

GENERAL MOTORS CALLS 100,000 WORKERS BACK ON FULL SHIFTS

Detroit, Feb. 12.—More than 100,000 employees of General Motors were summoned back to their jobs tonight as the giant automotive firm pushed toward resumption of capacity production in the wake of a costly, paralyzing six-week strike.

The corporation, hastily surveying the situation in scores of plants in a dozen states, announced that nearly all of the wage earners who had been thrown out of work by the dispute with the United Automobile Workers would be on the job by Tuesday.

Resumption of assembly lines will depend upon receipt of supplies from body plants. A development in another division of the industry today was announcement of a wage increase by Packard which will add $3,000,000 to its annual payroll and bring a five cent an hour raise to approximately 13,500 workers. The increase follows similar action in the last few days by Chrysler and General Motors.

Governor Frank Murphy, whose second intensive effort to conciliate the bitter labor differences separating General Motors and its striking employees was concluded successfully, planned to leave for New York tonight to receive a gold medal for "eminence" public service" from the American-Irish Historical society. A. N. Benson, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers association, said dealers who have conditioned and disposed of much of their used car stock, normally heavy at this season, are in "stronger position financially" for quick distribution of new cars.

Red Cross Flood Relief $17,667,633

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Total contributions to the Red Cross flood relief fund today were 17,667,633.

U. S. Ambassador to Mexico Joseph Daniels sent a check for $280 to Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Red Cross, as the contribution of himself, staff and the consul general of the American Embassy in Mexico City.

The Endicott-Johnson Shoe Co., of Binghamton, New York, sent an additional check for $17,405, representing contributions of workers and officials of the company's shoe plants. The company had previously sent $50,000 for the flood fund.

H. C. Hill, warden of the U. S. Northeastern Penitentiary at Lewisburg, forwarded contributions of employees for $197.75 and said additional funds amounting to $135.85 had been remitted to local Red Cross chapters.

A standard Oil company tanker, the W. S. Miller, en route through Panama Canal answered the Red Cross appeal on the radio and a crew of 34 members contributed $43, which was turned over to the Red Cross representative at Canal Zone.

The Kings Daughters of Coopers Mills, Maine, remitted $50 to Admiral Grayson, which they collected.

Arvid V. Swaningson, president of the National League of Masonic Clubs, sent a check for $100, and said other clubs were being asked by him to contribute.

The Needlework Guild of America contributed $500 from its national funds and the membership was contributing to chapters, and through sewing for the flood refugees.

J. F. Moore, demonstration farmer of Randolph county, kept an accurate record of all his farm operations last year and reports a return of 14 per cent on his investment.

UNITED STATES SENATOR

Perhaps no legislation in American history has aroused such universal interest and affects so many individuals as the Social Security Act passed by the last Congress. From the very first it was, and is now, an experiment in meeting one of the most pressing problems of the age—the problem of enabling workers to build annuities toward the day when they are beyond the age of profitable employment, unemployment insurance and equally as important, to extend aid to the needy aged, to the blind and to dependent children.

Obviously, no legislation of such scope could be perfect in all its details. Actual administration has developed loopholes and weaknesses. More will be found and corrected. Legal battles may be anticipated, particular with regard to those phases of the act pertaining to retirement annuities and unemployment insurance. Out of it all will come a stronger and better plan for the future.

But the public assistance features of the Act, aid for the needy aged, the blind and dependent children are already firmly established. These features are based on the long-standing principle of Federal-aid to the states. The Federal Government is giving the machinery and funds to help the states aid their needy. The states themselves, through state laws, must put the machinery in motion. The state of North Carolina is at the moment engaged in the effort to write its law, in accord with minimum Federal requirements, and raise the necessary state funds to match Federal moneys.

In the brief space of this article, I shall endeavor to answer a few of the many questions that have come to me with regard to one phase of the act, that which relates to assistance for aged persons who are needy. One question stands out.

Why must we have at this late date some form of Federal assistance for aged persons in dire circumstances? The answer is simple. In bygone days families were a compact unit, with sometimes as many as three or four generations living together or at close call. Family resources were pooled and the younger generations cared for those belonging to the older. Today families are scattered. Responsibilities are heavier. Modern life has become more complex. As a result, many responsible persons, millions in fact, through no fault of their own are, at the twilight of life, in dire circumstances. States cannot solve the problem alone.

What is meant by aid for the aged needy? Cash payments by the state to aged persons who are in need, and whose applications for assistance are approved by the state.

What is the basis of Federal participation? When a state has written into law an approved plan for aid to the aged needy, the Federal Government makes grants equal to one-half of the total expenditures of the state or its subdivisions. However, Federal contributions may not apply to any monthly payments exceeding $30.00. Thus, if the state of North Carolina provides $15.00 per month for example, the Federal Government adds another $15.00, and the beneficiary receives $30.00. Federal grants may not be used in making payments to persons under 65 or to inmates of public institutions.

Who is eligible? All persons who meet the requirements fixed by the state law.

What are the requirements as to age, citizenship and residence? Until January 1, 1940, a state law may require that an applicant be as much as 70 years of age; after that date no state law may impose an age requirement in excess of 65 years, which is the generally approved minimum age. No citizen of the United States may be excluded on the grounds that his or her citizenship is not of long enough standing. No one who has been a resident of a state for five out of the nine years preceding application, and who has lived in the state continuously for the year immediately before applying, may be denied assistance on the ground that they have not lived in the state long enough.

The illustration above shows the value of legumes in increasing wheat and corn yields. When legumes are grown and harvested for hay, they improve the soil some and a moderate increase in the yields of succeeding crops is noted. When legumes are plowed under, a much bigger increase is obtained. In a series of experiments soybeans increased wheat yields by nine bushels per acre and clover increased corn yields from 18 to 40 bushels per acre, said Dean I. O. Schaub, at State College.

Bailey Is Selected To Lead Fight Regarding Plan to Increase Court

Washington, Feb. 11.—Reports emanating from the White House today represented President Roosevelt as determined to resist all suggestions, coming from friend or foe, to compromise or emasculate his judiciary reorganization bill, while Senator Bailey, equally as uncompromising, in his opposition to the bill, has agreed to deliver an address here Saturday night in which he will stress the dangers to the republic which he believes to be inherent in current proposals to tamper with the personnel of the Supreme court.

North Carolina's senior senator has by common consent been assigned to leadership of the senate forces arrayed against the President in the impending battle over the Supreme court, and those enlisted in the opposition cause are of the opinion that the Bailey address, to be broadcast nationally, is of the utmost importance, since the ultimate fate of the court remodeling bill will doubtless be determined, in large part, by the public reaction, which at the moment appears to be unfavorable to the bill; decidedly so.

President is Waiting
The general confusion that has prevailed since the introduction of the court bill, and the reading of the President's totally unexpected and unforeseen message, did not today grow any less. The President has spent much of his time for the last couple of days conferring with congressional and farm organization leaders, and senators who have called at the White House have found him in affable, open frame of mind, and with no desire to rush consideration of the bill. These members, as they have returned to the capital, have appeared to their friends as agreeably surprised, and somewhat relieved, over their discovery of the President's attitude.

YOUTHFUL SLAYER IS GIVEN LONG SENTENCE

Durham, Feb. 11.—John O'Neill, 19-year-old Durham youth, today in Superior court was sentenced to serve 28 to 30 years in state prison for the Thanksgiving night slaying of Jake Capps, Chapel Hill-Nelson road filling station operator.

Defense counsel entered a plea of second degree murder at the conclusion of the state's evidence, and, although the plea was accepted by Solicitor Leo Carr, Judge R. Hunt Parker, in passing sentence, told O'Neill he was "guilty of first degree murder and ought to be sent to the gas chamber."

"You have murdered in cold blood and you are going to be punished here and hereafter," the jurist declared. "You are going down into the valley of death one day and burn in hell for the crime you have committed."

O'Neill, the son of a piano tuner who moved here from New Jersey eight years ago, accepted the sentence calmly.

ceive old-age assistance, provided they do not have sufficient income for their own support. This provision makes it possible for the aged to continue living in their own homes. If there are a husband and wife, the home may, as a rule, remain in their possession until the death of both. Many States make some provision for collecting from a beneficiary's estate, after his death, any amount up to the total of assistance payments made to him during his lifetime. To repay the Federal Government for its share in the assistance payments, one-half of all such collections made with respect to assistance furnished under an approved plan is deposited in the United States Treasury to the credit of Federal old-age assistance appropriations.

Lespedeza: The Friendliest Crop

The South needs more lespedeza to help prevent soil loss, to improve yields, and to produce good hay for feeding livestock. February and March are the best months for sowing this valuable crop which The Progressive Farmer pronounces "the friendliest of all crops," saying:

"We are tempted to call lespedeza the friendliest of all crops—the most accommodating or obliging of all. In proof of this, just compare it with other hay, grazing or soil-improving crops. Instead of being fickle, exacting, and hard to please like alfalfa, lespedeza is almost foolproof and is glad to grow anywhere and everywhere—almost literally so. Instead of requiring us to sow it in the fall when other farm work is often too pressing for comfort and moisture too scarce for germination, lespedeza lets us quietly wait and sow it in February and March when we have an abundance of both moisture and leisure. And while we must prepare a special seedbed for clover, vetch, alfalfa small grain, etc., lespedeza is so accommodating that it is perfectly happy just to be scattered on top of our February wheat or oat fields—whereupon it will not bother them at all till they get off the land, after which it will happily work all summer long making an amazing hay or grazing or soiling crop, all without even asking us to hit a lick for it with plow or hoe or cultivator!"

Raise Recommended

Pittsburgh, Feb. 11.—Employee and management representatives of 18 district plants of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation joined tonight in recommending the company establish a $5-a-day wage minimum, give its workers a raise of 80 cents a day and put them on a 40-hour work week.

The minimum pay now for common labor is $4.20 a day and wage earners work 48 hours a week.

To become effective the recommendations must be adopted by employee representatives at the plants and by the management.
