MRS. ED M. ANDERSON VISITING SPEAKER FOR WOMAN'S CLUB MEET

Mrs. Ed M. Anderson, of West Jefferson, was visiting speaker for the May meeting of the North Wilkesboro Woman's club which was held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Hix Monday afternoon. Other hostesses for the meeting were Mesdames R. J. Hinshaw, J. Q. Adams, Boyd Stout, Ivey Moore, and A. B. Johnston.

Mrs. Ivey Moore, the president, presided for the business session, after which she introduced Mrs. Anderson, third district president, who spoke briefly in regard to the work of Woman's Clubs.

Mrs. Anderson announced that the third district, according to a point rating system of work done, had won second place in the state, and the sixth district was first. This point rating system is to be in the new Year Books, and clubs are asked to study it closely, and see how many points they can make.

To make the honor roll a club is to have a rating of one hundred points or more, and the North Wilkesboro club with a total of 105 points, was one among six clubs making the honor roll in the third district which has sixteen clubs. Mrs. Anderson presented the local club with their honor certificate, also a book entitled, "Carolina Crusaders." The certificate carries the picture of the newly adopted state bird, the Cardinal, and is very attractive.

The programs for the coming year are to feature War Service Work, but clubs are asked to sponsor some programs on Peace, War Conditions, and International Relations. Mrs. Anderson said it had been suggested that the clubs continue their meetings during the summer months, but the majority of clubs in the state were not meeting, and she thought too it was best for clubs to take a little vacation during the summer months, when so many other things were demanding a woman's time.

During the business session Mrs. Moore announced that Mrs. O. E. Triplett and Miss Ruth Colvard had been accepted into the club as new members. Mrs. Adams, chairman of ground committee, announced some plans for improvement of the grounds in planting bulbs and shrubbery.

Accompanying Mrs. Anderson to North Wilkesboro for the meeting were Mrs. P. G. Wright, district secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. James Story, secretary of the West Jefferson club.

Around thirty were present and during the social hour that followed the meeting the hostesses served tempting refreshments. This meeting will be the last one for the club until the beginning of the fall season.

A FILM DRAMA LOADED WITH ACTION!

Having two men on her hands invites unusual adventures and plenty of trouble for heroine Ann Lee, who becomes involved with Brian Donlevy and Dennis O'Keefe, in the startling, suspense-filled melodrama, Arnold Pressburger's "Hangmen Also Die" which is scheduled to bow in at the Liberty Theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

Gilreath Club In Interesting Meeting

The Gilreath Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. J. M. Costner. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Ed Hendren.

After a short business discussion the home demonstration agent, Mrs. Annie Laurie H. Greene, gave a very interesting and helpful demonstration on house cleaning, emphasizing the importance of cleaning cabinets in every home.

To conclude the meeting the women took a victory tour, visiting Mrs. Costner's Victory Garden. She, being the garden project leader of her club, sets a fine example for the other members with the variety of early vegetables she now has growing. Some of which include onions, peas, lettuce, turnips, beets, carrots, parsnips, cabbage, spinach, beans, potatoes, corn and several different kinds of greens.

They also visited Mrs. Costner's basement of canned goods, where more than half of her original six hundred quarts of fruits, vegetable and meats are still evident.

And last, but not least, they inspected her brooder house filled with 150 six-week-old chicks. All of which goes to prove that the farm people of Wilkes county are doing all they can toward winning the war on the home front by producing all the fruits, vegetables and meats they need for home consumption and a surplus for the market.
