Mobilize For Food Program

Plan To Reach All Homes With The Campaign

North Carolina has taken the lead, among all other states, in its plans for Food Conservation for 1943. A committee from the Nutrition Division of the Office of North Carolina Civilian Defense worked out a plan that will result in the most far reaching food conservation program the state has ever had.

A state meeting, in the nature of a two-day Food Conservation Workshop for training workers, was held in Raleigh on March 5 and 6. This group was composed of representatives of College Home Economics Staffs, Home Economics Education Staff, Farm Security Staff, Extension Home Demonstration Staff, and Home Economists in Commercial Fields. Studies were made of the latest methods, equipment, etc., to be used in food conservation and plans were outlined of ways and means whereby this training could reach all North Carolina homes, both rural and urban.

Similar to the meeting in Raleigh, a two-day Food Conservation Workshop for Wilkes county was held in the assembly hall of the Commercial College on March 25 and 26th. The demonstrations in food conservation were conducted by Miss Willie Hunter, extension specialist of State College, Raleigh, assisted by Mrs. Annie H. Greene, Wilkes county home demonstration agent, and Mrs. Mary H. Gable, home supervisor, Farm Security Administration.

The Food Conservation Workshop was opened by Judge J. A. Rousseau, Chairman of Wilkes County Civilian Defense. Present and pledging their full cooperation and support of this program were Mr. C. B. Eller, county superintendent of schools, Mr. J. B. Snipes, county farm agent, Rev. A. C. Waggoner, chairman of Red Cross and representative of the Ministerial Association; Mr. John S. Boyles, farm supervisor, Farm Security Administration, and Mr. Paul Vestal, chairman of Wilkes County Board of Commissioners.

Receiving training the first day was a group composed of all of Wilkes county high school home economics teachers, one commercial home economist, and all of the college home economics trained housewives in the county.

Miss Ghita Tuttle, Wilkesboro, home economics teacher; Miss Reba McNeill, Champion home economics teacher, Mt. Pleasant school; Miss Jewel Graham, Roaring River home economic teacher; Mrs. Annie H. Cragan, North Wilkesboro, home economics teacher; Miss Vertie Rayburn, Millers Creek, home economics teacher; Mrs. Rachel K. Holbrook Is Now Facing Two Charges

Two Auto Thefts Are Charged to J. W. Holbrook

James W. Holbrook, arrested here a week ago for the theft of an automobile here belonging to H. L. Eller, was turned over to Winston-Salem police this morning for the theft of another car in Winston-Salem on February 17.

Holbrook, who lives in the Traphill community, was arrested on March 20 by State Highway Patrol Sergeant Carlyle Ingle after the officer chased him over several roads in eastern Wilkes. Holbrook was driving the car belonging to Eller, and which had been stolen here the night before.

Holbrook was released under bond, but at the time of the investigation Sergeant Ingle found that Holbrook had another car in his possession. Y.M.C.A. Group Is Named

Committee Appointed To Investigate The Proposal

North Wilkesboro Kiwanis Club has appointed a committee to make investigations into the possibility of erecting a Y. M. C. A. for North Wilkesboro after the end of the war.

The matter was first brought to the attention of the club several days ago by Dr. A. C. Chamberlain, who suggested that work begin on raising a fund for use in construction of a Y. M. C. A. when such construction is possible.

At the directors' meeting Thursday night C. A. Witherspoon, field secretary of the Charlotte Y. M. C. A., was a guest of Dr. Chamberlain and gave some interesting figures on the cost of a Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Witherspoon told the club that the minimum requirements for a Y. M. C. A. plant here would involve an expenditure of about $50,000 for a two-story building and that if dormitory rooms were added for a third story the cost would be about $75,000. Such a building would have the rooms, space and facilities for a modern social and civic center suitable for the community.

The committee named to investigate the matter is composed of J. R. Hix, J. R. Finley, R. G. Finley, P. W. Eshelman, John E. Justice and J. B. Williams. Reports of the committee's findings will be made later.

BERLIN BLASTED
Last night hundreds of British bombers laid waste to parts of Berlin, Germany's capital, and left a trail of destruction. Over 1,000 tons of bombs were rained on the German city by three waves of bombers in what was described as the biggest raid of the war on Berlin, and even bigger than the worst Germany was ever able to hand London.

Later American bombers aided by British fighters blasted submarine bases on the French coast with devastating attacks.

Man Is Found In His Home Shot In Head

W. L. Anderson Dies Of Gunshot Wound

W. L. Anderson was found dead in bed at his home near Moravian Falls early this morning.

Anderson, who lived alone in a farm house, died from a pistol bullet wound in the center of his forehead.

Johnnie Brown was appointed acting coroner by C. C. Hayes, clerk of court, because Coroner I. M. Myers was in Charlotte today and a jury was empanelled by Brown.

A physician who examined the body stated that Anderson had been dead for several hours, probably since some time Sunday or early Sunday night. His body was found today by a neighbor who called at the house.

The pistol was found at his right hand near his head. The jury late today had not returned a verdict on the case as to whether Anderson killed himself or was murdered.

The robbery motive was discounted when it was found that Anderson's pocketbook with about $35 in cash had not been taken. It was reported that he had sold timber with a value of about $1,300 recently but that he had invested part of the money in war bonds and had deposited the remainder in a bank. None of the reports were officially confirmed.

Relatives of Mr. Anderson, which included sons and daughters at several points, had not arrived today to make funeral arrangements.
