es to arrive in prosperity, happiness and contentment for all must be held in view clearly and constantly."

The "mother" of the American Christmas Seal was the late Miss Emily P. Bissell of Wilmington, Del., who designed the first Christmas Seal and put on the first Seal Sale in this country.

To be perfectly just is an attribute of the divine nature; to be so to the utmost of our abilities, is the glory of man.—Joseph Addison.

Divine Providence has granted this gift to man, that those things which are honest are also the most advantageous.—Quintilian.

Raleigh political observers suggest Governor Scott may be softening a bit in his approach to non-zealots for the Go Forward Program. Well, we don't believe he ever attempted to use a meat-axe, but maybe he closed his hay-fork a bit in pitching.—Greensboro Daily News.

LIFE'S BETTER WAY

LOST OPPORTUNITY

Among different things that people lose as they go through life oftentimes is that of opportunities. We realize that an opportunity that is good and worth while, if unaccepted is soon lost, never to return.

We are now thinking of the great and precious opportunities people have all about us of attending church and Sunday school, and of getting to God, which are being neglected. It is alarming how many people all over the land never enter a church door. Even parents neglect the church and fail to take their children. So many boys and girls are growing up in our midst without Christ, whose parents are likewise sinners, and seem to care nothing for the church and the salvation of their souls. It is indeed pathetic. What does the future hold for parents and children who never go to church, and who care nothing about the Christian religion? Surely the consequences will be fearful. O that such opportunities would be appreciated and accepted:

Then we believe the church is losing precious and priceless opportunities of going out and bringing in many who are too careless about themselves and their families. If many of our churches would become deeply interested in the lost about us as they should, and would go forth praying and working for such souls, and would get them into Sunday school, and to church, and would seek to lead them to Christ, we do not doubt but that thousands could be won who are on the broad road hellward. No doubt the church is largely to blame for so much non-church attendance, and for so many lost souls. Many of our church members never go out to invite those to church who don't attend. They never put forth an effort to win them to Christ. What will the Master say to those who never seek to win souls, even though they profess to be Christian. Go out and invite your neighbor to church who never attends. Look around you and count those who are non-church goers and who are in sin, and see how many you can get to church and Sunday school, and how many you can lead to Christ. Lost opportunities never return. Don't let them pass unaccepted.

Perfect Pair for Holiday Hospitality

ORANGE-CRUSH AND FRUIT CAKE. For holiday hospitality at its best, remember this perfect pair—rich, delicious fruit cake and tangy, refreshing Orange-CRUSH. It's a flavor combination that's sure to make a hit with young and old alike. Serve Orange-CRUSH too, as an in-between refresher. Orange-CRUSH goes good with popcorn, peanuts, potato chips, or any snack food. Always a favorite, Orange-CRUSH is especially appropriate during the holidays for it is the perfect answer to what to serve when friends and neighbors drop in. Orange-CRUSH is always a welcome treat. Its "fresh fruit" flavor is protected by the "krinkly" brown bottle. And for home use—buy the economy way, by the case.

Wagoner Gets State 4-H Post

Fred H. Wagoner, assistant farm agent in Edgecombe County has been appointed assistant State 4-H Club leader, according to an announcement by D. S. Weaver, assistant director of the State College Extension Service. He will take over his new duties on December 1 and will work out of the State 4-H office in Raleigh. He is the son of J. I. Wagoner, Guilford County farm agent, and Mrs. Wagoner. He attended State College, where he was a member of the wrestling and football teams. He played tackle of the varsity grid team while his brother John, now with a professional team in Ottawa, Canada, played guard.

After specializing in animal industry and receiving a B. S. in agriculture in 1947, Wagoner returned to State College to do graduate work in field crops for more than a year.

His wife is the former Dorothy Mann, a native of Mebane and former assistant home demonstration agent in Rockingham County. They have one son, Donald, who is two years old.

Turkish tobacco growers in Jackson, Swain, Graham, Clay and Macon Counties have received an average price of 90 cents per pound in recent sales. The highest price paid on any of the crop was $1.05 that went to J. B. Farmer of Whittier, Jackson county.

UP

FROM THE OLD MILL STREAM

Most of the industry in our Piedmont Carolinas was "down by the Old Mill Stream" when this century began.

The rains came, and sometimes the little riverside plant went out with the flood.

Then adventuresome engineers began to turn power wasting at falls and shoals into electricity. They transmitted it to towns located a safe distance from the rivers. Factories increased, and their loss by flood ended.

They increased so fast, in fact, that such river sites as could be reached and profitably developed were "used up." Too, it was found that, in time of drought, streams proved inadequate to power needs in the awakened Piedmont.

In the 1920's, facilities for steam generation were begun and have continued steadily until today they provide most of the power delivered by the Duke System. In our present expansion program, one plant alone* will produce more than one-sixth as much power as was used last year in all the territory served by the Duke Power Company.
