CONGRATULATIONS to the Newspapers of America

NCE more the free press of America has shown its ability to aid in overcoming the shortage of an essential war material.

This country faced on acute shortage of pulpwood. We users of pulpwood, faced with increasing wartime demands for our products, realized the disastrous effect on our war and home front economics if the shortage of our raw materials continued. This problem, so vast in scope, so threatening in nature, had to be brought to the attention of every man, woman and child in pulpyood-producing areas. The job had to be done quickly if the downward trend of production was to be reversed in time.

To help turn the tide, the Newspapers of America have responded as only the Free Press of a Free People could. They have given their time, effort and space to make people understand how much we needed pulpwood-and why.

This whole campaign is an inspiring example of initiative and imagination. It is beginning to work, and we in this industry are glad to acknowledge the help it has been to us in meeting the nation's need for pulpwood products. We are happy to carry on with the newspapers, and to do everything we can to make their drive a success.
