TO PRESENT BROADCAST ON MARKETING TURKEYS

Getting his birds ready for the Thanksgiving and Christmas markets is one of the turkey grower's most important tasks, says T. T. Brown, extension poultryman at State College.

In a radio talk on the Carolina Farm Features program Friday, October 23, Mr. Brown will attempt to point out the most approved practices for feeding and handling the holiday birds.

"The job of raising turkeys is rather difficult even when the birds are given the best of care," declares Mr. Brown, "but when the grower becomes lax in his management and feeding, failure is almost sure to result."

Also to be included on the week's schedule will be a talk on saving farm woodlands which will be presented by R. W. Graeber, extension forester at State College, on the Saturday, October 24, broadcast.

"The rate at which our farm woodlands are being cut is alarming," declares Mr. Graeber, "and unless forestry practices are used by more growers, we may soon be faced with a timber shortage."

The schedule in full for the week of October 19-24 follows: Monday, Animal Husbandry Department; Tuesday, Dr. Ivan Jones, "The Horticultural By-Product Industry in North Carolina"; Wednesday, Dr. G. W. Forester, "The Tobacco Situation"; Thursday, Louella Dickerson, Vance County 4-H Club girl, "What 4-H Work Has Meant to Me"; Friday, T. T. Brown, "Preparing Turkeys for Market"; and Saturday, R. W. Graeber, "Saving Our Farm Woodlands."

THE OPTIMISTIC MIND

Optimism is a state of mind more than ordinary pleasant. The outlook of the optimist is in many respects to be admired—even envied. Yet in many matters one may better lean toward the mind of the pessimist—he, who really must be convinced. He, who really must be shown. We do not believe that we are pessimists, neither do we want you to be pessimistic regarding our ability to serve in an efficient and capable manner.

With a complete staff of licensed embalmers, funeral directors and trained assistants; With a modern funeral home completely equipped;

With the advantage in buying our three homes of—of course, cuts our overhead cost to a minimum, we believe that we are in a position to convince even the pessimistic that it is our desire to serve you better.
