WILKESBORO TOWN LOTS FOR SALE

By virtue of an order of the superior court of Wilkes county, North Carolina, appointing me commissioner to sell certain lots in the town of Wilkesboro, North Carolina, described in the special proceedings entitled C. D. Cowles et al versus Louise Horton et al, I will on the 3rd day of July, 1937, at two p. m. offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder on the premises, which are just below the Episcopal church in Wilkesboro, the following described real estate, to-wit:

One town lot number 8 as shown on the old map of Wilkesboro and described in deed by James Gwyn to Calvin J. Cowles registered in book B-2 page 169, register of deeds office of Wilkes county, containing about one acre more or less and fronting on three streets. This property will be offered in four separate lots and as a whole. Terms of sale one-third cash, balance one and two years. This sale subject to confirmation of the court.

J. S. COWLES, Commissioner.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed executed on the 22nd day of May, 1926, by T. B. Finley and wife, C. L. Finley, to John A. Conover, which mortgage deed is duly recorded in Book 137, page 224, and assigned for value to the undersigned assignee, said mortgage deed being to secure a series of notes, one of which notes is past due and unpaid, the undersigned will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the Court House door in Wilkesboro, North Carolina, on the 21st day of June, 1937, at twelve o'clock, noon, the following described real estate lying and being in Wilkes County, and more particularly described and defined as follows, to-wit:

Consisting of several tracts, adjoining each other and bounded as follows: First Tract, known as the J. W. Davis House place beginning on a white oak the Shin old corner, near a rocky knoll at a running west with the old line 66 poles to a black gum on top of the ridge; then south 29 degrees west 62 poles to a black gum in the old field; then west 32 poles to a chestnut oak; then north 66 degrees west 18 poles to a large chestnut oak (dead) on top of the ridge; then north 55 degrees west 16 poles to a black gum on top of the ridge; then north 32 degrees east 16 poles to a small poplar in the old field; then north 5 degrees east 96 poles to a large chestnut oak; then north 69 degrees 26 poles to a water oak; then east 80 poles with Adams' line, of his Hortley tract to a small dogwood in the Wm. Underwood old field; then South 57 degrees east 78 poles to a chestnut on top of a ridge; then east 20 poles to a small hickory on top of the ridge; then south 12 degrees west 82 poles to a large white oak, in the old Gilreath line; then west 60 poles to the beginning, containing 28 1-5 acres on the South, adjoining the lands of S. C. Davis, W. A. Berry, on the South, and C. W. Robinson on the west, this exception beginning on the black gum, the first call in the above boundary, and running a Northernly course 14 poles to a stake; then a Westerly course to a chestnut oak in the above boundary, according to a survey of the same heretofore made by J. J. Hendren. This 21st day of May, 1937.

Author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People" CLARENCE DARROW

A Small-Town Insult Made Him the Greatest Criminal Lawyer of His Time

Nearly three-quarters of a century ago, a school teacher boxed the ears of a little boy because he was restless and fidgety and squirming in his seat. She boxed his ears so that he cried all the way home. He was only five years old at the time, but he felt that he had been treated with cruelty and injustice; he learned to hate cruelty and injustice with a hatred that has kept him fighting all his life.

The boy's name was Clarence Darrow, today probably the best-known criminal lawyer in America—and certainly the greatest criminal lawyer of his time. His name has flashed time and again in bold headlines across every newspaper in the land. He is a crusader, a rebel, a fighter, and a champion of the underdog.

The first case he ever handled is still talked about by the old-timers in Ashtabula, Ohio. The burning issue involved nothing more vital than the ownership of a second-hand set of harness worth five dollars. But to Clarence Darrow there was a principle at stake. Injustice had raised its marling head and he fought as he would have fought a Bengal tiger. He was paid only five dollars to fight the case; but he fought it at his own expense, through seven courts for seven years—and won it.

Darrow says he has never been ambitious for money or prestige. He says he has always been a lazy cuss. He started out in life teaching in a country school. One day an incident happened which changed his whole career. There was a blacksmith in town who studied law when he wasn't busy shoeing horses. Clarence Darrow heard this blacksmith argue a law case in the tinsmith's shop. He was fascinated with the wit and eloquence of these country spellbinders. He loved a scrap himself; so he borrowed the blacksmith's law books and began to study law. On Monday he would take his law books to school, and while his pupils were studying geography or arithmetic he thumbed through the pages of his Blackstone.

He admits he might have remained a country lawyer all his life; if something hadn't happened to goad him into action.

He and his wife decided to buy a small house in Ashtabula, Ohio, from a dentist. The price was thirty-five hundred dollars. Darrow drew five hundred dollars out of the bank (and that, by the way, was all he had in the world) and agreed to pay the rest in yearly installments. The deal was almost finished when the dentist's wife refused point blank to sign the papers.

"See here, young man," she said scornfully. "I don't believe you'll ever earn thirty-five hundred dollars in all your life."

Darrow was furious. He refused to live in such a town. So he shook the dust of Ashtabula off his feet and headed for Chicago.

His first year in Chicago, he made only three hundred dollars—not even enough to pay his room rent. But the next year he

SOFT CORNS ---CALLOUSES

No sensible person will continue to suffer from those intense throbbing foot pains when Moon's Emerald Oil is so readily obtainable at any well stocked drug store. Two or three applications in 15 minutes most of the pain and soreness has disappeared and as for soft corns and calluses a few applications each night at bedtime will soon loosen them up so they peel off easily—no cutting. No matter how discouraged you are if you have not yet tried Moon's Emerald Oil then you have something to learn. Moon's Emerald Oil is guaranteed to give you full satisfaction or money back.

Dellaplane and Roaring River News of Week

ROARING RIVER, Route 2, June 14.—The negro prisoner who escaped Friday afternoon from where Mr. Carl Miller, highway foreman, was engaged in bridge construction was apprehended Saturday in the Mathis settlement. Before being recaptured, he is said to have stolen some white trousers and white shoes from a store on the mountain, and some dresses from a widow, with the idea of disguising himself as a girl. Mr. Miller and another officer were at the old Tilley place and elsewhere in this neighborhood late Friday chasing the darkie and thought they tracked him to the site of a still, on the old Tilley place, cut a few months ago by Sheriff Doughton and deputies. The colored convict, reported variously as hailing from Salisbury or one of the Virginias, though of small stature and with a low intelligence quotient, was said to be regarded as quite dangerous.

Mr. Otho Johnston, his wife, and seven children, all of West Virginia, arrived Saturday on a surprise visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie R. Johnston. They had not been here for several years.

Following services at Cranberry Sunday, most of the congregation went to the home of Mr. Cahaj Sale, esteemed elderly citizen of that section, with baskets to honor him with a birthday dinner.

Little Miss Rebecca Gentry, daughter of Rev. Mr. Gentry, Methodist pastor at Moravian Falls, was the week-end guest of Little Miss Helen Roberts in the Cranberry section.

Mrs. Elvira Johnston had all her grandchildren visiting her Sunday. They included 7 from West Virginia, one from Elkin, two who live with her, and four from the neighborhood.

Mrs. W. J. Kinyoun and two little grandchildren arrived Sunday from Winston-Salem to spend most of the summer at Mrs. Kinyoun's home here. It is reported that Mrs. Kinyoun's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hugh Kinyoun, is seriously ill.

"Aunt" Vira Martin Parks, colored, who had been in declining health for a month, was said to be very low from a heart leakage over the week-end. Vira, a very widely-known elderly darkie, spent many years in the Wilkesboros as cook or housekeeper for Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Spainhour.

Among those from this part of the county in the Wilkesboros shopping and looking after business matters Friday were Mr. A. H. Roberts and daughter, Little Miss Helen; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Ray and two small children; and Mr. R. G. Mathis, the popular deputy-sheriff.

Mr. George R. Johnson has erected a shop on old No. 60, near the home of his father, Mr. B. L. Johnson. George is a splendid mechanic, though without training, and expects considerable patronage.

The "gentle bull-of-all-work" pictured on the front page of a recent Journal-Patriot was not much news here, as several citizens in these ingenious and racy diggings, including Lonnie Sale and Henry Parks, both colored, boast these versatile bovine friends. Besides working like oxen, they are more gentle than the average cow, and bring in extra dollars by siring handsome calves through the neighborhood.

Mesdames Ida Call and E. Frank Sparks are said to have had relatives from a distance visiting them recently.

Josephine Parks, colored, had green beans from her garden for dinner Sunday, and also gave Mrs. Laura Martin Linney a "mess." Despite the cold, late spring, the second Sunday in June is about as early as farm people ever raise beans.

James ("Boy") Sale, colored, is building a new house, near the intersection of the road leading to Mrs. Pearl Mathis' with that leading to A. H. Roberts' store, for his mother, Ada Sale, whose home burned twice within the past two or three years.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Crutchfield and little daughter, Harriet, all of Winston-Salem, and Mrs. Crutchfield's younger sister, Mrs. Evelyn Trogon Habel, of Washington, D. C., spent a recent Sunday afternoon with Miss Ruth Linney, Mrs. Habel and Miss Linney were classmates at W. C. U. N. C., Greensboro. Before returning to the capital, where she has a position in the Mexican Claims department as typist and translator of Spanish and French documents. Mrs. Habel attended the reunion of her class at the Woman's College. Mr. and Mrs. Habel visited at the old Tilley place while on their honeymoon nearly five years ago.

Mrs. Maude Williams returned recently to Washington, D. C., after visiting her brother, Mr. Turner M. Inscore. While here she considered selling her timber to a Hickory concern.

Messrs. Edminsten and N. H. Waugh, timber experts, were in this section Saturday making estimates of forests. For several weeks, Messrs. Edminsten, Branson Benton, and a number of other timber men, have practically haunted the woods, making it difficult to work, eat, or even go to bed, but furnishing welcome entertainment since the excitement of listing and assessing property had ceased. But they do not seem to have put through a great many timber deals, particularly at the old Tilley place.

When the Antloch tax books were returned, though only 8 or 10 townships had handed in the abstracts, Antloch was the only one up to then with no delinquents. Citizens displayed great honesty and no little curiosity and gusto by coming out en masse to list fine residences, "hemale" canines, and old hens and chickens. Also, the shrewd assessors and the verdant hot-taker were rather indefatigable in chasing down property-owners and poll-taxers and granting them no quarter.

Miss Ruffin Linney was in North Wilkesboro shopping Friday and spent a short time with her aunt, Mrs. Celia Lane. Miss Mary Lane was convalescing from a tonsillar operation.

Mrs. Laura Linney and Miss Ruffin Linney, who had been rather too ill to be up or do, their work much of the time for a few weeks, seem to be in somewhat better health and spirits.

THE HOUSE OF HAZARDS

A comic strip titled "THE HOUSE OF HAZARDS" by Mac Arthur. It consists of four panels. Panel 1: A man offers a chocolate soldier to a youngster. Panel 2: The youngster eats it and says he won't try to devour his present all at once. Panel 3: A woman looks on. Panel 4: A woman says "Come in here one moment please" to a man who is looking at a picture of a chocolate soldier.
