U. S. CONTRACT FOR REFRIGERATORS IS GIVEN KELVINATOR

Of interest to American housewives who take much time in purchasing their household appliances and other articles for use around the home, is the fact that the United States government itself is somewhat of an exacting shopper.

Calling for bids from which it was to make blanket awards for 1935 purchases of electric refrigerators by various federal departments, the government this year imposed a set of requirements that even the most discerning and mechanical minded housewife would rarely think of when she went shopping for a refrigerator.

According to information received by Kelvinator Corporation, who was given fourteen awards out of a total of fifteen refrigerator models on which it submitted bids, the government awards contracts on the basis of overall operating cost and efficiency over a ten-year period. Taken into consideration were initial cost, cost of operation, efficiency of refrigeration and ice freezing under extreme heat conditions, current consumption and cost of replacement parts.

Five porcelain finished Kelvinator models which were approved for marine use had to qualify under even stricter conditions, among which was the ability to operate during a rolling and pitching test during which time the refrigerator was standing at various angles as sharp as 40 degrees from the vertical.

The government's electric refrigerator requirements were much stricter this year and this tightening of federal requirements reflects, according to Kelvinator, a general insistence on the part of the public in general on higher quality and greater value in electric refrigeration products.

Ford Sales Will Reach 500,000 By The End of April

Detroit, April 19.—Figures released today by the Ford Motor Co. tend to prove that the projection of the founder of the company made late last year—1,000,000 cars and trucks in 1935—wasn't a wild guess on his part. Providing demand holds up as anticipated, it is expected at Dearborn that the goal will be reached as predicted.

This anticipation is based on returns made by W. C. Cowling, general sales manager, which show that in the first quarter of this year and up to April 10, Ford sales had totaled 334,437 cars and trucks. By the end of the month, Dearborn does not hesitate to say, the company will have produced better than 500,000—four months' production.

HALF MILLIONTH 1935 FORD IS PRODUCED

Dearborn, Mich., April 22.—The 500,000th Ford V-8 manufactured since January 1 came off the final assembly line at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company soon after the plant began work this morning, it was announced at the Ford office today. This does not include the 36,000-odd 1935 Ford units produced during November and December 1934.

The completion of the 500,000th Ford V-8 unit marked the half-way point in the Ford program for the year, based upon Henry Ford's announcement last December of his plans to build "one million cars or better" in 1935.

Ford production for the first four months through April 30 is expected, according to present schedules, to approximate 550,000 units. First quarter production totalled 336,326 units and the schedule for April calls for 165,000 more.

ONE-CENT SALE AT THE REXALL STORE

Starting Wednesday and continuing through the remainder of the week, the Rexall Store will conduct its annual spring one-cent sale. Hundreds of needed articles to be found in an up-to-date and modern drug store will go on sale Wednesday at regular prices with the customer being given an opportunity to buy another article similar for only one cent.

Over 25 years ago Louis K. Liggett, now president of the United Drug company, inaugurated the one-cent sale idea and over this long period of time such sales have been conducted by the Rexall and Liggett stores in this and other countries.

"Only a Rexall store can offer you a genuine one-cent sale," the management of the local Rexall store states, "and the Rexall system distributes more drug store merchandise than any other in the United States."
