The Chicago publisher, in a speech prepared for delivery before a McKinley day dinner of the Cleveland Tippecanoe club. drew sharp distinction between what he termed a "socialistic new deal party" and the Democratic party.

He described the Supreme court as "the one remaining American body in Washington."

"There is no middle ground," Knox said, referring to the dilemma he proposed.

Kidnap Threat Sent Governor

Boston, Feb. 2.-Francis Curley, 12-year-old son of Governor James M. Curley, went to church today guarded by a State trooper after a kidnap threat reported by his father.

Last night, in Washington, Governor Curley said he had received a letter, mailed in the Back Bay section, saying: "Your son Francis will be kidnaped within a week."

The Governor said the matter had been turned over to Eugene M. McSweeney, police commissioner in Boston, and that the latter had called in the Department of Justice. A high official in the Boston office of the Justice department, who declined to permit his name to be used, said, however, he had not seen the letter.

It was so cold, says another. that when he spit the expectoration froze in the wind, which blew the ice back into his face and knocked him flat.

Still another says that two hoboes kindled a bonfire to warm their bodies and that the flames froze. How they plan to get on easy street by grinding the frozen flames and putting them on the market as a substitute for red pepper this summer.

But the biggest one heard so far was from the man who said that he threw hot water into the air one morning and it froze so rapidly that the ice was still warm when it hit the ground.

Resettlement Aims

"Many persons have the wrong idea about the Resettlement Administration," says Homer H. B. Mask, Regional Director, Region IV. "It is not a back-to-the-land movement for city folk. It is not even a guarantee to move every distressed rural family onto a new farm.

"It is, however, a practical, non-sentimental, yet humanitarian and scientific plan to get farm families off relief rolls and on a self-supporting basis.

"It is also a beginning, in the public interest, to put lands valuable for forests, recreation, wild life, but not for agriculture, back into these natural uses." NEGRO VET WANTS'
