"They that govern most make least noise," observes a writer. That being the case, this is a day of mighty little government.—Savannah Morning News.

As long ago as '33, we predicted someone would make the race in 1936 on the platform that his brain was afflicted with no trust.—Atlanta Constitution.

War Touches Us All

Nothing could more effectively demonstrate to everybody the fact that war or even the threat of war involving one of the major Western nations, touches the interest of every other nation and of all of their people, than the excitement and concern now being exhibited in all of the world's capitals over the questions which have been raised by the advance of Italy upon Ethiopia.

Italy is more than 3,000 miles from the United States and Ethiopia is still farther away, yet the question of our own neutrality and of what our Government should do toward cooperating to prevent the war is a vital and important one. It is one thing to talk about prohibiting the sale of war supplies to one or both belligerents in a war. It is quite another thing to make such prohibition effective.

What are war supplies? Canada has announced that she will not dump her wheat reserves on the market but will hold them in the expectation of high prices, because of this war. Wheat is a war supply, no less than bullets or gunpowder.

We earnestly hope that our nation will not become involved in any way that will further strain our relations with Italy and the rest of the world, but we believe it would be in the interest of every American for our State Department to lend all the moral support possible to the efforts which the other great nations are making to avert this silly and senseless war.

Needing A Revival

Two years ago a citizens association was organized in Wilkes county and it had as its purpose the curtailment of crime. Apparently it really did accomplish much.

We have not experienced a crime wave of alarming proportions this year but it is time, nevertheless, to have a revival of old time law observance and civil living. It is time to get down to earth, stop seeking thrills and notorious attention, and lead sensible lives that will have an influence on those who may already be criminally minded.

The citizens association was formed for the purpose of teaching law observance and lending an influence to the average individual that would cause him to realize his duty toward the law and society.

Very little of any consequence can be accomplished by officers, be they ever so efficient, if people are in sympathy with crime instead of the law. There is too great a tendency to "held out" deliberate law breakers when a genuine citizen should take a hand to see that he is punished.

We do not believe in being hard on any person who is really good at heart who makes a mistep and believe that every influence should be given to lift him up instead of pushing him down. The point we wish to make is that we have a certain per cent of our population, a very small per cent, in Wilkes County who continuously and wilfully violate the law. Many of them are ex-convicts who bear the stigma of prison incarceration. Others have so far escaped the law and on many occasions because the citizens of the community in which they lived failed to render an active cooperation that calls for a firm stand for a decent society.

Starting To School

Today is the date for thousands of children in Wilkes county to start in elementary schools and on Monday the high school children will begin the year's work.

Possibly we have written on this subject before but we cannot resist the opportunity to again say a word to school children.

We believe in children enjoying schools. We think that school life should be made interesting with work and play interspersed in such a manner that school life will never grow listless and dull.

Yet, we cannot do other than impress upon school children, especially those in the higher grades, their duties and responsibilities in school. School, with all its joys and cheerfulness, should be taken seriously by each student.

When the public school system was first instituted the colloquial name was "free schools," which in itself is misleading. Even if tuition is not charged, schools are by no means free but are costing heavily each day they operate.

In addressing this editorial to school children we would say that your parents are paying for the schools, paying every day. In this state the system of taxation for schools is such that every time you make a purchase of ten cents or more you are taxed to help maintain a school term of eight months without tuition costs.

Thus it is seen that every person pays for the schools and sometimes those pay who are destitute. If a child who has reached the age of common knowledge does not make the best of school opportunities he or she is proving to be ungrateful and does not show appreciation for the opportunities afforded.

Go to school the first day and every day if you wish to make the most of the opportunities. Be on time. Show an interest in the routine school work of the schoolroom as well as outdoor play. If you do this you will find that you will ultimately enjoy school better by having put your best into it. In mature life you will be able to appreciate the opportunities that you either took advantage of or discarded because of indifference.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. CHARLES E. DUNN

LYDIA AND PRISCILLA
Lesson For September 8th. Acts 16:11-15
Golden Text: Proverbs 31:31

How attractive is Lydia, of Thyatira, a seller of purple in Philippi! A woman of abundant means, she apparently belonged to a guild of dyers which carried on a flourishing business in the sale of high-grade purple cloth. There is reason to believe that she was at the head of a large firm employing many women. How modern she thus seems! If alive today, she would be a forceful public leader.

But, in another sense, Lydia is not typical of the modern spirit. For she was a devout worshipper who took the trouble to go "out of the city by a river side, where prayer was wont to be made." (Acts 16:13.) In these days when folk are so careless about church attendance, offering all manner of excuses, it is pleasant to think of the genuine piety of Lydia.

Luke tells us that "the Lord opened" Lydia's heart. Paul's preaching inspired her to give her heart to Christ and to be baptized together with her household." And then, to prove the sincerity of her profession, she invited Paul and his three companions to accept the hospitality of her comfortable home.

Priscilla was also, it appears, a woman of wealth. She evidently belonged to the nobility, being of higher social rank than her husband Aquila. Of more commanding personality than Aquila, she was a very active worker in the primitive church. The two of them together furnish the finest example we have in the New Testament of a husband and wife united in the successful promotion of the gospel. Harnack, the German scholar, thinks that Priscilla, with the aid of Aquila, wrote the great letter to the Hebrews. However this may be, it is clear that their partnership with Paul was extremely fruitful. Under his tutelage they became expert evangelists of the greatest value both to Paul and the Christian Cause.

This Week In Washington

Washington, Sept. 2. (Associated Press)—The President, after a short vacation, is going on the road to sell the New Deal to the people of the United States. In his sample case he will carry a line of new goods, produced under his direction by the 74th Congress in its first session.

First on his list of goods is the Social Security Act, with old age pensions for everybody and unemployment insurance for industrial workers. Mr. Roosevelt regards this as perhaps his choicest piece of merchandise. In the cities he will show the Wagner Labor Disputes Act, with its protection of the right of collective bargaining, while in the rural districts he will exhibit the amendments to the Agricultural Administration Act and the revised Frasier-Lemke farm mortgage law.

For everybody's benefit, the President can display the new Banking Act, increasing the Federal Reserve Board's control of credits; the act for the Federal regulation of public utility holding companies; the interstate bus and truck regulation act, and the billion-dollar appropriation for national defense.

Also, in Sample Case—The bulkiest item in his sample case is the $4,800,000,000 appropriation for Work Relief. It is calculated to appeal strongly to people of every section and class. How much of a display Mr. Roosevelt will make of the new income-tax law is a bit doubtful. Congress did not construct that according to his specifications, since the main feature which he urged, the inheritance tax, was omitted. However, it will serve as it stands as evidence of his intention to carry out the promise of his inaugural address, of a more equitable distribution of wealth.

For the coal miners and the bituminous coal industry he can point with justifiable pride to the Guffey-Snyder Act, applying NRA principles to the soft-coal industry. For railroad workers, he can point to the Wagner-Crosser railway pension law.

Those are only the major items of New Deal legislation enacted at the session of Congress just ended. There is still much unfinished business in both Houses. Left hanging in the air are the Pure Food and Drug bill, ship subsidy legislation, war-profits regulation (although a neutrality resolution prohibiting sales of war supplies to belligerents was rushed through in the closing hours of the session), regulation of commodity exchanges, regulation of water transportation, the Bankhead farm tenant relief bill, the Black 30-hour week bill, and the Wagner plan for general prohibition of child labor.

Four Months From Now

Some of the New Dealers are insisting that all of those left-over laws and a few more must be enacted at the next session of this Congress, which will begin next January. Between now and January there will be ample time to find out how the American people like what has been done so far, and the public reaction to the record and to the President's public account of his stewardship, will have a great deal to do with the plans for the next session. Four months of personal contact with their constituents will give many Senators and Representatives a clearer idea of where they and the Administration stand with the voters.

The Supreme Court may also figure in the picture. It is expected to pass this Fall on some more of the New Deal legislation of the previous Congress, if not of this one.

The Congressional recess will not mean a long vacation for many of the members. Seven Senate Committees and eight of the House will carry on investigations of a wide range of public questions. Among the investigations which are expected to produce at least newspaper headlines, if not useful information on which to base future legislation, are those into the activities of lobbies of all sort, chain stores and their lobbying operations, the Virgin Islands administration, bankruptcy practices in the Federal Courts, and the air-mail transport concerns.

Surveying the congressional debris left lying around in the mad rush of the boys on Capital Hill to get back home, one item stands out. That is the failure to pass the Patman bonus bill over the President's veto. And the possible result of that failure is giving a good many of the members of both houses something to worry about.

22 persons indicted for the 1934-35 Edward G. Bremer abduction, and arrested near Allendale, Fla. Sunday, were brought here by plane today.

Met at the airport by several carloads of armed officers, they were immediately whisked to the federal building. Federal officials, who had at first declined to discuss their arrival, said they would be questioned and then lodged in the county jail pending arraignment. There was no immediate announcement concerning the time of arraignment.
