Miss Eleanor Smoak Is Bridge Club Hostess
A delightful club party of the week was the one given by Miss Eleanor Smoak entertaining the members of the Wilabri bridge club at her home in Wilkesboro Thursday evening. The top score prize in the game, which was played at three tables, went to Mrs. James Lowe, who also won the bingo award. Refreshments followed play.

Mrs. Boyd Stout Gives Two Lovely Parties
Two lovely parties of the week were the ones given by Mrs. Boyd Stout at her home Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, having guests for four tables of bridge on each occasion. For the first party the home was attractively decorated in keeping with Halloween, and after play the hostess served pumpkin pie with ice cream. The tallies also carried the accepted motif. Mrs. J. A. Rousseau won high and Miss Lois Scroggs second high, each received attractive awards. To Miss Lilyan Miller, a bride-to-be, the hostess presented a gift.

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Stout served a dessert course at the close of the game. The high and second high score prizes went to Mrs. Wayne Foote and Mrs. E. H. Helm.

Raptist Training Union Has Halloween Party
Amid an atmosphere of goblins, ghosts, black cats and other familiar Halloween symbols, members of the Training Union of the First Baptist church shared a most enjoyable Halloween party at the American Legion Hut last week. Grinning pumpkins and other seasonal decorations enhanced the spirit of the party. Nearly a hundred members were present to participate in the interesting games, stunts and other features of the evening's program. Among the games most enjoyed by the boys was bobbing for apples in two large tubs of water. Judges awarded decisions to Margaret Foster, Mrs. A. C. Dennis and Tommie Stonestreet as having the most interesting Halloween costumes. Other game and contest winners for the evening were Dorothy Campbell, Charles Cundill, Annie Eller, Andrew Johnson and Jimmy Moore. Delightful Halloween refreshments of sweet cider and ginger bread were served as a closing feature of the program.

Miss Lilyan Miller Feted At Bridge Party
An interesting party of the week was the one given by Mrs. Ira Payne and Miss Nonie Gordon at the Payne home on Fifth Street Thursday evening honoring Miss Lilyan Miller, a bride-elect of the month, who is soon to wed Frank Stafford. A dessert course preceded the game of bridge, which was played at seven tables.
An after dinner cup and saucer went to Miss Kathryn Troutman for scoring high, and note paper to Miss Lillian Stafford for second high. Mrs. Payne's gift for the honoree was crystal in her chosen pattern while Miss Gordon gave her a silver water pitcher. A green and white motif was emphasized in the party appointments while in the decorations chrysanthemums and roses were the predominant flowers.

The closing prayer was given by Miss Margaret Anderson and was followed by a social hour during which time Mrs. Archie Anderson assisted her sister in serving refreshments, carrying out the Halloween motif.

Government AAA Film At The Allen

Farmers interested in land conservation and pasture improvement will find both entertainment and information in the new AAA movie, "Harvest for Tomorrow," according to Lawrence Miller, Secretary of the Wilkes County Agricultural Conservation Association. The picture will be shown at the Allen Theatre on November 10th and 11th, under the sponsorship of the AAA.
"Advance reports indicate it is an unusually interesting film with outstanding music and buoyant narration that incites everybody's interest," Mr. Miller said.
The story dramatizes the soil and its fundamental relation to the welfare of the nation, both on farms and in towns and cities. Right here in this section the film will appeal to the many farmers interested in soil conservation and pasture improvement work. It is hoped that everybody around here will get a chance to see this unusual motion picture.
