Lost $300 Restored To Owner By Boy

Lexington, Oct. 30.—Three $100 bills, folded compactly, which dropped from an Atlantic City, N. J., man's vest pocket at the street curb here a few days ago, have been restored to the owner, who is now in Miami, Fla., although he was many miles away when he discovered the loss and there were no distinguishing marks to identify the money.

Bill Hankins, 15, high school junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hankins, local merchant, was on his way to school when he picked up the money. He was able to suppress his excitement until he returned home for lunch at noon and turned the find over to his mother, who awaited developments that were not long in coming.

Walter E. Handy and wife, who have a home at Atlantic City but spend much of their summers in Maine and winters in Miami, had spent the previous night at the home of local friends, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Simon, en route to Florida. He wired back to Mrs. Simon that the bills were missing, noting two places he had left his car after leaving the Simon home. She made inquiries and then raked up all the leaves about her yard in search for the treasure before she heard of young Hankins' find. Restoration was made promptly, and it is understood the finder has been rewarded.

Convicted Man Requests Death

Concord, Oct. 28.—After Judge Allen Gwyn sentenced him to serve from 25 to 30 years in the state penitentiary for the second-degree murder of Floyd Holshouser at Kannapolis last March, Elmer Turner asked the jurist, "Your honor, could you change that to the gas chamber?"

"The court has already passed judgment," was the reply from the bench.

A Cabarrus Superior court jury gave its verdict to a crowded courtroom at 7:40 o'clock tonight after deliberating for four hours. The state had asked for a first-degree conviction. No appeal is expected.

The Turner trial started here last Wednesday. The murder charge grew out of the fatal shooting of Floyd Holshouser, who the state charged, was the intended victim of robbery by Turner last March 24.

Colored Woman Dies

Frances Fletcher, 47-year-old colored resident of Roaring River, died Tuesday and funeral service was held today at Sandy Creek with Rev. Patterson in charge. She leaves two daughters, Rose and Violet Fletcher, and two sons Clemmons and Albert Fletcher.

The State College Extension Service has found through its demonstration farm program that applying lime and phosphate to pasture not only increases the yield of grass, but the practice also improves the feed value of the grass.

N. C. First State To Ratify Wage-Hours Co-operation Plan

Washington, Oct. 30.—North Carolina today became the first state to ratify a plan of cooperation and assistance in the enforcement of the fair labor standards act of 1938 when Gov. Clyde R. Royce and Forrest H. Shuford, commissioner of labor, and Harry McMullan, attorney general, signed an agreement at Raleigh designating the North Carolina department of labor as the representative of the wage and hour division and the children's bureau of the United States department of labor in the enforcement of the federal wage and hour law in North Carolina.

The agreement, effective November 1, 1939, follows enabling legislation passed at the last session of the North Carolina state legislature and is in line with the regulations issued September 21, 1939, by the wage and hour division and the children's bureau, with the approval of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, for the utilization of state agencies for investigations and inspections under the wage and hour law.

Seven other states have passed similar enabling legislation permitting their state labor departments to act as the representative of the federal agencies charged with enforcement of the wage and hour law, and other state agreements are in process of negotiation at the present time. Special enabling legislation is not necessary in some states which already have the general powers to take such action.

State College Answers Timely Farm Question

Question: How can I prevent my chicks from picking at each other all the time?

Answer: The habit is usually formed during the growing period and is caused by crowding, overheating, lack of green feed or too little fibre in the ration. Many poultrymen feed liberally of whole oats to the laying flock to curtail this vice and where whole oats are used during the growing period with plenty of range and green feed the habit is less likely to occur. There are small metal picking preventive devices on the market which give satisfactory results and these may be secured from any poultry supply house.

Clean Up Campaign Continues In State

Raleigh.—The Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors Committee's campaign to rid communities of objectionable beer outlets has been extended into the eastern, western and piedmont sections of the state.

During the month of October, the committee petitioned the boards of commissioners of four counties to revoke the retail beer licenses of nine dealers. Information on which other petitions will be based was compiled during the month and will be filed with other boards in November, it was announced.

Colonel Edgar H. Bain, of Goldsboro, State Director in charge of the beer industry's "clean up or close up" campaign in North Carolina, filed petitions requesting the revocation of three licenses in Buncombe, three in New Hanover, two in Gaston, and one in Brunswick county. The director based the petitions on the allegations that these retailers had operated beer outlets in violation of the law and the public welfare.

"Our committee has been organized to clean up or close up the retail beer outlets in North Carolina which are guilty of unlawful, immoral and disreputable conduct," the Colonel remarked.

"We have received the cooperation of state and local officials, law enforcement officers and the press in our drive to rid communities of objectionable places."

A great majority of dealers conduct respectable places of business, and it is our purpose to prevent a small minority from destroying an industry which pays the state and its political subdivisions $1,000,000 annually in taxes and fees."
