

Seawell Advocates 'G-Men' Plan

Attorney General in Favor of Setting Up State Department of Justice

Chapel Hill, Nov. 19.—Attorney General A. F. Seawell, in appeal for a state department of justice, declared last night before the North Carolina club here that the state of North Carolina has no state-wide organized crime, but a majority of opinion indicates that the state should establish a department of justice in the very near future.

Mr. Seawell's address formalized the 21st year of the club, established in 1914 to afford accurate and intimate knowledge of their state for its members.

"There is," Mr. Seawell said, "a general desire on the part of many people in this state to set up a system of better law enforcement."

"The time has come," he continued, "when we cannot deal with crime on a neighborhood basis since the neighborhood is a thing of the past. . . . Our neighborhood institutions are gone. . . . They have been centralized into statewide institutions and so has crime, yet our court system with its hundreds of judges has gone back to the old Judicial decisions and policies for guidance. . . . We must have a remodeling of our judicial system."

The speaker went on to show that the low standard of law enforcement is not, however, entirely the fault of the courts since, he said, "they cannot be blamed for that which is never brought before them (about 85 per cent of all crime) which is the real breakdown in the enforcement of our state criminal laws."

"The appalling increase in crime," stated Mr. Seawell, "has occurred because of the failure of the state to participate in the enforcement of its own laws. . . . The policy seems to be to regard crime waves simply as periodic and inevitable occurrences which will subside naturally, but the natural conditions conducive to an increase in crime in this state have not kept pace with the actual increase in crime. . . . Society does not have an equal showing with crime now and the only way that we can secure this is through reform of the courts."

The state official said that "we have depended upon the faith cure long enough. . . . The people can and will protect society from crime." For this he advocated a state department of justice, not patterned especially after the federal department of justice, which would unify and co-ordinate the influences and means now available for fighting crime.

Welfare Clause Is Used By Attorneys In Defense of AAA

Federal Arguments Given Court In Hoosac Mill Case; Power Is Not Limited

Washington, Nov. 18.—Exhaustive arguments seeking to uphold the new deal's farm program as a constitutional exercise of financial and general welfare powers were placed before the Supreme court today by administration lawyers.

Attorney General Cummings headed the battery of attorneys whose names were signed to a 280-page brief and a 100-page appendix aggressively defending AAA processing taxes in the Hoosac mill case, which will be argued orally December 9.

The brief was filed shortly after the court had set December 19 as the date for argument on validity of the Tennessee Valley Authority act, and had consented to pass within the next few months on the claim of Gov. Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, that the Bankhead cotton control act is invalid.

Government Contentions

In an obvious attempt to leave no avenue of argument unexplored, the government's AAA brief contended:

1. Processing taxes constitute a valid exercise of the powers of Congress under the constitution, in that they are geographically uniform excises.
2. The delegation of legislative authority through which the secretary of agriculture fixed the amounts of such taxes was not improper because Congress had set up standards to guide him.
3. If there had been improper delegation, subsequent ratification of the taxes by Congress through last August's AAA amendments "has cured the defect."
4. The milling company has no right to question the uses by Congress of the powers.
5. If such appropriations may be questioned, use of the revenues for rental and benefit payments "to bring about increased farm income and a resurgence of business activity was clearly for the general welfare."
6. The act also was a valid exercise of Congress' fiscal powers in that it was "reasonably designed to protect the fiscal agencies of the government and to restore and maintain the credit necessary to the economic life of the country."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

and You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world is punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum. Expect them to make you suddenly sweet, buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out is in your liver. It should pour out two quarts of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If your bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels, bloats up your stomach. You have a bad taste and your breath is foul. You often break out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes these good, old CARTER'S LIVER PILLS to get these two quarts of bile flowing freely and make you "go up." They contain wonderful, genuine vegetable extracts, amazing in their ability to make the bile flow freely.

Don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Liver Pills on the red label. Resist all imitations. Buy at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

Vocational Guidance Community Challenge

R. S. Proctor, assistant director in charge of student aid for the National Youth Administration in North Carolina, recently released the following article, which no doubt will be of interest to people of many communities:

One of the objectives of the National Youth Administration is the sponsoring of vocational guidance service to youth. So far as the North Carolina Youth Administration is concerned sponsoring must necessarily mean rendering aid in the nature of suggestions and plans for organizing the service locally on a voluntary basis. The limited staff of the State Administration makes it impossible to give much time in personal supervision of guidance services to any single community.

However, guidance of youth is, after all, a community or local responsibility. There are two groups of youths that need guidance—the in-school group and the out-of-school, unemployed group. The logical agency for the guidance of the in-school group is the local school. The agency for the guidance of the out-of-school, unemployed group is that agency which, seeing the tremendous need, will assume the responsibility. Maybe the local school will expand its service to reach this group; maybe the parent-teacher association or some other civic organization will utilize the human resources for guidance that exist in the community. There are in most communities men and women who can lend a helping hand to youth in its distress. Around this group could be organized a guidance or adjustment service that could reach youth in a very effective way.

The North Carolina Youth Administration welcomes the opportunity to aid communities in establishing guidance services. It will be glad to assist in any way its resources will permit.

Youth calls for help. Every community faces a challenge.
