

Dellaplane and Roaring River Route 2 News

ROARING RIVER, Route 2.—A successful revival closed the past Sunday at Oak Forest with a baptizing of four at the old Parks Mill. There were eight conversions and six or more additions to the church by baptism and by letter. The pastor, Rev. Pervis C. Parks, who is very popular here, was assisted by Rev. D. C. Clanton, of Hamptonville, who did most of the preaching, and by Rev. Chris Call, of this locality, who is much liked. Mr. Parks preached one of his best sermons the last Sunday on the subject "Christ is crowded out," using the scripture, "There was no room in the inn."

Mrs. Simon Curry, Mrs. Jim Mastin, and Mr. Glenn Tucker went last Saturday to the Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem, to see Mr. Simon Curry, who was critically ill there with a malignant growth on his face.

Mrs. J. S. Pardue was taken back to the Wilkes Hospital to stay a while last week.

A new baby was born to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Harris Tuesday of last week.

Since Mr. and Mrs. Resen Johnson have come under the watchcare of the church at Oak Forest, it is not likely that they are planning to move away to Virginia, or elsewhere, as was reported to this correspondent.

Mr. Roosevelt Love has been building a good smokehouse for some time; and Mr. Thurmond Sparks is said to be building a house.

The preachers, Revs. Pervis C. Parks, of Cycle, D. C. Clanton, of Hamptonville, and C. M. Call, of Wilkesboro route 2, visited in many hospitable and prosperous homes among the church members and others in the community last week. After doing this, Rev. Mr. Parks and Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Call also visited at Mrs. Laura Linney's on last Saturday.

Mrs. Jim Mastin, Mrs. C. M. Call, and daughter, Miss Mabel Call, were dinner guests and spent the afternoon at Mrs. G. W. Cothren's after services at Oak Forest last Thursday.

Mrs. A. H. Roberts was in North Wilkesboro shopping last Thursday afternoon, and Mr. Roberts was there Friday, following service at Oak Forest.

In one of the oddest of odd accidents Sunday, while returning from church at Oak Forest, Mrs. Roxie Love, young woman, stumbled in a gully-like path, fell against Mrs. Laura Linney, who is rather elderly; knocked Mrs. Linney nearly down, and both sustained sprained ankles. Mrs. Linney has since been suffering considerably from bruises, sprains, nausea, and aching from the shaking up, but will recover. They also knocked against the Dellaplane correspondent, who was walking in front, as they fell; but she was not overbalanced and was able to catch Mrs. Linney, but missed Mrs. Love, and did the screaming for the whole party, while the others in the row seemed toppling in every direction. Mrs. Linney said, "The revival came to an end and crippled us."

Messrs. B. L. Johnson and Gordon Harris were ordained deacons at Oak Forest last Friday by Revs. Jervis C. Parks, D. C. Clanton, and C. M. Call.

Miss Ruth Linney was "bound for Shady Grove," in the words of the old song, last Friday morning, but got sidetracked in the Cranberry vicinity, came in "at the back door" at Oak Forest, and spent that afternoon in the Wilkesboros shopping and visiting her aunt, Mrs. D. S. Lane.

Mr. L. M. Jarvis, of the Cranberry settlement on this route, reported that he and his family alternated between the protracted meetings at Shady Grove, Swan Creek, and Oak Forest, the last part of last week, and that the revivals at Shady Grove and Swan Creek were marked by much warmth and spirituality.

Miss Mattie and Armisa Sale and Mrs. Laura Linney were invited last Sunday to hear Mr. Frank T. Llewellyn, clerk of superior court in Surry, speak at a suburban North Wilkesboro church, of which Rev. Richard Day is pastor. The Misses Sale, Mr. Llewellyn, and Mrs. Linney, are very old friends, having been much together at the Boonville "academy" forty-five years ago, when Miss Mattie and Mr. Llewellyn were students and Mrs. Linney taught music.

The Sunday school at Oak Forest will be reorganized next Sunday, according to Mr. G. M. Tucker, who has been the superintendent, or acting superintendent.

Rev. P. C. Parks is going to have the roll called at Saturday meetings at Oak Forest and offer a prize to the members of the church who do not miss, during the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Combs, from the Call section, attended the close of the second revival at Oak Forest last Sunday.

Several of the teachers of the Roaring River school are said to have attended the evening services of the revival at Oak Forest last week.

Growers also are well pleased with the rapid progress of sales made possible by four sets of buyers and a most efficient system of selling. There is no buying, but neither is there any lay and growers are finding the trips to Winston-Salem most pleasant and profitable.—Advertisement.
