

NATION WILL START ERECTION OF VAST RADAR NETWORK

Washington, Dec. 5.—The air force announced today it will spend $50,000,000 to spin the first strands of an immense web of radar warning posts to protect the United States and Alaska from surprise bombing raids. It said it is taking money appropriated for other projects to speed work on the first phase of the aircraft warning network. Division of the funds—worth $31,200,000 to be spent on Alaska installations and the rest in the United States—emphasizes the armed forces' concern for defense of the nation's Northwest frontier, lying just a few miles across the Bering Strait from Russia.

The announcement said the money would allow "necessary construction . . . of early warning and control electronic equipment." It added that sites have been selected and surveyed for most of the proposed installations. Rights of entry, property leases, and construction plans also are ready.
The last session of Congress authorized $85,500,000 for the electronic barricade but put a $50,000,000 ceiling on expenditures for this fiscal year. It also stipulated the money had to come from other funds already appropriated for air force activities.

Charlie Spivak Coming Dec. 20

Among the more prized moments of bandleader Charlie Spivak's brilliant career is the high praise he received from the lips of Fritz Kreisler, the eminent classical violinist and soloist. Spivak brings his orchestra to North Wilkesboro for the V. F. W.'s big holiday dance December 20.

Charlie had recorded an album of Kreisler compositions for RCA Victor. Called "Kreisler Favorites," the records were unusual in that it was the first time that the virtuoso had approved having his compositions played in dance tempos. Also, it required transposing the classical Kreisler violin solos to trumpet parts.

Before the albums were released, Kreisler was invited to the record studio for a preview. After listening to the discs, Kreisler bestowed his official approval and marveled at Spivak's trumpet virtuosity.

"Kreisler Favorites" is one of the most popular and best-selling albums made in 1947. The solos by Spivak not only received high praise but it was the consensus of opinion in musical circles that Charlie was the only dance trumpeter with enough technical equipment and virtuosity to play the extremely difficult concertos originally conceived for the very flexible violin.

Haywood Man Takes Lead In Corn Contest

An official yield of 141.3 bushels per acre has put a Haywood County farmer out in front in the race for the 1949 corn-growing championship, Dr. E. R. Collins, agronomist for the State College Extension Service, said today. Unless a higher yield is reported within the next few weeks, Dwight Williams of Waynesville will become North Carolina's new corn champion.

The Haywood County farmer grew his high-yielding corn on rich bottomland. He fertilized with two tons of stable manure and 200 pounds of 7-7-7 per acre at planting time. On May 6, he seeded Dixie 17 hybrid in 42-inch rows, spacing it 12 inches in the drill. He side-dressed twice with 100 pounds of ANL per acre each time.

Runner-up in the state-wide contest to date is a Wayne County 4-H Club boy, Dale Gainey, whose measured acre yielded 139.3 bushels. He used hybrid N. C. 27, fertilizing with 2105 pounds of 6-8-16 at planting and side-dressing with 942 pounds of soda.

Dr. Collins says this field was obviously over-fertilized. But he adds that even with excessive fertilizer the cost per bushel, including labor, was only 82 cents. "This again emphasizes that high yields are generally the most profitable yields," he said.

The agronomist added that the contest is still open. Farmers who think they have exceptional yields, should contact their county agent. If the agent thinks the corn is promising enough, he will arrange for an official harvest. The North Carolina Foundation Seed Producers offer a 100-dollar savings bond for the highest yielding fields in each of three areas—mountains, piedmont and coastal plain. A second 100-dollar bond will be awarded the highest of the three as the state winner.

Dr. Eller Stresses Importance Seal Sale In Wilkes

Dr. A. J. Eller, health officer of Wilkes county, Thursday added his plea for "one hundred per cent support" of the campaign to the many endorsements of this year's Seal Sale by individual community leaders and organized groups within the county.

Dr. Eller's statement stressed that tuberculosis is a major health problem in the United States, "with Americans dying of the disease at the rate of one person every eleven minutes—close to 50,000 lives claimed by it each year."

"It is estimated that there are 500,000 cases of tuberculosis in this country," he said. "Of these, approximately 250,000 are unknown cases, or those not reported to the health authorities. Finding these unknown cases and seeing that the individuals get prompt and proper treatment are essential to the control of tuberculosis.

"The Wilkes Tuberculosis Association, engaged in case finding and other important projects to control tuberculosis in Wilkes County, needs and deserves the full support of every county resident. One way in which we all can back the association and its vital work is by buying and using Christmas Seals."

Dokies Will Meet Friday At Carolina

North Wilkesboro Dokies club will meet Friday evening, seven o'clock, at Carolina Restaurant. An excellent program has been arranged by G. Sam Winters and Lawrence Miller, who will present a Wilkes county movie. Carlyle Ingle, club president, urges a large attendance at Friday's meeting.
