Prior to January 1, 1942, complete physical examinations were given the selectees by local board examining physicians. After a lew months of experience, these physicians were: passing men who very closely met the army's requiremen's. Rejections at the induction station at that time were almost entirely of men with borderline coaditions, men who had contracted diseases between he time of their local examination and the time of their delivery for induction, and men rejected as a result of the chest Xrays which were never a part of the local examination.

Under the regulations now force, the local examining physicians do not make a comprehen-

In fact, they make only a casual, "screening" examination and are guided by a list of defects, one part of which sets forth non-remediable physical conditions which manifestly Now Explained disqualify the selectee for all military service, and the second part i ary service, and the second part of which sets forth these nonremediable physical conditions tions of selectees at the induc- which manifestly disqualify for public mind. There is a sat- tions the examining physician can reject little more than the ob-

> Another reason for the large number of rejections is that local boards no longer have the authority to disqualify registrants who the minimum literacy are below standards for military service. Prior to January 1, 1942, they had such authority and did not send for induction registrants who were below such standards. Regulations now provide that all such men, otherwise qualified for military service, must be sent to the induction station for final check and rejection by the army.

It car readily be appreciated those who understand the regulations in force that a high percentage of the men forwarded for induction may be expected to be rejected for the reasons above given and local boards and examining physicians should not be criticized for a condition over which they have no control. They have no choice but to send the men to the induction station even if they have reason to believe that a large number will be rejected on account of their physical condition or lack of educational qualifications.

To My Patients

I have volunteered my services to the U. S. Navy and have been accepted. Therefore, I will not do any more work in the county until the present emergency is over. However, my office will be kept open and your treatment records will be available. For office work and further treatment, you may come to the office and be treated by one of the hospital doctors. For home attention, I am sure you can be well served by my other friends in the medical profession.
