Carolina Route Is Selected For Scenic Parkway

North Carolina and Virginia Will Get All of Great Parkway Boulevard

FOLLOWS BLUE RIDGE

Route South of Blowing Rock Will Traverse Mountains Near Asheville

Washington, Nov. 12.—Setting aside the conclusions of the special Radcliffe committee, Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, today formally announced his decision in favor of the North Carolina route to connect, by scenic highway, the Shenandoah and the Great Smoky Mountains national park, a project the cost of which is now estimated at $16,000,000 but which will probably call, eventually, for a greater outlay.

The announcement of Secretary Ickes took the form of a press memorandum, to which was attached copies of letters scheduled to reach the governors of North Carolina and Tennessee today, the press notice and letters presenting the Skyway project comprehensively, and providing for North Carolina an excellent and wholly adequate brief, for the secretary stressed points which he felt spokesmen for the state had given only cursory attention.

Mr. Ickes was apparently moved by the fear that Tennessee, with an entrance to the park already assured at Gatlinburg, would one day run the risk of being considered a road hog if present aspirations were realized; there was the conclusion that the North Carolina route possessed infinitely the greater merit, scenically, and would one day serve as a logical link in that still greater concept, a national skyway that would traverse the vast territory extending from the White Mountains of New England, to the region of the Stone Mountain in Georgia.

The definite location of the parkway is yet to be mapped, but Secretary Ickes' order today, together with his announcement in July, establishes the parkway as follows:

Leaving the Skyland drive, which runs from the northern to southern boundary of the Shenandoah National park, the parkway will follow the main ridge formation to the James river. From there it will go to Adney gap just below Roanoke, Va., and then by Pinnacles of Dan and close to Fancy gap, entering North Carolina about 10 miles northwest of Mt. Airy. The route then passes Laurel Springs, Glendale Springs and to Blowing Rock, after leaving Blowing Rock the route runs west leaving Linville City to the south, but taking in the scenery around Linville. Unemployment Insurance In New Deal Plan

Job Insurance Will Be One of Big Measures of Next Session of Congress

PRESIDENT SPEAKS

Washington, Nov. 14.—The broad outlines of a social security plan, definitely incorporating unemployment insurance as a part of the next congressional program, were sketched today by President Roosevelt and turned over to a group of experts for refining.

The immediate objectives of the program the President has decided upon were:

Unemployment insurance of a cooperative federal-state form; the funds to be held and invested by the federal government; the benefits to be administered by the states.

Enactment of state laws to carry out such a program.

Jobs For Idle

An effort to bring the persons now on relief rolls back into productive employment and thereby put them under the insurance system.

From a long range standpoint, he proposed:

A uniform system to provide security for the aged.

A method, perhaps through insurance, for providing against the economic loss due to sickness.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that his unemployment insurance plan "must be financed by contributions, not taxes." He did not expand this idea, but many of his hearers interpreted his words to mean that those benefiting would be expected to contribute the necessary funds. Under this meaning both employer and employee would join in advancing the money. Labor has contended that industry should be assessed for the entire fund.

In a brief talk, the President outlined these objectives to his committee on economic security and its newly created advisory council. He turned over to them the job of shaping into a weapon for a "bold stroke" toward economic security the hundreds of proposals that had been presented during an all day session.

Five Valuable Prizes Will Be Given For Best Record of 1934 Crop

Saturday of this week will be a banner day for the corn club members of Wilkes County when they gather at the courthouse in Wilkesboro with their exhibits and record books to compete for a number of valuable prizes.

The prizes will be awarded for the best crop record. Each club member has a record book, in which he is supposed to set down the date and time required of all work on his acre of corn, at the same time keeping an accurate account of all cost and relating such interesting experiences about the work as the book calls for.

The prizes will not be based on yield alone but on all qualities that go toward making a good record.

Among the agricultural authorities who will be present for Achievement Day will be District Agent O. F. McCreary and a representative of the Chilean Nitrate Company, who will make brief talks.

The program for the day, including the judging, will last until about noon. All club members are required to attend and the public has a most cordial invitation to be present.

Ralph Davis Is Now Being Tried

Witness Says Desperado and Not Deputy Killed Iredell County Sheriff

Statesville, Nov. 13.—In today's evidence against Ralph Davis, 25, Davidson county outlaw, who is being tried in Iredell Superior court for the fatal shooting of Sheriff Godfrey C. Kimball on August 17, the state presented a number of witnesses to show that Ralph Davis shot the sheriff at close range, and that he was not accidentally shot by a deputy, as was alleged by ballistic experts.

Judge A. M. Stack, of Monroe, is presiding and the jury is composed of 11 Mecklenburg county citizens and one Iredell man.

Deputy Sheriff R. L. Gilbert, who was shot in the left leg during the pistol battle with Davis at a tenant house on the G. W. Dry farm, 10 miles east of Statesville, told of going with Sheriff Kimball and Deputy Sims to the tenant house, occupied by Cal Turner and family, and of the officers seeing the automobile belonging to Mayor E. R. Rankin parked behind the house.

Lavis, who is alleged to have stolen the Statesville mayor's car a week before, ran out the back door, forced the sheriff to lift both hands above his head, and then Davis allegedly shot Deputy Gilbert in the leg as Gilbert came out of the back door. Gilbert said Kimball was between him and Davis and he did not shoot at Davis until after the sheriff was shot.

BUTTERFAT NOW 30 CENTS POUND

Farmers Urged to Conserve Feed and Remodel Cow Barns For Winter

For the first time since the establishment of the Scott Cheese and Butter Company plant here two years ago the price being paid to farmers for butterfat is 30 cents per pound, Assistant County Agent W. N. Wood stated today.

This rise in price to pre-depression figures has created a spirit of optimism among the farmers that indicates still further development of dairy farming in the county.

Soon after the cheese plant was located here the actual depression and glutted markets affected the dairying industry and butterfat prices hit the toboggan. There is every indication now that the present price can be maintained if business conditions generally continue to have a better outlook.

Although the volume of milk being manufactured by the plant here is increasing vast additional quantities can be handled and farm authorities are urging farmers to keep more and better cows and to care for them better.

Mr. Wood calls attention of the farmers to the fact that there is a substantial profit in producing milk when butterfat is 30 cents per pound, especially where the farmer manages his farm on a business basis and grows his own feed. The widespread use of the trench silo is lowering the upkeep cost of the milk cow, he stated, and manure from the farmers' herds are resulting in vastly improved farms.

Will De-horn Cows
Mr. Wood stated further that his services are available at any time for any farmer who wishes to de-horn cows or to remodel cow barns. He will furnish plans and assist any farmers to remodel his barn into the adopted dairy type, which is arranged for convenience and for the good of the milk producing animals.
