Legion Auxiliary Officers Installed at Monthly Meet

The installation of new officers, and echoes from the state legion auxiliary convention that was held in Greensboro last month were important features of the meeting of the local unit of the legion auxiliary that was held on Monday evening with Miss Toby Turner as hostess at the Nurses home. A large number of the members were present and at the close of the evening Miss Turner had the assistance of Mrs. Andrew Kilby in serving an ice course.

The Installation of Officers

The installation of officers was in charge of Mrs. W. R. Absher, the retiring state president. Those chosen to serve for the coming year are Miss Toby Turner, president; Mrs. R. G. Finley, first vice president; Miss Norma Stevenson, second vice president; Mrs. Russell Hodges, recording secretary; Mrs. John Hall, corresponding secretary; chaplain, Mrs. J. B. McCoy; historian, Miss Lillian Stafford; treasurer, Mrs. T. A. Finley; and sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. W. D. Halfacre.

PCA Association Collections Good

Returning from Columbia where he attended a meeting of the presidents and other officials of the production credit associations of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, Paul J. Vestal, president of the Wilkesboro Production Credit Association says that reports at the meeting indicated that the officials were expecting 100 per cent collections in the four states of this district this fall.

"It was brought out at the meeting," said Mr. Vestal "that the collections from the tobacco belts of North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia were good, many farmers having paid up their obligations to the associations with the proceeds from their tobacco alone. It is believed that the prevailing prices for cotton and tobacco will enable every farmer-borrower whose loan was secured by those two crops to pay their loans promptly in full.

N. W. Woman's Club Met Monday Afternoon

The first meeting for the fall season of the North Wilkesboro Woman's club was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Tip McNeil with Miss Louise Vyne and Mrs. Ed Turner joining as hostesses. Miss Vyne, the president, held the chair during the business session, a number of important matters coming up for discussion. Mrs. F. C. Hubbard introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. W. R. Absher, who in her own charming manner gave a history of the club. Mrs. Absher spoke of the organization and the accomplishments of the club, which was organized October 1920. Mrs. Absher at the time of the organization was president of the civic league and presided at the meeting. After the Woman's club was organized the civic league became the civic department of the club.

Methodist Circles Held Meetings This Week

The three circles of the North Wilkesboro Methodist church held meetings of much interest this week. The Mary Brame Circle met on Monday afternoon at the church at three o'clock with an attendance of eight members. Mrs. A. B. Johnston, the chairman, presided and Rev. W. A. Jenkins, pastor of the church, gave the Bible study.

In the account of a party given in honor of Miss Margaret Hendren, which appeared in Monday's paper, it stated that she was a daughter of Mrs. Nell Hendren. She is a daughter of R. L. and Mrs. Nell Hendren.

Those that are interested in the growth of The Goodwill Store will be delighted to know the front walls have been glossed up with a pleasant appearance of new paint making ready for the new Fall goods which will arrive soon. The aggressive disposition of the young blood that has been injected into this organization makes it the outstanding commercial establishment of this section. We extend thanks for the past patronage and co-operation which has made the bargain center possible. If you have money and need goods, of course, this is the place.—The Goodwill Store, A Family Store.

Mrs. R. J. Hinshaw was hostess to Circle No. 1 at her home on Tuesday evening and the meeting was in charge of Mrs. W. P. Horton due to the absence of the chairman, Mrs. J. C. Smoot. Mrs. R. E. Faw led the devotionals using one of the Psalms for her talk. Fourteen members were present.

The Franklin Circle met at the home of Mrs. P. W. Eshelman and was attended by fourteen members. Mrs. R. E. Scroggs was in charge of the business session. The program leader for the evening was Mrs. Walter Newton, who was assisted by Mrs. C. B. Lomax and Miss Ruth Colvard. At the close of the two meetings held Tuesday evening delicious refreshments were served during a pleasant social hour.

Miss Mary Lane Is Hostess To Y. W. A.

"Touring the Continent Today" was the theme for the monthly meeting of the North Wilkesboro Baptist Y. W. A. that was held Monday evening at the home of Miss Mary Lane on E street. Miss Elsie Nichols was program leader and a number of the girls assisted her in presenting the topic.

Presiding for routine business was the president, Miss Annie Jo Hairwood. Mrs. A. C. Dennis, president of the Missionary Society, and Mrs. R. P. Casey, counsellor for the group, both were present. A salad course was served by the hostess during the social hour.

Carolina Scenery Is Unexcelled, Dr. H. G. Duncan Says

Noted Educator and Writer Has Traveled in Every State in the Union

Several days ago The Journal-Patriot commented editorially on the scenic possibilities of North Carolina in connection with the sale of Carolinas, Inc., stamps, which are being sold by Kiwanians here and civic organizations elsewhere in an effort to further advertise the Carolinas.

Dr. H. G. Duncan, of Boulder, Colorado, native of Wilkes, who has become nationally known as a writer and educator, and who has traveled throughout the entire nation, writes The Journal-Patriot the following letter regarding his native state:

I was very much impressed with your editorial, "Advertising Our State," in "The Journal-Patriot" of September 6. It has long been my conviction that North Carolina has much more to offer in way of scenic interest than out-of-state people are aware and that the natives of the state are not awake to tourist possibilities. As you indicated, Pike's Peak is famous not for its priority in height (there are 17 peaks in Colorado that are higher), but because it has had a Colorado Springs to advertise it, and a private company to encourage tourists to use the toll-trip drive. On the other hand, Mount Evans, which we climbed the other Sunday, is hardly known outside the state. Yet it has an altitude of 14,259 feet and is 149 feet higher than Pike's Peak. The top of Mount Evans is reached by a free road, the highest automobile road in the United States. To be sure, North Carolina's peaks are not so high as those of Colorado, but they rise from a low base, whereas Mt. Evans and Pike's rise from an elevated plain which is itself over a mile high. What the Appalachians lack in barren majestic grandeur, they possess in forest-clad slopes, shady dells, and luxuriant undergrowth.

Nor were comparisons less favorable on our recent 4,056-mile tour of the Rocky Mountain region—my eighth time across them. In fact the almost impassable national highway in some sections and the miles of desert waste caused us to designate a portion of Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, eastern Washington, Nevada, and Utah as the land both God and the politicians forgot. It is our conviction that a number of people from Wilkes and adjoining counties, who sought their fortunes in these states, left a state of greater opportunities.

Yet it must be admitted that our trip revealed to us many beauties of nature not found elsewhere. Mrs. Duncan and I left Boulder, Colorado, and drove across barren Wyoming through the famous Jackson Hole country to Jackson the first day—a distance of 534 miles. The next day we entered Yellowstone by the southern entrance and passed through the Teton forest, flanked by the mighty Teton mountains. Boiling springs, geysers, lakes, water-falls, and roaring mountains greeted us and impressed us in a way never to be forgotten. Leaving Yellowstone we went to Glacier National Park in northern Montana and Canada. Driving over the famous Logan Pass we viewed glaciers and snow-capped mountains, the like of which we had never before beheld. Passing on across Idaho into northern Washington, we visited Mrs. Duncan's uncle. While there we made a trip into British Columbia, Canada.

Leaving northern Washington we came through Yakima and Yakima valley where a number of Wilkes people live. As we passed through Washington, snow-capped Mount Ranier loomed up in the west and Mount Hood in the south. Crossing over in Oregon we took the noted Columbia River down to Portland. Many waterfalls have we seen, but none so beautiful as these. Crossing Oregon we passed through miles and miles of lava beds and caves where not a thing grows, although volcanic action ceased hundreds of years ago. Next we visited Crater Lake, a body of water some six miles long and 2,000 feet deep, which occupies the crater of an extinct volcano. Leaving Oregon we passed down into northern California and viewed Mount Shasta and Mount Lassen, the only active volcano in the United States. We then made our way to Lake Tahoe on the California-Nevada line, and continued through Nevada and Utah. The Great Salt desert in Utah reminds one of a vast stretch of glistening snow, the Mormon temple block of a hot house of rare flowers. On our way back to Boulder, we visited Rocky Mountain National park, for the second time, arriving this time just as the sun was sinking behind rugged, ice-clad mountains.

Now, I feel somewhat qualified to pass judgment on the relative merits of my native state, North Carolina, having traveled by train in all the states and by automobile in all but four, having lived for a year or more in ten, and having visited the major places of interest. Of course North Carolina does not have a Yellowstone and an Old Faithful, a Glacier National, a Cra-

FAMILY PROTECTION

We realize that an insurance policy of only $50.00 on children and $100.00 on adults may seem very small but when we have gone as far as we can with those we love and the time arrives that we have to think of placing them away, even this would be of great help to most of us.
