Spainhours Are Preparing For Fine New Store

Extensive Remodeling To Be Done; Four Buyers Now in New York City

Spainhour's, widely known mercantile establishment here, is today stating plans for a fine new store, which will be opened as soon as the building, badly damaged by fire on November 4, can be remodeled and placed in first class condition.

In anticipation of this event four buyers of the firm are now in New York City selecting merchandise. A few days ago J. E. Spainhour, head of the chain of Spainhour stores, left for New York, together with Eugene Spainhour, of Elkin, Lincoln Spainhour, of North Wilkesboro, and Herbert Jeffries, from their Hickory store. Lincoln Spainhour and Mr. Jeffries are attending the shoe convention and are buying a stock of shoes.

J. E. and Eugene Spainhour are buying other lines, such as a complete new stock of piece goods, ready-to-wear and kindred lines.

Announcement was made last night that the entire remaining stock of the fire merchandise would be closed out completely to the very last yard of cloth and very last pair of shoes. Nothing now on hand will be left in the store when it reopens for remodeling. During the last several days of January their store will be closed for re-modeling.

Plans have been made for modernizing this into a much finer place than it was, even before the fire. More new and modern equipment, new arrangement of departments, and many other changes will make their store here one of the outstanding in Western North Carolina.

Mr. Spainhour states that "the great improvement in general conditions justifies larger and more complete stocks—and also justifies handling even higher grade, higher priced merchandise as well as the other more popularly priced lines. But, those of our many customers who want the less expensive merchandise will not be forgotten. For our big bargain basement is being stocked more completely than ever before.

"The fire was a terrible thing and I hope we will never experience another. However, while we are at it, we expect to fix this store up in such a manner that the good folks of Wilkes and neighboring counties will point to it with pride—it will be more than just a store—it will be a regular institution.

"Can I touch you for five dollars?"
"For five dollars you can sock me on the jaw!"

"Imitation of Life" Develops New Baby Star

She cannot read or write. She forgets her lines and then makes up her own version. She pokes fun at her director. In spite of this Baby Jane has such an impression in her first Universal talkie role that she was signed to a long term contract. This contract covers twice as many years as her present age. She won it for her work in "Imitation of Life" as the daughter of Claudette Colbert, who is starred with Warren William in the screen version of Fannie Hurst's novel which has just been booked for the New Orpheum theatre for a two-day run on Monday and Tuesday.

During the filming of "Imitation of Life" Baby Jane was treated just like a grown up. She had her own little canvas chair on the set like her elders, with her name stencilled on the back. She had a "stand in," a little girl exactly her own age and height. This is not very old or very tall, for Jane is only three and stands but thirty-three inches from top to toe. She weighs thirty-three pounds.

Every day Jane brought her toys with her to the studio while she was acting in the Fannie Hurst film. She had an Aunt Jemima doll with a bandanna handkerchief on its head. Before she would go on the set to act she would sit this doll in her own canvas chair. On its lap she set a small China teacup with a broken handle. This cup is one of her most treasured possessions.

Now and then Jane would forget the next word in her lines and put in one of her own. Occasionally they were improvements because they were more like what a child would say. In such cases, the correction was allowed to stand on the sound track and director John M. Stahl would give Jane an ice-cream cone.
