Newton, N. C., at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting. W. C. Ervin, Referee in Bankruptcy. Morganton, N. C., July 8, 1907. Richmond is now a city of 110,000 inhabitants. That is no matter of guesswork. The census tells the tale. Now let's get together and build up the city's trade so that in five years more Richmond will be in the 200,000 class. It can be done.—Richmond Times-Dispatch. Reggy Snapp—"Hah jinks. The question, "How much fertilizer should be used per acre?" cannot be answered definitely, but only in a general way. It is sometimes put in this form: "What is the most profitable amount that may be applied per acre?" Whether the question is the amended form be made and accurately answered. The soil, its character, condition, preparation, etc., may be well known, or controllable factors, but we know not what the seasons may be, says Hon. R. J. Redding, Director Georgia Experiment Station, Department of Agriculture, in the Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer Almanac. We know that some crops will bear larger amounts of fertilizers with reasonable assurance of profit than others. The soil that occupies the fall season until spring, or early summer, will bear heavier fertilizing than will a crop that is planted in the spring and ripens for harvest in midsummer. The first case is illustrated by oats, wheat, or other small grain, or grass, sown when the soil is in the fall of the year. Such a crop occupies the soil during the late fall, winter, and early spring—during which periods the rains are usually abundant, and the soil is well watered, and the soil is better prepared for the growing season of June and July. Oats and wheat therefore are ideal crops for liberal fertilizing. Corn is a short period in which to develop the ordinary dry uplands of the South. It has but a short period in which to develop its flowers—tassels and silks—covering but a few days. If very dry weather shall prevail when this critical period is approaching, and for some time after it, the crop may prove a greater or less failure. There can be no second effort, no second period of blooming. It is different in the case of cotton, which commences to bloom and make fruit in June or early July, and continues throughout the summer until checked by a severe frost in November. It has a number of "chances." Cotton is therefore another ideal crop for liberal fertilizing. A small amount of fertilizers applied per acre will no doubt yield a larger percentage profit. To illustrate: An application of $2 worth of fertilizer per acre may cause an increased yield of cotton (at 10 cents per pound) of the value of $8 to $8, or a profit of 20 to 300 per cent. on its cost. I have frequently had such results. But it does not follow that twice as heavy an application will produce twice as large results; that three times as much would cause three times as great an increase in the yield. In other words, the rate of increase in the yield of cotton will not be in proportion to the increase in the amount of fertilizers applied. Two dollars' worth of fertilizer per acre may yield an increase in the crop of $6; but $2 worth would not therefore bring an increase of $3. But careful observation has shown that an application of $5 to $6 worth of fertilizers (properly balanced) is a safe amount to apply per acre on cotton. Many farmers in Georgia have secured satisfactory returns from an application of $9 much as $60 worth per acre. I think 600 pounds a perfectly safe limit on upland fairly good condition, well prepared and properly cultivated in cotton. For corn, I would limit the amount to 200 to 300 pounds per acre on old uplands. Daugher—"She seems to have got over the death of her first husband." Father—"Yes, but her second husband hasn't."—Pick-Me-Up. "Polician refused a pass." "I don't take no stock in that headline," declared Farmer Oates. "You don't understand," explained Farmer Hayes.
