

For mutual advantage do your buying in North Wilkesboro, the growing trading center of North-Western North Carolina.

THE JOURNAL-PATRIOT

VOL. XXXVI, No. 4

Published Mondays and Thursdays.

NORTH WILKESBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, APR. 8, 1943

$1.50 In the State — $2.00 Out of State

BUY MORE
WAR BONDS

Clean Up Week Set For City

Mayor Sets the Week Of April 12th To 17th

Week of April 12-17 has been designated as "Clean-Up Week" in North Wilkesboro.

Mayor R. T. McNeil today announced the annual spring cleaning week, and urges cooperation from all the people in the city.

The city authorities will cooperate fully and citizens are urged to collect all rubbish and place it conveniently for the city truck to haul away. A call to the city clerk's office will bring the truck when it is not on regular run.

Mayor McNeil urges that the clean-up job be thorough, in order that the city may have a more attractive appearance and also pointed out that cleanliness is conducive to good health.

In order to eliminate fire hazards, basements, attics and other such places should be cleaned of all trash and rubbish and the people are urged not to neglect outside premises, including vacant lots.

All scrap metal and rubber should be carried to a salvage dealer, thus aiding in the war program while doing the clean-up.

Civic organizations are urged and their cooperation and united effort to the clean-up movement.

At Yakima, Wash.

Pvt. Paul McCann, son of Rev. and Mrs. Levi McCann, of Roaring River, who was inducted into the army November 2, 1942, is now stationed at Yakima, Washington. His wife, the former Miss Glenna Green, is making her home in Wilkesboro with her parents.

Committees For Schools Are Named

Board of Education Appoints District Committees

Wilkes county board of education in session this week appointed school committees for the various districts in Wilkes county.

Few changes were made in the central district committees and practically all the advisory committee members for the smaller schools within the districts were named for another two-year term.

The district committees are as follows:

Wilkesboro

Dr. M. G. Edwards, T. M. Foster, O. K. Whittington, C. T. Doughton, W. C. Prevette.

Mt. Pleasant

Gerald McGee, M. L. Yates, J. Roby McNeil, W. D. Foster, J. E. Hamby.

Millers Creek

C. R. Whittington, J. F. Canfield, C. F. McNeil, C. J. Jones, H. P. Jones.

Mulberry

W. H. Hayes, H. H. Jennings, P. M. Watson.

Mountain View

G. C. Pendry, Roy Key, Mrs. Glenn Dancy, F. C. Johnson, D. C. Caudill.

Traphill

J. W. McBride, Sam C. Johnson, J. E. DeJournette, D. C. Casstevens, Wesley J. Dines.

Bonda

G. C. Greene, Leet Poplin, O. D. Bentley.

(Continued on page five)

In Mississippi

Pvt. Charles Lentz, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lentz, of North Wilkesboro route two, is stationed with a field artillery battalion at Camp Shelby, Miss. He has been stationed at Camp Shelby since September 29, 1942.

FIRST ARMY ADVANCING

STALEY BROTHERS IN SERVICE

Left, 2nd Class Petty Officer Claude Staley, who is now serving somewhere on the Pacific Ocean. He enlisted in the Navy in September, 1941, and received his training at Norfolk, Va. He has made seven trips across. Technical Sgt. Loyd Staley, right, who volunteered for the Army in July, 1940, received his training in South Carolina and at Panama Canal. Sgt. Staley has seen service on Bataan in the Philippines. He is now stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss. Both boys have recently spent furloughs with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Staley, of North Wilkesboro.

Three Armies Taking Heavy Toll In Attack

Allied Headquarters, North Africa.—The British First Army in northern Tunisia has plunged forward in an attack coordinated with the successful advance of British and American forces in southern Tunisia and has gained much ground in the region of Medjez-el-Bab, 36 miles southwest of Tunis, an Allied communiqué said today.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa he will have a stormy passage across the Sicilian Straits."

The pursuit of the enemy from his broken defenses at the Wadi El Awarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, is being pressed relentlessly by the British Eighth Army, the communiqué said, and many more prisoners and much abandoned material have been taken.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, congratulated General Sir Harold Alexander, his deputy in charge of land operations, on recent successful operations and declared that "if Rommel tries to leave Africa