War Financing

If the nation's sales of war bonds do not approximate one billion dollars monthly, there is a possibility that a system of compulsory bond buying may be initiated in order to finance the war.

Americans do not like compulsory measures. They like to do things of their own free will, voluntarily and without compulsion.

Certain quotas have been set for every county in the nation on bond sales. The quota for Wilkes this month is $61,300. At the rate of bond buying so far this month, the quota will not be met. It is sincerely urged that all who can buy bonds in order that the quota be raised.

The government believes that the people voluntarily will buy the bonds rather than have a plan of compulsory bond buying.

If it does become necessary to have a compulsory plan, we hope that it will be worked out equitably and that those who are benefitting financially because of the war will bear their just share of the financial burden.

A person not engaged in war work and whose salary has not been increased while living costs have gone up finds it difficult to put ten per cent of his income into war bonds.

On the other hand, the person whose income has doubled, trebled or maybe quadrupled could put in ten to twenty per cent of his pay without sacrifice. The person whose weekly income has risen from $20 to $100 weekly could invest half of his income in war bonds and still have more money than he ever had before, notwithstanding the increased cost of living.

What Do You Believe?

Once we heard a speaker declare: "Tell me what he believes and what he likes and I will tell you what he is."

One of the world's most remarkable men is John D. Rockefeller, Jr. He happened to fall heir to what was perhaps the world's largest individual fortune. But that alone does not constitute the qualities which make him today one of the world's most remarkable characters.

Coupled with the fact that he became heir to the Rockefeller millions which his illustrious father gathered, is the record of his unspoiled life, which he has lived much as any ordinary man with proper rearing and without great wealth.

It is very interesting to know what John D. Rockefeller believes, because what he believes coincides with the record of his life, which has been successful despite the obstacle of great wealth. It seems strange, maybe, to call great wealth an obstacle, but in 9 out of 10 cases wealth is just that for a young man.

With the opinion that Rockefeller's beliefs constitute the fundamentals of good living, we are quoting here his beliefs as published recently in "Home Life" a publication of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Atlanta, Ga., and which was furnished us by J. B. Williams, secretary-treasurer of the North Wilkesboro Building and Loan Association:

"I Believe"

I believe in the supreme worth of the individual and in his right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

I believe that every right implies a responsibility; every opportunity, an obligation; every possession, a duty.

I believe that the law was made for man and not man for the law; that government is the servant of the people and not their master.

I believe in the dignity of labor, whether with head or hand; that the world owes no man a living but that it owes every man an opportunity to make a living.

I believe that thrift is essential to well-ordered living and that economy is a prime requisite of a sound financial structure, whether in government, business or personal affairs.

I believe that truth and justice are fundamental to an enduring social order.

I believe in the sacredness of a promise, that a man's word should be as good as his bond; that character—not wealth or power or position—is of supreme worth.

I believe that the rendering of useful service is the common duty of mankind and that only in the purifying fire of sacrifice is the dross of selfishness consumed and the greatness of the human soul set free.

I believe in an all-wise and all-loving God, named by whatever name, and that the individual's highest fulfillment, greatest happiness, and widest usefulness are to be found in living in harmony with His will.

I believe that love is the greatest thing in the world; that it alone can overcome hate; that right can and will triumph over might.

The Argentine government has now tasted of the German arrogance, and relations between the two countries probably will be affected.

Germany admits responsibility for the submarine sinking of an Argentine freighter and offers reparations, yet refuses to salute the flag as Argentina demands.

The Germans say the flag salute is an obsolete diplomatic practice and alien to the mentality of the "new Germany." However, in World War I, the Germans knuckled under to an Argentina demand for a flag salute after a U-boat torpedoed one of her ships.

The sooner Argentina finds out Germany is out for the complete dominance of the world, the better off our South American neighbor will be in future relations with the Axis powers.

Hitler definitely has his eye on getting complete control of all countries to the south of us and it is high time for Argentina to stop blocking South American solidarity against the Axis. The Allies need their help now!

Gasoline rationing already has had one good result, reduction of highway accidents. Together with that there is a general lowering of speed limits, some of it due to fear of the new penalties but also on account of the need for conserving fuel and rubber.

SENDING FORTH GOSPEL TRUTH

When you're sending forth a message That is full of Gospel truth For the parents and the children, For the aged and the youth, Only God, our precious Father, Knows how much it may be worth To the toiling Christian pilgrim And the dreary of the earth.

It may lift some heavy burden From a soul that's in despair, Or inspire some fainting Christian To uplift his heart in prayer, And take courage for the Master, Then go forth to do his best, Knowing his reward is waiting— Life eternal, peace and rest.

It may be a wondrous blessing As the years go passing by— Maybe when you've crossed the portal To the homeland in the sky, Helping pilgrims bear their crosses, Stand for God and truth and right, And to walk the path of duty As a burning, shining light.

When you're giving truth untarnished To a lost and dying world, As you write and speak for Jesus 'Neath His banner bright unfurled, It may enter homes by thousands Up and down this sinful earth, Going into nooks and corners, Bringing souls to Christian birth.

So it's great to give a message That is full of Christian love, That may warn the wayward sinner, Pointing him to God above; That may lift the clouds of trouble From the gloomy, sad and lone, And help men and women upward To our great Redeemer's throne.

Abnormal Absurdities

By DWIGHT NICHOLS, et al.

SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE ABOUT IT

Often we have passed WPA crews at work and looked with much curiosity at the dinkuses from which they get drinking water.

Last week we had an opportunity to satisfy our unjustified curiosity about how the things work; and now we report that something ought to be done about it.

The water is stored in a little oblong tank, which may be carried from place to place.

On top of the tank is a drinking fountain.

The awful thing about it is that in order to get water to squirt out of the fountain, some one must work a pump handle up and down. Just think of all the labor that requires!

By first hand information we found that it requires about ten pounds pressure on the pump handle to work it with an up and down motion in order to get the pressure inside the tank up to where it will force water up through the fountain.

We would suggest that in order to eliminate this physical labor that an electric motor be attached.

And that idea of carrying the tank, fountain and all, is simply preposterous. When full of water it has a weight of 20 odd pounds or more. If they can't have a limousine to carry it around, maybe they could use an ordinary car.

Anyway, those interested should write their congressman.

EARLY AND LATE

"So you and your neighbor are not on speaking terms?" "No. My neighbor sent me a can of oil to use on my lawn mower when I start to cut the grass at 6 o'clock in the morning."

"And what did you do?" "I sent it back and told him to use it on his wife when she started singing at 11 at night."

Mountain View Home Club Meets

The July meeting of the Mountain View home demonstration club was held at the home of Mrs. F. C. Johnson.

The business part of the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Claude Johnson, vice president, the president being away for the summer.

Demonstration on canning vegetables was given by Miss Herring, after which delicious refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held in form of a community picnic on the campus of Mountain View school, to which the public at large is especially urged to attend.

Crimson Clover Seed Available

Wilkes farmers during the past several days have received over 5,000 pounds of crimson clover seed from the Wilkes Triple A office, and about 15,000 pounds pounds remain available for distribution.

Farmers desiring crimson clover seed are urged to call for them as soon as possible and to have sacks in which to carry the seed home. Payment for the seed will be deducted from the farmers' soil program earnings.

Thousands Here Need Retonga Says Inman

Few People Ever Suffered More From Sour Indigestion; Headaches and Constipation, Declares Civic Leader. Tells About His Case.

MR. I. H. INMAN

Declaring that Retonga relieved him of two years suffering after everything else he tried had failed, Mr. I. H. Inman, prominent farmer and civic leader of Route 1, Julian, N. C., comes forward to add his name to the hundreds of public endorsements this famous stomachic medicine combined with Vitamin B-1 is receiving throughout this state:

"I feel that thousands of people right here in North Carolina need Retonga like I did," declares Mr. Inman. "Few people ever suffer more tortures from nervous indigestion, constipation, and sick headaches than I did. The headaches would last for days at a time, and I could not wish an enemy my such misery. I had to take strong laxatives nearly every day. I suffered so much from sour, gassy indigestion that I left off eating supper rather than suffer as I did, and I felt almost completely discouraged."

"Retonga relieved me so I can hardly realize I am the same person. I eat anything, I sleep fine, and I wake up ready for a hearty breakfast and a full day's work on my farm. In my case Retonga would have been cheap at $10 a bottle."

Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained in North Wilkesboro at Horton's Drug Store, and in Wilkesboro at Newton's Drug Store.

Grandmother Was The Best Cook In Town

But she knew nothing about vitamins — she used to cook away most of them. Today we have learned to use a minimum of water to avoid boiling all the good out of vegetables; we have stopped putting soda on green vegetables to make them look green.

And we don't throw away the water in which vegetables are cooked, but use it in making gravies, sauces and soups. We use the automatic temperature controls on modern electric or gas ranges to bake and roast so that proper cooking temperatures can be maintained.
