

News Of Dellaplane And Roaring River

ROARING RIVER, Route 3, Nov. 11.—The pastor, Rev. Peris Parks, preached at Oak Forest Saturday and Sunday.

The new pastor, Rev. Mr. Lynch, will fill his first appointment with the Roaring River Methodist church next Sunday evening.

There will be a prayer meeting at Oak Forest Saturday night, and one at Mr. Anderson's on Wednesday night. On Saturday night the people will vote whether to continue the Sunday school through the winter.

Boyhood friends here of Judge Phlete A. Martin, for thirty-odd years a judge in the 89th district court of Texas, may be interested to know he is now a Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals and lives at Mt. Worth. His wife, Mrs. L. A. Martin, a native Texan, is in poor health with heart trouble and high blood pressure, their many Wilkes relatives are sorry to know.

November 18, or the first fair day thereafter, was set as the date for the carpenters and other men of the community to meet at Oak Forest and finish the work on the recessed pulpit, belfry, doors, and other improvements, and be ready for the painting. Women of the community were requested to be there with brooms, rakes, and hoes, to clean church, graveyard, and church grounds.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, November 11. (Autoeater)—The best way Washington observers have found of forecasting the Administration's course is by studying the personalities close to the President and noting the rise and fall of their influence with him. All or that the guessing begins—because there is such a wide variety of men and women, holding such a wide diversity of views, all of whom having the Presidential ear to some extent, that nobody can be quite sure whose influence is being exerted most strongly.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has long been a close personal friend of the President and he is regarded here as having steadily increased his influence in the White House. Mr. Morgenthau is very strong for cutting down Government spending, coordinating the work of the emergency agencies and working as fast as possible toward balancing the Federal Budget.

At the opposite end on the question of economy is Harry Hopkins, Relief Administrator, who is also extremely close to the President, and whose philosophy is for giving everybody a job on some Government project.

Personnel of Groups

There is a strong group of conservative Presidential advisers who are extremely critical of Mr. Hopkins' policies. Besides Mr. Morgenthau, these include Professor Raymond Moley, who still has the Presidential ear although he is out of office; Frank C. Walker, who is a definitely conservative influence and is frequently consulted by the President, and Postmaster General Farley, who is the President's most trusted political adviser.

Then there are two distinct groups which are classed by these conservatives as radicals. One of them is headed by Professor Tugwell, who has built up a strong following for his idea that the Government should extend its control over all large industries. Dr. Tugwell is still welcomed at the White House. He has as his right-hand man Gardner C. Means, who functions as a general adviser in the AAA. Another group is headed by Professor Felix Frankfurter, and the belief grows that this group has gained more influence with the President in the last year than any other. The Frankfurter theory of Government relation to business is that business enterprises should be prevented from becoming too large, and should be policed by the Government to prevent them from doing wrong, rather than dictated to or controlled.

Clash of Opinions

Secretary Wallace continues to have close and influential relations with the President. Mr. Wallace is a good deal of a puzzle to Washington. As Secretary of Agriculture he is regarded as doing a good job. As a philosopher, he often expresses himself in ways which would seem to back up the Tugwell theory of Federal control of industry. It is said some bitterness exists in the Administration's official household between the conservatives and those of the Tugwell-Hopkins school of thought. On the conservative side observers here list Secretary of Commerce Roper and Secretary of the Interior Ickes, neither of whom is believed to have any particular influence with the President.

Secretary of State Hull has everybody's respect, but is not a particularly influential figure in shaping Administration policies except in foreign affairs. Joseph Eastman, coordinator of railroads, is very close to the President and regarded as influential. Jesse Jones, head of RFC, is not a close Presidential adviser, though he is well liked as an efficient administrator.

The President is showing an inclination to follow the lead of his conservative advisers, especially in the matter of consolidating emergency agencies and centralizing budget control.

The latest move in this direction is the coordination of all the housing agencies under Peter Grimm. Mr. Grimm has been made Assistant Director of the National Emergency Council. He has been in the real estate business in New York all his life, and is highly regarded as a public-spirited, forward-looking able citizen.

Mr. Grimm has been the backbone of the Citizens Budget Commission of New York City, whose thorough-going investigation of the tax situation and the wastefulness of the city Government under Tammany Hall was largely responsible for the defeat of Tammany and the election of Mayor LaGuardia on a fusion ticket two years ago.

Death of G. F. McNeil

The death of Mr. George Franklin McNeil, of Boomer, which occurred about 4 o'clock p. m., on Tuesday, Nov. 5, was a great shock to the entire community.

Mr. McNeil had been in failing health for several years, but until about a week ago he was thought to be about as well as usual. He developed a deep cold and cough which did not respond to medical treatment. He was seen to be weakening, and the end came peacefully at the time above mentioned. Present in the home at the time of his death were his wife, one son, two daughters, and a few neighbors. He seemed to go off easily, without much of a struggle.

George Franklin McNeil was a son of the late Jesse McNeil and Susan Taylor McNeil. He was born June 14, 1866, and died Nov. 5, 1935, being 69 years, 4 months and 23 days old at the time of his death.

Mr. McNeil professed faith in Christ more than 40 years ago and joined the Baptist church in his community. During the last five or six years of his life he was a faithful member of Mt. Carmel Baptist church, and as long as he was able to get about he was always in his place at the church services. Mr. McNeil was a man of sterling character, deep religious convictions, and unwavering faith. With him there was no such thing as compromising with evil, and the thing that he believed to be right was the law of his life.

For many years Mr. McNeil was engaged in the mercantile business, having operated successful stores at different points in Wilkes and other counties. He was also a splendid farmer, with a knowledge of seeds and soils, cultivation and rotation of crops, that made him outstanding among the small farmers of his community.

Mr. McNeil was twice married—first (about 43 years ago) to Miss Julia Elma Rash, who died about 27 years ago. Second marriage (in 1914) to Miss Launa Walsh. Surviving are his wife and the following children. From the first marriage: C. C. McNeil and J. P. McNeil, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.; John M. McNeil, Chapel Hill; Mrs. David McLain, Upton, N. C.; Mrs. Fred Arnold, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Clay Shepherd, Ferguson; Mrs. Daisy McNeil Coffey, Millers Creek; Miss Pearl McNeil, Charlotte. From the second marriage: Wilson McNeil and Miss Ruth McNeil, Boomer. Also surviving are three brothers and one sister: Robert McNeil, Millers Creek; William McNeil, Charlotte; James McNeil, Spokane, Washington; and Mrs. Carrie Church, Ronda.

The funeral and burial services at Pleasant Home Baptist church, near Millers Creek, at 3 o'clock p. m., Wednesday, Nov. 6, were in charge of Rev. Isaac Watts, Rev. Hubert Bullis, and others. The abundant floral tribute gave beautiful and fitting testimony to the esteem in which the departed was held by his friends and neighbors. One is gone whose place in the home and the community can never be filled.

Trade Barriers Cause Of Wars, President Says

Washington, Nov. 11.—Harry L. Hopkins reported to President Roosevelt today that six states—Florida, Georgia, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota and South Carolina—contributed no state funds for relief during the five years ending June 30, 1935.

Kansas, which Hopkins asserted recently had not put up a "this time" of state funds, was shown to have supplied $200,670 during that period.

The relief administration report for July listed the total from 42 states at $532,945,333. Contributions from local governments were not given, but a survey of the cost of relief from January, 1933, through July, 1935, gave this breakdown: Federal $2,524,246,788; state, $484,519,964; local, $584,183,083; total, $3,593,949,785.

"If we as a nation, by our good example, can contribute to the peaceful well-being of the fellowship of nations," the Chief Executive said, "our course through the years will not have been in vain."

Stresses Need of Peace

Stressing again and again a need of peace, the President asserted it was "the primary purpose" of this nation to avoid being drawn into war. At the same time, he pledged "adequate" preparedness. Then, speaking of "dangers" confronting man-kind, he said:

"Jealousies between nations continue; armaments increase; national ambitions that disturb the world's peace are thrust forward. Most serious of all, international confidence in the sacredness of international contracts is on the wane."

Mrs. Binford Speaks To Room Representatives of Wilkesboro High School

Mrs. Raymond Binford, field secretary of the Parent-Teacher Association, gave a most interesting and helpful lecture to the room representatives and executive board of the Wilkesboro Parent-Teacher Association at the home of Mrs. Julius Hubbard, on Friday afternoon.

In her speech, Mrs. Binford outlined helpful plans for the work and cooperation of the grade mothers with the teachers and parents. Plans for a study group were also discussed.

To close the afternoon, Mrs. Hubbard, assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. W. White, served dainty refreshments.
