"Footsteps In The Dark" At Allen

IN ALLEN COMEDY—Errol Flynn is having the time of his life playing a modern comedy role with screen wife Brenda (Mrs. Sea Hawk) Marshall—and so will you when you see "Footsteps in the Dark" at the Allen.

'Swing Out' Opens Wednesday, 25th

Swing out is a story built around the Kissler family. Mac Moore as T. J. Kissler is a successful, satisfied business man who has invented "Kant Kum Off Kissable Lipstick." Mrs. Kissler played by Mrs. Jay Jones is definitely a social climber and her whole life revolves around making the right impression on the right people. Annie, Helen Irvin, the Kissler maid, is a good soul but a little slow on the uptake.

John Arthurs, played by Warner Miller, runs the Arthurs Advertising Agency and has been handling all the advertising for Mr. Kissler. He uses the pages of The Journal-Patriot and proves it pays to read advertising and that it is educational.

Betty Kissler, played by Lillian Linney, is just home from college and has definite ideas of whom she wants to marry. She brings home a "Frenchman" who has such perfect manners. He flatters the ladies, kisses their hands, and has the adoration of everyone, but Mr. Kissler. This part is played excellently by Weaver Green.

Rita Phillips, interpreted by Mrs. Carlyle Jordan, is an attractive widow and a neighbor, and isn't above "Making Eyes" at an attractive man.

Patsy Miller, another neighbor of the Kisslers, is thrilled when she thinks John is in love with her. This hissing little scatterbrain is played by Libba Blaylock Alexander.

Jake is the Kissler butler and what a butler. This part is played by Ed Crysel and he informs us that he had a brother once who, "If I may say so sir, was quite a beau brummel."

To aid his promotion scheme, Pierre calls upon Gus Nelson, a theatrical agent from New York. Together they bring "Charlie Mac Arthur" into the show. Tom Story plays the part of Gus Nelson and really has that brooklyn accent down 'pat'.

The cast is working every night in an endeavor to give Wilkesboro the best production that has ever been staged here.

It was learned from the county AAA office today that all wheat dealers, and by dealers is meant people who acquire wheat by toll, barter, trade, or sale, or any other means, must maintain a set of records on the forms that are prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture, and there is a penalty for all wheat that is acquired that is not properly identified as "penalty free" wheat. These forms are available in the county AAA office.

Minister Speaks On Bee Culture

Dr. John W. Kincheloe, Sr., tells interesting experiences with bees.

Dr. John W. Kincheloe, Sr., pastor of the First Baptist church at Rocky Mount, addressed the North Wilkesboro Kiwanis club Friday on the subject of "Bee Culture."

Dr. Kincheloe, who is here assisting his son in evangelistic service at the First Baptist church, was presented by A. H. Casey, program chairman. The speaker gave a most interesting talk, giving the average life history of a worker, drone and queen bee.

He also spoke of the uses of honey as a food and for medical purposes, stating that the pollen of the bee sting has been known to cure chronic rheumatism.

Speaking of his own experience with bees, Dr. Kincheloe said that he and his sons went into the bee business to secure extra money to send his three sons to college. At one time his bees were producing as high as 12,000 pounds of honey per year.

At the meeting the speaker was a guest of A. H. Casey, G. W. Hall, of Statesville, was a guest of Judge T. B. Finley and Robert Morehouse was a guest of his father, H. H. Morehouse.
