Caroon Presides At Convention Of Finance Companies

W. J. Caroon, of North Wilkesboro, president of the North Carolina Association of Finance Corporations, presided over the association's convention held in Charlotte Tuesday and Wednesday.

Approximately 50 members of the association from every section of the state attended the meeting, held at Hotel Charlotte. The program, with T. S. Rogers of Charlotte as chairman, was entirely informal and so arranged to permit any member who wished to do so to discuss any matter related to the business of the member companies, those concerns engaged in automobile financing.

It was the general feeling of those participating in the discussions that although the Carolinas appear to have passed through the more drastic phases of the post-war economic adjustment, prices of new and used automobiles, as well as other products in general demand, including various household appliances are still highly unsettled and for that reason the finance companies should exercise great caution in their appraisals of such purchases in making loans.
