Proper Stages To Gas Use To Be Cut Cut Legumes For On Basis Of July Hay Purposes

Washington.—Automobile operators in the Eastern states who use their cars for pleasure were called upon by the government yesterday to get along in September with 15 per cent less gasoline than they burned in July. Announcing the gas curtailment program for September, the office of petroleum co-ordinator said that the 10 per cent overall reduction in gasoline deliveries to retail outlets, enforced during the last two weeks in August, would be continued. Ralph K. Davis, acting co-ordinator, said, however, that commercial, agricultural and emergency vehicles, would get their full needs so that spreading of the remaining supplies would amount to a 15 per cent curtailment for private motorists. "We must protect our reserve supply of gasoline," Davis said, "so that we will have a supply on hand when winter approaches and fuel oil shipments to the East Coast must be increased." Meanwhile, Davies endorsed a move to obtain reduced rail rates on oil movements from producing areas to the East. He said in a statement that the railroads, in conjunction with the oil industry transportation committee for the Atlantic Seaboard, "can render a real service by obtaining rate adjustments and faster car handling which will make the use of tank cars economical."

Only Few More Days To Apply For Grants Of Aid For Fall Farm Work

Sept. 15th Closing Date For Applications Lime, Phosphate and Seed

September 15 has been set as the closing date for applications for grants of aid to Wilkes farmers to be used in seeding crops this fall. Lawrence Miller, secretary of the Triple A in Wilkes, said today.

This applies to phosphate, lime, crimson clover seed and Austrian winter peas advanced with payment to be deducted from soil program payments, Mr. Miller said.

Applications for this type of aid necessarily have to be filed some time in advance in order that the materials may be obtained and distributed in time for use, Mr. Miller said.

Plan To Draft Girls Detailed By First Lady

New York.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday offered a further explanation and defense of her widely-discussed suggestion that it might be of value to conscript girls between the ages of 18 and 24 for a year of training and service.

Writing in the current Liberty magazine, Mrs. Roosevelt said "there seems to be a slight misunderstanding" and declared that she never suggested that all women be conscripted, nor that girls be placed under military discipline in camps as are boys.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she believed the girls of the country might be divided into these three groups: "The first, or the extremely privileged group which has all the education and training that it desires and may not be going to use it either to earn a living or to volunteer in some active form of service."

"The second group, which may have both education and a fairly comfortable home, but which must plan their training with the thought of earning a living in the future."

"The third group of girls, who, through economic difficulties or geographical location, are lacking in educational opportunities and are apt to grow up facing a dearth of jobs or dead-end jobs because they can not fit themselves for any skilled work."

"It is obvious that for this last group a year of training, paid for by the government on the same basis as the draftees in the army are paid, would be helpful."

Mrs. Roosevelt said that for the first group, as for the second, there was comparatively little advantage to be obtained from the angle of better training.

Questions Answered By State College

Question: When should fruits and vegetables be selected for fairs? Answer: September is the beginning of the annual season for fairs, so farm families should begin now to get their horticultural exhibits in readiness. Fruits to be exhibited should be picked and handled with extreme care. Keep in mind the fact that the best fruit for show purposes is found near the top of the tree. Don't pick the largest specimens but those which are typical of the variety. Then wrap each in paper and pack snugly. Vegetables for show should be free from blemishes, clean, and fully matured.
