State May Send Number of Discarded Buses For Use In Wilkes Schools

No break in the deadlock between the state and county over school transportation problems seems probable at this time and the date of opening the high er and wife of Sinclair Lewis, schools and central schools remains uncertain.

C. B. Eller, county superintenthe state is still contending Germany. that the county should furnish part of the cost of contract transportation and it is learned that the county commissioners still contend that operation of the schools is purely an obligation of the state.

The difficulty arose over the fact that Wilkes county has only 20 school buses while the system as it is constituted calls for operation of 49 buses.

Supt. Eller and C. O. McNeill. chairman of the board of education, were in Raleigh last week conferring with LeRoy Martin. executive secretary of the state school commission, in an effort to reach some agreement where- ford, local business man. by the schools would be allowed

To furnish laughs for the thousands who are expected to attend The Great Wilkes Fair here September 13-22, the fair association has engaged "Hiram and Mandy," world famous clowns, for the annual exposi-

"Hiram and Mandy" are none other than the Mr. and Mrs. Happy Jack Darling and as man and wife they are a scream. For the benefit of fair attendants they will put on three acts each afternoon and night. One act will be a comedy acrobatic act on the free act stage, another will be among the crowds and the last act will be a singing act. "Hiram and Mandy" have the reputation of wiping away worries from the most confirmed grouch and bringing laughs by the wholesale to the entire crowd.

Plans for the fair this month are going forward rapidly and it is learned that farmers and housewives are planning to fill the exhibit hall with the best of products of the season. Cash On McNeill Family premiums with assurance of being paid promptly is probably one of the reasons for the busy preparations of exhibits this far in advance.

It is difficult to remember off hand just how many attractions the fair has engaged for this year but some of them are a regimental band from Fort Bragg, a company of light artillery from Fort Bragg. Billy Senior and his combination of free acts, gorgeous display of fireworks each night by the Ohio Fireworks Display Company, Marx Greater Shows on the midway -- enough shows, rides and concessions to fill the fairgrounds, more and better exhibits, professional auto races and various other attractions.

And almost at the last minute comes the assurance that fair visitors will be entertained by a Messrs John and Slater Prenumber of thrilling and comedy

Judge Hayes Will Write Articles

Judge Johnson J. Hayes, who was elected chairman of the permanent organization of the McNeill Reunion, has written a creditable account of the McNeill gathering at Millers Creek on last Sunday. This article will appear in the Monday's issue of The Journal-Patriot.

This account will deal largely with the facts about the Mc-Neill family brought out by the speakers Sunday and will be of much interest to hundreds of people in the county. It is surprising to know the large number of people who are descendants of the Mc-

From time to time Judge Hayes will write other articles for The Journal-Patriot regarding the history of the Mc-Neill family as it affects the people of Wilkes county. All who want to get a full, accurate and comprehensive history of the McNeills from the time of the earliest settlers in Wilkes county can do so by saving these articles from this newspaper.

The Elliot Building Company holds the general contract for all the project with the exception of the erection of the three tanks and towers, which contract was awarded to the R. D. Cole Manufacturing (Company, of Newnan, Ga. G. F. Brown, engineer-inspector of the PWA, J. T. Adams, resident engineer of the project, and Gilbert C. White, consulting engineer, are here to supervise the project. The contracts call for a complete renovation, enlargement and improvements of the present water system and the erection of the three tanks and towers, which will provide for a water works system equal to the needs of the city for years to come. The water works project will be an NRA job throughout. All contractors must be operating under their code and all materials used must be purchased from manufacturers and dealers complying with the codes their respective industries. It is being financed by

Public Works Administration and the city of North Wilkesboro. The PWA purchased the city's bonds for the project and supplemented the bonds by a grant of thirty per cent of the cost of labor and materials.

Work began yesterday in small way but will get in full blast within the next few days. Engineers stated today that the number 16 between Millers project should be completed within 120 days.

All labor, with the exception of members of the contracting firms, is being furnished from the files of the National Re-employment Office under the direction of R. L. Wooten and only those men who are residents of North Wilkesboro are being used, since this project is being paid for by the city. Mr. Wooten states that the number of unemployed in the city who are registered as laborers does not exceed the demand, there being a large number in the "skilled labor" classifications.

Election Law Violators Will Be Prosecuted

Solicitor John R. Jones Replies To Criticism by Press of State

Following the probe by the state board of elections of the primary vote in the 17th judicial district in the primaries held on June 2 and June 30, some of the daily newspapers of the state made editorial comment to the effect that when so many flagarant violations of the laws were obvious that prosecution should follow and that the offenders should be punished. In answer to this line of com-

as indirect criticism of solicitors and prosecuting attorneys, Solicitor Jones issued a detailed statement, citing several indictments which he sent before the grand jury in the August term of Wilkes Court and assuring the people that he will do all in his power to prosecute the violators of the election law without

ment, which may be construed

Calling on the state board of elections to place in his hands other evidence of violation of the election laws that he might send to the grand jury other bills, Solicitor Jones issued the following statement:

North Wilkesboro's chances for the convention are augmented by the fact that Wilkes is the home of the Grange in North Carolina, the first county Grange having been organized in Wilkesboro. There are a number of very active subordinate Granges which are doing much toward promoting the growth of the fraternity for rural people.

Since the organization through North Carolina has, been growing by leaps and bounds it is expected that the 1935 convention will be attended by at least 500 delegates with their wives and children.
