

CRUSHING REPUBLICAN DEFEAT IN 1936 IS PREDICTED BY NYE

Washington, July 24.—The Republican party will nominate a conservative Easterner and another crushing defeat at the polls in 1936, Senator Gerald P. Nye (R) N. D., said tonight upon his return from the sun-baked northwest.

After a survey of public sentiment, Nye reported that:

1. The NRA has failed as a recovery agency.
2. The AAA has aided farmers but they are opposed to making it a permanent feature of American agricultural life.
3. The Republicans will nominate either Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of Treasury; United States Senator David Reed, of Pennsylvania, or Rep. James Wadsworth (R), N. Y., for the presidency in 1936 and will oppose retention of any "new deal" legislation.
4. President Roosevelt has not swung far enough to the "left" to please the nation's liberal element.

Nye scoffed at reports that Republican party leaders had been weaned away from die-hard conservatism and were prepared to meet the liberals part of the way in 1936.

"The elephant hasn't learned a thing," he said emphatically. "The party will nominate Mills, Reed or Wadsworth. An ultra-conservative platform, opposing extension of new deal achievements, will be offered the voters."

"The result: Another crushing defeat at the polls. Leaders are making the mistake of believing that dissatisfaction in some sections over some phases of the new deal is a signal for the return of Coolidge and Hoover conservatism. Anyone, not blind, knows this isn't true."

Despite reports to the contrary, Nye said he wouldn't have time to aid the Republican national committee in the congressional elections in the Northwest. But, he said he would campaign in Wisconsin for Senator Robert LaFollette and in New Mexico for Senator Bronson Cutting, both members of the little Senate progressive bloc, up for re-election.

Nye said he found complaints on every hand against the NRA. Representatives campaigning for re-election in the Northwest, he declared, are "soft-pedaling the NRA every chance they get."

"The NRA is a failure," he continued. "It isn't being enforced because they can't enforce it. Small business is being oppressed. Monopolies are unrestrained. The wages of some workers have been raised but this has resulted in the wages of others being lowered."

GEORGE SPRUILL, OF ROCKY MOUNT, SLAIN

Rocky Mount, July 23.—George E. Spruill, 59, formerly a Baptist minister and at present operating a grocery store here, was found dead before his safe early today, his skull crushed with heavy blows from a sharp instrument police think was an axe.

Receipts of Saturday's sales were missing and a jury hastily summoned by Coroner M. C. Gulley, of Nashville, concluded that he was murdered and fixed robbery as the motive.

The body was discovered at 7 o'clock today by Henry Gray, negro, who went to the store to make a purchase. Police found Spruill in front of the safe as if he had been killed as he opened the door. John Ellen, son-in-law of the slain man, said he drove Spruill to the store at 11 o'clock Sunday night and that afterwards he heard him moving about, apparently preparing for bed. He slept in the store regularly. The bed had been slept in and Spruill was fully clothed when the body was found, leading police to conclude that he was slain early today.

To Celebrate Oil's Diamond Jubilee

THE seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the petroleum industry will be celebrated this August at Titusville, Pennsylvania, when the Drake Well Memorial Park will be dedicated. This thirty acre tract surrounds the famous first producing oil well in this country which was brought in on August 27th, 1859. Inset shows Sam Smith, who still resides in Titusville, at the site of the well which he helped drill. The tremendous growth of the oil industry since then is indicated graphically in the above aerial photograph of the Bayonne, New Jersey, refineries of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. This is just one of more than 400 refineries at present operating in this country.

Mellon's Poor Cousin Is Found Residing In Dingy House Surrounded By Trash

Pittsburg, Pa., July 23.—A "poor cousin" of Andrew W. Mellon, the millionaire banker, was found today living in a dingy house surrounded by trash and other tenement debris.

He is gray-haired William Andrew Mellon, son of the late Samuel Mellon, only brother of Judge Thomas Mellon, the noted banker's father.

Investigators, called to the dingy little house tucked away between imposing structures in the Pittsburgh triangle section by erroneous reports of the 60-year-old man was in need, found him living there, happily.

"I wouldn't trade this place for any other in the best hotel in the world," the man said. "I live here because I can have my own food and because I can read, study, think and sleep here."

He sent Fred Mellon, another cousin and attorney for the Mellon real-estate interest, to see him. The shabbily-clad man said, "But I told him I like it here. 'I batch' along, getting my own breakfast and home-cooked dinners from the lady next door. But Fred said that Andy wanted at least to take care of any deficit in my monthly budget and they have been sending me money since then."

Once Had Wealth In addition to reading and compiling a new genealogy of the Mellon family, he said his only other interest is in a Colorado mine which he hopes to develop.

"I was going to obtain financial aid from sources outside the family," he added, "but then it just happened they became interested and Andy has promised to help me."

William Andrew Mellon once worked in the T. Mellon and Sons bank, launched in 1870, but after the death of Andrew's father he went west and lost his money in a railroad enterprise. Sitting on a box in a cluttered backyard, the man talked of his adventures with and without riches. With respect to the $1.50 weekly relief he formerly received from the county, he said: "That was a mistake. Last January I went to ask for some coal and they just began sending me the money."

Minor Vestal, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vestal, of near Boonville, is the victim, according to the county health officer who is positive that the disease was transmitted by ticks. The first case, diagnosed a week ago as Rocky Mountain spotted fever in Yadkin, is now convalescent, and this newest case is responding satisfactorily to treatment.

G. O. P. CHIEFS PLAN FOR SPEAKING TOUR

Washington, July 23.—A national-wide Republican speaking campaign for the coming congressional elections was formulated today by G. O. P. chiefs in their drive to capture senate and house seats and governorships.

The list of speakers to be called upon was kept confidential but it was learned that both liberal and conservative party members will be asked to "take the stump."

Concentrated efforts to regain congressional seats in midwestern and northwestern areas will be urged from west coast headquarters by Chicago.

Missouri, Senator Lewis of Illinois, chairman of the Democratic national elections committee, headed an appeal to members of his party tonight to support the Roosevelt administration on a bipartisan basis.

"Call upon our national hero in the name of the patriot that is truly in the heart of America; beseech all to put behind the President and around him and his government the sympathies of support—the courage of bravery, the loyalty of devotion," Lewis said. "Command our people to forsake the cordid partisanship of false name and end the pretense of patriotism for political profit."

The conference of Republican leaders here today, led by Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the national committee, is the first of a series scheduled on campaign plans. Senator Hastings of Delaware, and Representative Bolton, of Ohio, vice-chairman of the Republican senatorial-congressional committee, went over the list of prospective speakers with Fletcher.

Bolton then left for Chicago where he will confer tomorrow with Senator Dickinson and Representative Thurston, of Iowa, who are in charge of western speaking headquarters. Besides Dickinson and Thurston, Representative Britten, of Illinois, and Senator Robinson, of Indiana, are expected to make speeches.
