Army Recruiting Car Here On 4th

Mobile Unit To Stimulate Interest In Army Makes Regular Visit Here

A United States army recruiting car made its monthly visit to this city Thursday to sign up army recruits.

Private E. A. Rohr and Corporal C. G. Marshall, of the Charlotte headquarters, accompanied the mobile unit. Discussing the recruiting operations, they said that the mobile unit is used to stimulate interest in the army and to contact young men between the ages of 18 and 35 who are interested in the opportunities the army affords. The qualifications for enlistment, they said, are that the applicants must be single, between the ages of 18 and 35, and be physically and mentally sound. The unit will visit this city again in a few weeks. Meanwhile, persons interested in enlisting are asked to call at recruiting stations in Winston-Salem or Lenoir.
