John Hubbard and Mary Astor enjoy a teete-a-tete and discuss some of the gay and merry antics which are exhibited on the screen in Hal Roach's new film comedy, "Turnabout," based on Thorne Smith's hilarious novel and due for its premiere at the Liberty Tuesday.

Hal Roach's "Turnabout" Is Great Comedy Triumph

Hal Roach's "Turnabout," at the Liberty Theatre Tuesday only, proved to be one of the gayest and most hilarious screen comedies released in recent months. Directed by Roach himself, the new picture is beautifully staged, brilliantly directed and expertly acted by a cast of important players.

"Turnabout," which was filmed from the best-selling novel by Thorne Smith, co-stars Carole Landis and John Hubbard in the romantic roles, and features in the supporting cast such notables as Adolphe Menjou, Mary Astor, William Gargan, Donald Meek, Verree Teasdale and Margaret Roach.

The story of "Turnabout" concerns two weakly moderns, Tim and Sally Willows. Tim is an advertising executive, Sally a society matron. While they are complaining bitterly about their respective lots in life, they are overheard by the god Ram, who decides impulsively to give them a chance to exchange places and sexes. What ensues when this materializes provides the screen with hilarious situations, swift-moving action and crackling dialogue. A smash climax, filled with unexpected turns, brings the picture to a laugh-filled, crackling finish.

Roach Acts
Hal Roach, who used to be an actor himself, couldn't get away from it. The veteran film producer, who was directing his new comedy, "Turnabout," at the Liberty Theatre, enacted every role, spoke every line while showing the players how he wanted things done. He even submitted to manhandling by a jiu-jitsu expert for the benefit of John Hubbard who plays the romantic male lead in "Turnabout." And he showed Carole Landis, the heroine, how to flutter.

Senior Girl Scouts Have Outing

The Sakakawea Troop of Senior Girls Scouts gathered at the Scout Little House Monday afternoon, September 16, at 4 o'clock for a hike and cook-out. Preparations having been made before hand the nine girls and two leaders were soon ready to leave. The Girl Scouts hiked to the top of Rousseau hill in Wilkesboro. After a few minutes rest everyone set about finding wood for a fire. The fire was soon merrily blazing. A rock oven was built for cooking. Then came the actual cooking. Um! didn't that one-pot stew smell good! There was a rush to see who could get to the cooks first for a large helping. To top off a perfectly delicious meal there were someros for dessert.

The walk home in the moonlight (this was the night of the full moon) was a beautiful one. Nine tired but happy girls tumbled into bed not long after they reached their homes.

"Five Dollars' Worth of groceries, please"

It doesn't matter what... IT'S FOOD, ISN'T IT?"

THE absent-minded professor may buy food that way, but the experienced housewife does not. She demands that the grocer keep a wide variety on his shelves so that he can fill the family's needs at a moment's notice. And many products must be fresh daily. So the capable housewife of today does not turn her kitchen pantry or her cellar into a food warehouse. She gladly pays the retailer's slight profit in return for his services as an expert middleman who knows his groceries. And when the retail grocer buys insurance from the experienced agent or broker of a stock insurance company, he does not say "$50 worth of insurance, please." He asks for and gets the advice and full services of an expert purchasing agent in the complex insurance field, like himself an expert middleman. No worries about uncovered risks that might wreck his business. No matter what your business, when you buy Surety or Fidelity Bonds, Burglary Insurance, Forgery Insurance, or any other type of coverage through your local agent or broker, you deal with a customer and friend who is a fellow member and supporter of the American Business System. And it pays in dollars and cents as well. Let's talk it over!
