

Outline Program State Convention American Legion

Winston-Salem. — With four outstanding speakers slated to deliver addresses during the sessions, the Twentieth Annual Convention of the North Carolina Department of the American Legion will open here Sunday, June 26 and continue through Tuesday, June 28.

Judge John J. Parker of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals will deliver the address at the Memorial Service to be held Sunday night, June 26, at the Carolina Theatre.

The Memorial Service will probably be one of the most outstanding ever held during a Legion convention. In addition to the address by Judge Parker, the convention committee has secured Miss Margaret Romaine, of New York, formerly a soprano with the Metropolitan Opera, as soloist for the service. She will be

NOTICE OF SALE

North Carolina, Wilkes County. Under and by virtue of, the power of sale contained in a certain deed of trust, recorded in Book 181, Page 246, in the Register of Deeds Office of Wilkes County executed on August 24, 1938, by C. M. Stanley and wife, Rosa Stanley, and being made to secure the payment of said notes described therein, and default having been made in the payment of said notes, under the terms thereof, and the undersigned having been requested to fore-close said deed of trust, the undersigned trustee will, therefore, offer for sale, for cash, at public auction, to the highest bidder at the Courthouse door in Wilkesboro, North Carolina, on Friday, July 1, 1938, at 12:00 o'clock noon, the following described lands, to-wit:

Beginning on a stake on the Southwest corner of Seventh and K Streets and running South 62 degrees 33 minutes west along the south side of K Street 135 feet to a 15 foot alley; thence south 27 degrees 27 minutes east along the east side of said alley 60 feet to a stake; thence north 62 degrees 33 minutes east parallel with K Street 135 feet to Seventh Street; thence north 27 degrees 27 minutes west along the west side of Seventh Street 60 feet to the point of beginning, containing 8100 square feet, said land being Lot 5, Block 136, as shown on the Trogon's Map of the Town of North Wilkesboro, North Carolina. Done this the 1st day of June, 1938.

W. H. McELWEE, Trustee. 8-23-4t-(T)

accompanied by Samuel Harwell, of New York, pupil of Padere-wski and widely known concert pianist and accompanist.

Judge Parker needs no introduction to a North Carolina audience. He has served with distinction on the Federal Bench, and was appointed to the U. S. Supreme Court bench by President Herbert Hoover. Politics in the U. S. Senate prevented his confirmation to this high post.

The opening business session of the Legion on Monday morning will find two outstanding speakers scheduled for addresses. They are Leonard H. Nason, of Centerville, Mass., author, and Rear Admiral William H. Allen, of General Board of the United States Navy.

Nason will be remembered by Legionnaires who attended the 1930 convention of the Legion in Winston-Salem. He made such a good impression that the convention committee prevailed upon him to return. He served in France as a field artillery sergeant during the World War and was wounded at Chateau Thierry and in the Argonne. To top things off nicely, he was shipwrecked off Fire Island on his return to the United States. He has written for the Saturday Evening Post and the American Legion since 1922 and has a story in the June issue of Woman's Home Companion. He will be introduced by Sandy Graham, of Hillsboro.

Rear Admiral Allen is a native of Florence, S. C., and has commanded various ships as well as naval districts before he was given his present post on the General Board. He is also in command of the 6th, 7th and 8th Naval Districts with headquarters at Charleston, S. C., although he makes his home at Washington, D. C.

Admiral Allen is the first high ranking officer of the Navy to visit a convention of the North Carolina department of the American Legion. He will be introduced by John C. Whitaker, of Winston-Salem.

Brigadier General William Bryden, commandant of Fort Bragg, will be the principal speaker at the Tuesday session. He will be introduced by Brigadier Don E. Scott, of Graham.

General Bryden is a native of Connecticut and a graduate of West Point. He wears the Distinguished Service Medal and served in France during the World War in various grades from Major to Brigadier General. Following the war, he was reduced to his former grade, and has worked his way back up to Brigadier General, reaching the present rank last fall.

Sound Wood From Dead Trees Used

Woodland owners frequently have had large trees killed by insects, blight, wind, or fire. In some parts of the United States it is thought that timber cut from such trees is unsatisfactory for construction purposes. Engineers at the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., state that when sound dead trees are sawed into lumber and the weathered or charred outside is cut away, there is no way by which the lumber from these trees can be distinguished from that cut from live trees. Lumber from dead trees may, however, be partly seasoned when cut.

If a tree stands on the stump too long after it is killed, the sapwood is likely to become decayed or badly infested by wood-boring insects; and in time the heartwood will become damaged. The same thing is true of logs cut from live trees and not given proper care. Until the wood is attacked by these destructive agents, the wood from dead trees is just as strong and just as durable as sound wood from the same kind of live trees.

It should be remembered that the heartwood of a living tree is dead, and only a small portion of the cells of the sapwood is active, therefore, most of the wood cut from trees is dead, regardless of whether the tree itself is living or dead.

Because of variations in climate and local weather conditions and in other things that affect deterioration, the length of time during which dead trees may stand or lie in the woods without serious injury varies. Tests made at the Forest Products Laboratory on wood from trees that had stood as long as 15 years after being killed by fire showed that this wood was sound and as strong as wood from live trees. Also logs from some of the more durable species have had thoroughly sound heartwood after lying on the ground in the woods for several years. The important consideration is not whether the trees from which the lumber is sawed are live or dead, but whether the products themselves are free from decay or other defects that would make them unsuitable for use.

"I shall miss you while you are on your hunting trip, dear," said the young wife affectionately, "and I shall pray that the hunters, you are going with will do the same."

NEW POWER RATE

Wholesale power rates proposed by Administrator J. D. Ross for the Hooheville Dam project have been approved in substance by the Federal Power Commission. The rates are said to be the lowest ever proposed in the United States for wholesale power and are based on the kilowatt year, an innovation in American rate computation. For power purchased at the dam for industrial use, the charge will be $14.50 a kilowatt year.
