Buy Easter Seals

The Annual Easter Seal is a bright herald of Spring. It is pleasant to see and a satisfaction to know that each time we put one of these cheerful little labels on a letter we help crippled children and encourage others to help, too. A less painful way of giving could hardly be conceived—nor a more effective one—for pennies, dimes and dollars accumulate into funds which provide needed services. And this wide spread giving by those who wish new life and hope for crippled children means that there is a great group of sponsoring friends back of the organization dedicated to the crippled.

For twenty-five years the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults has coordinated programs of service to meet unfilled needs of crippled children and adults together with its affiliated state Societies.

Nation-wide these services have varied from bedside teaching to equipping special school rooms, or supplying corrective shoes, braces, crutches and wheel chairs not otherwise provided. They have included transportation to clinics, surgical and convalescent care when needed. Camping, with special physical equipment and programs, is developed for crippled children in many states. Occupational therapy for the homebound, sheltered workshops and employment placement services for the severely handicapped are special adults' services now increasing throughout the state Societies. In many Societies, work for the cerebral palsy child is receiving special emphasis.

Public spirited citizens who wish these valid needs filled participate by the purchase of Easter Seals, which provide funds for services to the crippled under the direction of the State Societies and the National Society.

The Cancer Campaign

The American Cancer Society will soon call upon the American people in the annual campaign to create a fund for cancer research.

Medical science has not yet conquered cancer. It is one of the leading causes of death and one of the most dreaded of maladies. Men of science believe that cancer can be eradicated, but no means have been found of adequately combating the disease. Continued research, which costs money, is necessary until success is achieved.

The North Wilkesboro Woman's Club is sponsoring the campaign in Wilkes and T. E. Story will be chairman. We are confident that the people of Wilkes will want to do their part in this great undertaking to alleviate and prevent human suffering and death.

WALTER E. ISENHOUR

HE LEFT HIS MARK
He left his mark when he was gone
Upon the shores of time
To lift men up and help them on
To heights that are sublime;
Therefore he didn't live in vain,
Nor die in sad defeat,
As those who curse and blight and stain
The lives of those they meet.

His mark was that of noble deeds
He did along life's road;
Of sowing good and wholesome seeds
That brought a wondrous load
Of happiness to other souls,
Of cheer and joy and peace,
That helps them on to reach their goals
Where glories never cease.

Likewise he left his mark in prayer,
And by his smiling face,
That rescued men from dark despair
And helped them find their place,
That they also might nobly live
To bless the lives of men,
By going forth their best to give
By deed and word and pen.

He left his mark to show the way
That saints and sages trod,
Which leads one to eternal day
Before the throne of God;
And when God makes His jewels up
To shine in Heaven's realm,
He'll give to him a peaceful cup
And crown him one of them.

PULPWOOD

... by-product of power

An ever increasing demand is made on our forests for pulpwood to be turned into paper bags and boxes, cardboard, towels, cellophane . . . on through a wide range of useful articles including the finest rayons.

These uses of pulpwood are in addition to the millions of tons needed annually by the presses of America for newsprint.

Facing this enormous and ever growing demand, North Carolina and South Carolina strive to eliminate waste in the forests.

In the forests essential to the efficient operation of its system, the Duke Power Company has cut 21 483 cords of pulpwood in the last six years . . . at the same time increasing potential timber production.

Pulpwood on these lands is secured by thinning young forests, cutting trees close to the ground to avoid wastage in stumps, and by utilizing all tree tops and branches rejected by the saw-mills.

Thus, by eliminating waste, the Company's forests added 1500 carloads of pulpwood to Piedmont industry and, by ridding the forests of what would become dead wood, removed a fire threat to future yields.
