virtues and to appreciate them. Many people measure up to until storm and stress overwhelm them. But the storms and vicissiqualities of a real man and only real men can survive the strain. Such was C. Y. Miller.

There are those who do the best they know but are dull and Indian Reservation near Asheexert little effort to find out. He not only did the right as he understood it, but he took the pains to find out the right. His conscience was keen to discern the difference between right and wrong, for he had not dulled it, nor had it been "seared" over as with a hot iron." After all is said and done, earth affords no means to man by which he can is comparable to a keen con-WANT ADS to do so when they are due and with a keener or swifter conscience than he. Again, there are those who discern accurately the thing to do, but lack courage and perseverance to pursue it. Yet he followed the dictates of his conscience without fear and without regard to cost. If his path of duty led differently from the direction of his friends or family or party or creed, he followed faithfully the course of right as he saw it. Lovalty is an indespensible virtue to a great soul. He was loyal to every trust. As a neighbor, he was kind, accomodating, Va. helpful and patient. To his church he gave of self and substance. To his family he gave his strength and his life to provide for them. Labor is an attribute of a Godly man. He worked when he was physically unable to do so. There was not a lazy bone in him. He Dorothy L. Foster: believed it when God commanded man "to live by the sweat of his face". In these last years of hardship and scarcity of jobs, he worked at anything his hands found to do. Unable to locate work at home, and rather than to accept support from his government which is now supporting one person out of five throughout the country, he trayelled back and forth to Morganton in order that he might support his family by his work. While thus engaged, he fell out Carolina; of the ranks on earth, to rest forever in that realm where toll and sorrow never enter, to "rest in the shade of the trees." · His uprightlife has lifted those who came in contact with it and h_{Θ} made the world better by living in it and his departure leaves us one light less to guide us. Various causes have contributed to the delay in starting the project, the foremost having been the tying up of available funds by delay in passing the $4,880,-000,000 work relief bill and slowness on the part of North Carolina and Virginia in securing necessary rights of way. The right of way will be 1, 000 feet wide over that considerable portion of the route which will pass through government lands. The right of way through privately owned lands will average 800 feet, but will be as narrow as 200 feet in some places.

Bryan, of Traphill, was happily married to Mr. Edward Morgan Fries, of Murphy, on May 14th at the old Eryan home by Rev. Rufus Morgan of Columbia, S. C., uncle of the groom, in the presence of the immediate families of both bride and groom. The bride is a graduate of Berea college in Kentucky and has been teaching home economics at the John B. Campbell folk school for the past five years. The groom is a graduate of State College at Raleigh and now holds a responsible position as agricultural manager at Banners Elk where they are now making their home. The bride carrying a bunch of white roses and dressed in white was given away by her father in front of the rose covered family altar which dates back more than a century. The ceremony was the impressive Episcopal ring ceremony and the ring was the same that was used by the groom's grandmother. Relatives of the groom were Mrs. Esther Fries, mother, and Miss Helen Fries, sister, of Murphy, Miss Lucy Morgan, aunt, of Penland. The bride's relatives present were J. W. and T. R. Bryan and families and Miss Vera Bryan, sister of the bride. Their many friends wish them a long life of happiness. Colored Resident Dies Geneva Wood, age 53, daughter of William and Susan Hayes Wood, colored residents of this city, died Sunday afternoon.
