Ask Employers To List Needs With N.C.S.E.S.

All employers in North Carolina, especially those who have pressing need for additional help, should immediately list their employment needs with their nearest state employment office to hasten the proper placing of men who are being relieved from active military duty. Gen. J. Van B. Metts, state director of selective service, said today.

"All cases of unemployed service men, or those who desire new jobs, are referred by selective service local board re-employment committees to the state employment office," he said. "This facilitates co-operation with employers to make intelligent distribution of this additional manpower for national defense production. The first and important obligation of the employer, however, is that he advise his nearest state employment office fully as to his employment needs."

Director Metts pointed out that while the law makes it mandatory for an employer to restore a returning soldier to his former position, or a position of like seniority, status and pay, many men who are completing terms of service in the regular army and marine corps, as well as selectees, were unemployed when they began their military service. To expedite the proper placing of these men, he said, the selective service re-employment program has been amplified by arrangements to establish "referral offices" in army camps to interview men whose records indicate they might be useful in the priorities division of national defense production and to so classify them before they leave the army.

Under the general re-employment program of the selective service system all members of the armed forces when about to be relieved of active duty are filling in Selective Service Form DSS-128, giving details concerning their civilian occupations, aptitudes, experience, and desires. These forms will be culled at the referral offices in the camps before being sent to national selective service headquarters and thence to local boards and to state employment offices.

The referral offices will select those men meeting requirements set forth by the labor division of the office of production management, for which the U. S. employment service division also is the official agency in the matter of personnel procurement. They will be questioned as to their skills and concerning possible employment in the army or navy department's mechanical plants, or in the factories of priorities divisions of national defense production such as aircraft, shipbuilding, etc.

All returning soldiers, Director Metts said, are instructed to get in touch with their local board re-employment committees as soon as they reach their homes. In the meantime, the committees will have received complete data con-

Dear! Dear! This Dilemma Has Horns

Kenvil, N. J.—Dear! Dear! Officials of the Hercules Powder Company plant in Kenvil are wondering how to solve a deer problem.

Two automobiles and a motorcycle belonging to Patrolmen at the plant have been damaged or overturned by deer which charged into them.

The deer have become quite bold after hearing many test explosions at the plant and as a result challenge the automobiles.

In order to shoot them special permission must be obtained from the State Legislature.

The deer hunting season is from December 17 to 21, and only one deer is permitted each hunter.

cerning each man—his civilian occupational skill or aptitude, training and experience, and his military record. This information also is sent to the state employment office, which will co-operate with the local board re-employment committees and employers to see that each man is placed in the job for which he is best fitted and most needed.

Bob Hope Gets Rags-to-Riches Girl

Hollywood—Betsy Avery, nineteen, former model, is Hollywood's latest rags-to-riches girl.

She signed a contract with Producer Samuel Goldwyn and is scheduled to appear in a forthcoming picture with Comedian Bob Hope—her first full-length movie.

Miss Avery, a Tulsa girl, educated in Oklahoma and New York, had made only one previous film appearance.

She modeled a gown in a fashion short subject. A Goldwyn talent scout saw her and arranged a screen test.
