Meantime, Representative John Folger of the Fifth District yesterday added his support to securing action on the project at this session. Recognizing individual complaints are bound to arise from any large-scale dambuilding program and expressing interest in possible modifications that might lend themselves to future power development, he emphasized his interest lay in resolving the difficulties of interested parties and getting action.

He pointed out the Yadkin development has been under consideration several years, in both its power and flood control aspects, and said he was "very much surprised" any objection had developed. "I am interested in getting the project considered this session and decided one way or another without a year's delay," he declared. "I don't see why there must be delay in bringing it to conclusion." Representative Folger said also he intended to check into the Yadkin matter with Lieut. Gen. recented to Mary Lee Jennings, R. A. Wheeler, chief of army engineers, and Col. Wayne S. Moore, resident member of the board of engineers for rivers and Civil Aeronautics examiners this week recommended a vastly improved air transportation service for the southeast.

Of particular interest here was the recommendation that North Wilkesboro be served on a route from Louisville, Ky., to New Bern, N. C.

The recommendations were made by Ross I. Newman and Curtis G. Henderson, and are expected to be adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The action on the part of the CAB examiners again brings to the limelight the desperate need of an airport for North Wilkesboro, a project which has received attention from public spirited and progressive citizens here for the past several months and which is considered one of the first objectives for the Wilkes Chamber of Commerce.

The recommended air route which would include North Wilkeeboro would be from Louisville, Ky., by way of Hazard, Ky., Bristol, Va., North Wilkesboro, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Durham, Raleigh, where its line would fork in two directions to New Bern by way of Wilson and Greenville, Goldsboro and Kin-
